demand is large, the stock is moving as fast as it is cut and the price is holding up well. Violets are on the wane. This stock has been fine this year, and although the shortage at the beginning of the season kept the sales far below normal, the later sales have been at a price which should help to raise the average.

Sweet peas are in fine shape. They are plentiful and are selling extremely well. Bulbous stock is in good shape and is having a fine sale. American Beauties are not as plentiful as we would like to see them and it is hard at times to fill all orders on this stock.

Various Notes.

The First National Bank of Milwaukee will move to a new building April 25. Florists already have a number of large orders for the opening of this bank and it is expected that the trade will reap a harvest from this event.

Mrs. R. E. Miller, of the Racine Floral Co., Racine, Wis., was in Milwaukee Saturday, April 18.

Chas. F. Meyer, of New York, visited the trade here the latter part of last week.

Albert Hare, of the Holton & Hunkel Co., was in Chicago, Tuesday, April 14, on a pleasure trip. He visited the wholesale florists of that city and renewed some old acquaintances.

The inauguration of the new city administration April 21 called for a lot of flowers to go to the City hall.

One of the prettiest weddings ever seen in Milwaukee was that of Miss Margaret Bigelow and Anson Eldred, which took place Saturday afternoon, April 18, at 4 p. m., at St. Paul's Episcopal church. In the chancel was a screen of smilax, and the altar was banked with Easter lilies. On either side were palms and the choir railings were hidden by ferns. On the pews designated for the family were bunches of Easter lilies tied with white tulle. The bride carried a shower bouquet of white Butterfly sweet peas and lilies of the valley. Her bridal veil was caught with orange blossoms. The bridesmaids carried arm bouquets of blue hydrangeas. The residence of the bride's parents was lavishly decorated with flowers and palms. J. M. Fox & Son had the decoration for this wedding and it was handled in a most artistic manner. H. J. S.

Seed Trade News.

AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.

President, O. O. Massie, Minneapolis; Secretary-Treasurer, O. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O. Thirty-second annual convention, Washington, D. C., June 28 to 30, 1914.

THE hyacinths are said to be at their best in Holland this week. Growers are looking for a good crop.

GARDENING in the Chicago section began last week, with three days of unseasonably warm weather.

MAIL orders are holding up unusually well this month, due to the late season in many important seed buying sections.

BEANS are the scarce item, beyond a doubt, but there seems to be no great hardship entailed—the land doesn't go unplanted.

THE pea growers have encountered less difficulty in getting acreage contracts this season. Last year's better yield has encouraged the farmers.

GEORGE W. KERR says that the winter flowering sweet pea, Yarrowa, first introduced by Burpee & Co., is without exception the greatest advance in forcing sweet peas yet offered.

THE Interstate Commerce Commission has directed the Southern Pacific railroad to refund $5.87 to C. C. Morse & Co., on account of unreasonable rates on a shipment of garden seeds from San Francisco to Oklahoma.

THE jobbers of Michigan dried beans believe conditions justify prices. The president of their association is quoted as saying that 1913 saw the largest acreage and smallest yield in five years. The crop is figured at 4,932,621 bushels, or approximately eleven bushels per acre.

"A TIME TO REJOICE."

As illustrating the anxiety with which the trade has been following the progress of the bill restoring the old rate of postage on small parcels of seeds, three of those who were watching every move in the play telegraphed The Review Monday night, April 20, that the House had that day passed the Senate bill. The matter now is up to the President for signature.

There was a note of great satisfaction in each telegram. "A time to rejoice," telegraphs one large shipper of small parcels.

As the matter now stands, lacking only the President's signature, which is likely to be affixed at any moment, the seed trade gets what The Review months ago suggested as probably the best all-around solution of the problem resulting from the public demand that the trade commodities be carried at the zone rates. Under the new law seeds and plants will be mailable on exactly the same terms that catalogues are. That is: The rate will be 1 cent for each two ounces up to eight ounces, regardless of distance, the zone pound rates applying on anything over eight ounces. Experience may demonstrate that in individual cases these rates are not so favorable as the old flat rate, but so good an authority as the Interstate Commerce Commission has decided that the general good will be well served under the new rate. Those seedsmen who have moderately heavy parcels for delivery within the local zones

Going and Coming

Mark Twain said he would rather go to a funeral than to a wedding because then he knew a man's troubles were ended. But whichever way the wind blows in this case, it is a good wind for the florist. He gets business going and coming. Now there's nothing better for either occasion than the pure white Easter lily—the emblem of purity—and of course, whether it's a wedding or a funeral, men are presumed to be all that is good and pure. So since there are sure to be just so many such occasions every year, get prepared for it—grow good lilies at all times of the year—Horseshoe Brand bulbs will give the desired results—none better anywhere.

have a distinct gain. Also, the new rate is more favorable than the general parcel post rate in that it allows eight ounces of seeds to be sent at the flat rate, whereas the flat rate on general merchandise applies only up to four ounces.

It has been said that the seed trade is without political influence, but the seed trade certainly has reason to congratulate itself, and especially to congratulate the gentlemen who led the fight, on the prompt action taken to undo the damage that was caused by the hasty amendment to the postoffice appropriation bill. For many years seeds and plants have enjoyed a rate of postage more favorable than the rates on general merchandise. Having lost this rate through the operation of the new law, many large users of the mails thought it doubtful if the seed and plant trades ever again would get special consideration. They not only got it, but they got it quickly. The unfavorable rates had been in effect just thirty-six days up to the time the restorative measure went to the President for his signature.

CANNERS' CONVENTION PLANS.

William C. Langbridge, of Jerome B. Rice Seed Co., Cambridge, N. Y., was in Chicago last week in his capacity as president of the Canning Machinery and Supplies Association, to hold a conference with the officers of other canners' organizations to consider the holding of the next national convention of the canning and allied industries.

Reservation covering five or six weeks had been made on a building in San Francisco in which to hold the machinery and supplies exhibit. This was reduced to the period from March 11 to March 22, as, if the convention goes to San Francisco, it is practically certain to be held within those dates. Final decision as to what city will get the convention will be reached at the meeting of the executive committee of the National Canners' Association at Washington, D. C., May 13.

FEAR MAINE SEED POTATOES.

Secretary of Agriculture Houston has issued a statement saying that on account of the recent discovery of violations of the Maine quarantine regulations all purchasers of Maine seed potatoes are warned to have their stock examined by the state expert if possible before planting. Unscrupulous shippers, it is learned, have been sending diseased potatoes to New York, Boston and other points, where certificates of inspection have been fraudulently attached to the bags. The governor and secretary of agriculture of Maine and a committee representing the potato growers and shippers of Aroostook county have requested the Department of Agriculture to take over the quarantining of Maine potatoes on account of the powdery scab. ## FRENCH BULBS.

A group of French bulb merchants in the south of France has taken exception to the statement of M. Bernard regarding crop prospects which was quoted in The Review for April 16. M. Bernard is quoted as saying that "large sizes of Romans will be scarce and dear this season. This is partly owing to the fact that, in consequence of strong demand, many bulbs were sold which in former years would have been replanted to make the finest bulbs. The frost last January cut the tops, which will probably be found to have affected the bulbs to some extent, a remark also applicable to freesias and narcissi, though the damage in these cases is more difficult to estimate."

His contemporaries have issued a counter statement, as follows: "Regarding M. Bernard's report about the large sizes of Romans, let us express our wonderment at it. Everyone here is aware that there were not more bulbs sold last year than former ones, and there were as many bulbs of 10 cm. and 11 cm. put into the ground last autumn as other years. So there is no reason why large sizes should not be as abundant as in previous seasons, unless there be not favorable weather in April and May. We have dealt in bulbs for many years, therefore we are informed about the condition of bulbs planted. We have visited the bulb fields and we can assert the prospect of crop is normal up to now. The bulbs have not been affected at all by the frost."

THE GREATEST CANNA NOVELTY OF THE DECADE

QUEEN HELEN

3½-inch pot plants, $3.00 each; per dozen, $30.00

⅓ dozen at same rate as per dozen. Plants ready now; can be shipped immediately

QUEEN HELEN is a green-leaved sport of King Humbert, retaining all the good qualities that have made Humbert the best Canna heretofore introduced—and Queen Helen has several points of superiority over Humbert. Same orchid-like flowers, golden yellow color, evenly spotted with red; stronger grower, producing more than twice as many shoots per plant; flower clusters larger; green-leaved, foliage large and glossy. Queen Helen is a variety that in years to come will be grown more generally than any other one canna. One large canna grower says it is the best novelty ever produced.

This Canna originated at our place in the year 1910 and the first time it was mentioned in The Florists' Review was June 15, 1911, under the St. Louis items, where I had shown a plant at one of our club meetings.

Deer Park, Ala., Oct. 12, 1913.

HENRY EMUNDS—Dear Sir: We note your picture of Queen Helen Canna in The Review and would like to have you write us fully regarding it. *** According to the picture, this Canna must have special merits, and we would be glad to assist you in its introduction, etc.

Yours truly,

L. H. READ & Co.

Deer Park, Ala., Oct. 25, 1913.

HENRY EMUNDS—Dear Sir: Your box of Queen Helen duly received, and I should have written you sooner. *** There is no question but you have one of the greatest novelties ever produced, and we should like to know all the particulars regarding same. We have the largest and most complete collection of Cannas in America, consisting of 170 choice named varieties, etc. We remain,

Yours truly,

L. H. READ & Co.

DO YOU KNOW THE UDO?

For persons who like novelty, an interesting field for experiment is offered by the new Japanese vegetable, udo. Nurserymen have grown the udo under the name of Aralia cordata, for ornamental purposes, for twenty years or more, but as a vegetable it is still comparatively unknown. On rich soil it grows to a height of ten feet or more, producing an ornamental mass of large green leaves and, in the late summer, long loose flower clusters, sometimes three feet in length.

The blanched shoots of the udo have a characteristic flavor. Properly prepared, they are delicious—or so the author of Bulletin No. 84, just published by the U. S. Department of Agriculture, under the title of "Experiments with Udo, the New Japanese Vegetable," has found them. The plant requires little care and with the same space devoted to it, yields approximately the same amount of food for the table as asparagus and is ready for use at about the same time in the spring. After the first frost it dies down each autumn, to come up again in the spring, much as asparagus and rhubarb do. A patch of it can be forced each spring for at least six years, and probably much longer. The flowers attract bees and flies in such numbers that a field of it is usually humming with insects. As a honey plant, therefore, the udo deserves the attention of beekeepers.

Where greenhouses or coldframes are available, the seed should be planted in March or April—one-fourth of an inch deep in soil that consists of equal parts of loam, mold and sand. As soon as the plants are three or four inches high they can be planted out in the ground

The Market.

After Easter, the business in the retail stores slumped considerably and stock has not moved as well as could be wished. Spanish irises, which a week ago could hardly be secured at any price, are now to be had at the buyers' figures and these are low. Tulips have cleared up fairly well this season and the Darwins are now finding a good market. Roses are too plentiful, both indoors and out. Some of the finest La Detroit roses I have ever seen are coming in now, and it is a sad awakening to the grower who expects to get even a fair price for his flowers to hear what the other fellow is selling at. The indoor growers are lumping their stock and sending it in at so much per box, rather than fix a price per dozen. But probably this condition is only the natural swing of the pendulum after the Easter business and there will be plenty of trade yet.

Despite gloomy predictions, the Easter business was fairly good, though not equal in volume to that of last year, especially in cut flowers. Lilies were entirely sold out and probably more were handled this year than ever before. It must be said, though, that quite a number were thrown away or cut and used up before Easter, owing to being too far advanced. Pink Pearl and other rhododendrons sold remarkably well. Pots of lily of the valley sold freely and they were of much better quality than usual. Boston ferns were scarce and not of good quality.

Various Notes.

Welfskills' & Morris Goldenson report a fine Easter. Many big rhododendrons were sold.

At the store of the Freeman-Lewis Co. a good Easter business was reported and the windows are a credit to this up-to-date firm.

M. G. Bridgeford, of Eagle Rock, may be termed the pioneer peony grower of this section and he is sending in remarkably good flowers. His Spanish iris is also good. Looking around his home place, one cannot help being struck with the tidiness and cleanliness everywhere apparent, with not a weed to be seen. Mr. Bridgeford is also attempting to naturalize, or acclimatize, lily of the valley here and the plan looks promising.

Howard & Smith report a banner Easter.

Gus. Swenson, of Eagle Rock, has a fine lot of gladioli coming in.

Frank Wilhelm was rather badly hurt recently, owing to his horse crowding him against a fence, but he is now better, though still lame.

Business keeps up well at the big store and nursery of the Germain Seed & Plant Co. Owing to the improvements carried out at the nursery last fall, the firm now has much the finest centrally situated nursery salesyard in the city and it is crowded all day long with purchasers.

Dieterich & Turner report big sales of rose plants, and, despite the facilities of their big plant, it is difficult to keep pace with the demand for some of the popular varieties and novelties.

H. R. Richards.

SAN FRANCISCO.

The Market.

Everybody interested in the retail trade is optimistic and cheerful, as a result of the unprecedented prosperity which attended Easter business this year. Three cloudy and rainy days preceding Easter made our retailers a little dubious as to what the outcome would be. They all bought heavily and naturally were anxious that action should set in, but by Saturday noon there was more action than they had been looking for, and without exception every retail florist in San Francisco did an excellent business.

We had a profusion of potted lilies and they were naturally the best selling commodity. Pink Pearl rhododendrons were the second best sellers. Rhododendron Catawbiense did not sell so well, nor did the dark-colored varieties of rhododendrons. There were few spiræas, and they were poor. We see some left over in the stores still. Rambler roses have never been exceedingly popular on the Pacific coast and probably never will be, although it might be said that more of them were sold this Easter than any year heretofore. What yellow callas we had to offer went first thing off the reel, probably because they are something of a novelty here. The usual supply of cut lilies was heavily drawn upon, and up to the present writing there have been no large quantities of lilies offered to the market, which is a good sign.

Since Easter, business has held on steadily and, now that Lent is over, will probably continue normal. We have fine American Beauties to offer, with long stems and strong flowers. The warm weather has brought too many of them on at one time, but the demand is steady, and the market is handling them fairly well. Other roses are a little long in supply, due to the weather conditions.

A new arrival of the week is a long-stemmed parrot peony, which has proved an attractive and good seller. Few blooms are available, practically none. Yellow Banksia roses for decorating have been a novelty of the season and it will undoubtedly pay some one to set out some of these plants to be used for decorative work. Another good commodity for decorative work is the yellow broom, practically unused heretofore. The tendency of the buyers seems to be toward novelties. There have been more Spanish iris available during the last few days than heretofore during the season, and they are fine, big flowers.

Indications of the coming of summer are in evidence in that maidenhair and asparagus ferns are arriving in large, liberal bunches. There is nothing new to offer in the way of greens.

Various Notes.

When the steamer China arrived at San Francisco, April 11, in its cargo were forty cases of Phalaenopsis amabi-lis, Phalænopsis Schilleriana and Phalænopsis Stuartiana, imported by the MacRorie-McLaren Co. from the Philippine islands. The shipment contained over 15,000 plants, including specimens with leaves from eighteen to twenty-four inches in length. This is beyond doubt the biggest shipment ever made, and the plants which have been collected for this firm for several years have never been equaled. This importation arrived in San Francisco in perfect condition, and Mr. MacRorie asserts that he will not lose a single plant. This will be a phenomenal record and is undoubtedly due to the fact that the plants have been given such excellent care before being brought into this country.

The Luther Burbank Co. has purchased thirty acres of excellent nursery land just outside of Hayward, having decided to abandon the Broadmoor nurseries, which, they say, are too small for their rapidly developing business. This company has been organized only a short time, and the purchase of this new tract is an indication of early success.

John Vallence, the present manager of C. C. Morse & Co., has decided to take over the nursery end of the business, beginning June 1. Up to the present time Mr. Vallence has been more of an inside man.

The writer, while visiting in Oakland a few days ago, was gratified to hear that, without exception, the Easter trade of the florists there was far ahead of expectations. J. Seulerberger reported the best Easter in five years. Mr. Clark was also more than pleased with the bulk of business which he handled.

The Chas. C. Navlet Co., of San Jose, which has taken over the management of the flower department of the Emporium, featured lilies as a department store commodity for Easter. Mr. Navlet, early Saturday afternoon, was rushing about Oakland and Berkeley, endeavoring to buy up anything that looked like a lily. It is natural to suppose that he had been selling goods over and above the supply that he had laid in. Louis Picetti, who manages the Emporium branch for Mr. Navlet, had a corps of eight men working all Thursday, Friday and Saturday, trying to keep pace with the orders which he had booked.

Albert O. Stein showed a most lavish Easter display, Pink Pearl rhododendrons being his biggest feature. This is the first holiday that Mr. Stein has passed in this place since it has been remodeled, and he is more than pleased with the business results.

The Fairmont Floral Co. reports the best Easter in the last five years; even previous to the fire, the business capacity of the Powell street store was never so heavily taxed.

Podesta & Baldocchi featured a large specimen hydrangea plant and rambler roses in their Easter window. Their stock of lilies and other Easter flowering plants was irreproachable. Mr. Podesta and Mr. Baldocchi both report unprecedented business.

Angelo J. Rossi, of Pelicano, Rossi & Co., who made a special feature of Pink Pearl rhododendrons in their Easter windows, says they advanced their business capacity for Easter over thirty-five per cent. Everybody in their employ was rushed in order to clear up the many orders.

The Market.

The Easter of 1914, with all its hopes and anticipations, has passed, and the consensus of opinion is that, taking it all in all, it hardly fulfilled expectations. The amount of cash taken in was not so large as in former years in the majority of the stores, and people, as a rule, were not paying good prices for flowers, but buying the cheaper grades. In the early part of the week it looked as though lilies were to be a glut, and prices were cut in several instances. The result showed that there was no necessity for anything of the sort, and retailers who got into a panic and cut prices afterwards regretted it, as they could have moved just as many at regular prices. The lilies were sold at 25 cents a bloom in the first-class stores, and down to as low as 10 cents in the third-rate and department stores. The Japs grew and retailed a large quantity and their general retail price was 12½ cents. The quality of the flowers was hardly up to the average of former years; many pots would have been better if sold ten days or two weeks earlier, but some of the growers timed them better and produced good, salable plants. The supply of azaleas and hydrangeas was fully up to the demand. Some remarkably fine specimens were shown, but the market did not seem to require such high-grade specimens and they are still in the stores. The more conservative buyers cleaned up nearly all their stock, having gauged the demand more accurately. Roses and carnations were in fair supply and sold well. The same may be said of tulips. The few remaining daffodils were quickly cleared out. Violets were scarce and in demand. The trade since Easter has been good, with most varieties of cut flowers in good demand.

Various Notes.

Samuel Roake, the Portland fern man, was a visitor here recently. He was welcomed by many of his old friends, and a reception in his honor was held in the American cafe Friday evening, April 10.

Frank Bell got one load of his Easter lilies disposed of in a summary manner. An automobile upset the wagon, and the owner of the machine

Ira V. Wilson, lately of Bryn Mawr, has, we are glad to be able to say, quite recovered his health. He now has charge of the carnation department of the Woodland Floral Co., at Sumner.

Hans H. Rasmussen is busy laying out and planting some ornamental grounds for Lee H. Wakefield, at Anacortes.

A. E. Buxton was going over to Tacoma the first part of last week, but rheumatism held him here. When he recovers, he is going to show them how to grow stock at Van Slyke & Seamons' place.

At the Florists' Club meeting Tuesday, April 14, the resignations of the secretary and treasurer on account of stress of work were accepted. Thomas V. Rhoades was afterward elected secretary and Joseph Stuber, treasurer. An effort is to be made to induce the retailers to take more interest in the club.

Preparations are being made for the first northwestern rose show, to be held here by the Northwestern Rose Society this summer.

"For what we have received and for what we are about to receive, let's be thankful," said a purchaser in one of our stores Easter week; "the Lord has been pretty good to me of late and I want to send half a dozen lilies up to the church." A check for $20 was tendered and received, the balance of check was handed over in cash, and lilies were sent. Finale, check returned, no account. T. W.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

The Easter business was all that could be handled in the limited time, as the trade was slow in getting started and the bulk of the sales came on Friday and Saturday. The weather was satisfactory and this facilitated deliveries. On the whole, there was plenty of stock. The lilies were the best sellers of the week and practically every one was cleaned out. Rhododendrons, azaleas and ramblers were next in order of demand, while tulips, genistas, hydrangeas and spiraeas found a ready sale as inexpensive plants. Cut flowers sold remarkably well. Roses and carnations had the first call; yet sweet peas, tulips and valley were entirely sold out. Callas proved the poorest sellers of the week; it was almost impossible to move them at any price. Violets were scarce; there were few orders taken in advance.

In summing up the business, everyone is satisfied with the results. While there was no increase shown over last year, there was no decrease. There seemed to be more sales, but the sales were smaller and represented more work. While there were some calls for basket arrangements, the sale of these was small in comparison with last year.

Various Notes.

To Pacific Coast Florists:

What stock have you for sale to the trade?

Is it moving as it should? No?

Then tell the trade about it by using the Pacific Coast Pages of The Review.

Pacific Coast advertisers almost invariably report good results. Like this:

Say! That ad's a humdinger for getting the business.—Everett Floral Co., Everett, Wash.

I sold all the Mum cuttings advertised, and you will not hear from me again until I can get some more stock ready. Shall root 100,000 Carnation cuttings for next season, as I know The Review will sell them for me.—Frank Wilhelm, Los Angeles, Cal.

Please cut out of our advertisement in The Review the cyclamen seedlings. We sold all our surplus cyclamen seedlings as a direct result of our advertisement in your paper.—Spokane Greenhouses (Inc.), Spokane, Wash.

We want to say that our last advertisement in The Review brought us orders from both the Atlantic and Pacific coasts. We had, strangely enough, on following days, orders from Salem, Ore., and from Salem, Mass.—State Floral Co., North Yakima, Wash.

We are well pleased with the results obtained by advertising in the Pacific Coast Department of The Review. We sold out clean and refused many orders. The Review surely gives results.—Van Slyke & Seamons, Tacoma, Wash.

The transient rate for space is $1 per inch per insertion. Those who have stock to offer all or a considerable part of the year around should write for contract rates.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

It looks as though there will be a fairly good clean-up this season. In the southwest, where the season is over, there was not much stock to go on the brush pile.

L. G. ENDTZ has arrived in New York for his annual trip among the trade. He states that the old firm of Endtz, Van Nes & Co., of Boskoop, will be dissolved by September 1 and that he will call on the trade for the new firm of L. G. Endtz & Co.

JOHN HALL, of Rochester, N. Y., is a busy man, to judge from his work in compiling the proceedings of the fifty-ninth annual meeting of the Western New York Horticultural Society, which have appeared in a neat appearing volume of good size. This is but one of the organizations which claim Mr. Hall's services as secretary.

NURSERYMEN REJOICE.

Those nurserymen whose business includes the mailing of many small parcels will rejoice over the news that both branches of Congress now have passed the bill which restores the old flat rate of postage on parcels of plants, etc., weighing eight ounces or less. The Senate passed the bill March 9, and the bill came before the House on the unanimous consent calendar April 20. It went to the President April 21 for signature.

The rates of postage on parcels of plants, cuttings, etc., now will be the same as the rates on catalogues; that is, 1 cent for each two ounces up to eight ounces regardless of distance, the zone pound rates applying on parcels weighing over eight ounces.

THE CLEVELAND CONVENTION.

Thirty-ninth Annual Meeting.

Three years after the American Association of Nurserymen was organized at Chicago, with the late Elisha Moody, of Lockport, N. Y., as its first president, the annual meeting of the organization was held at Cleveland. Again, after thirty-five years, the association is to hold its annual meeting, the thirty-ninth, in the Sixth City, June 24, 25 and 26. The Ohio nurserymen are preparing a welcome that will surpass all previous ones and the attractions of this popular convention city and its central location are expected to draw a record attendance.

Will B. Munson, of Denison, Tex.,

We have always found The Review a top notcher as to results received from wholesale advertising of nursery stock.—Atlantic Nursery Co., per D. W. Babcock, Mgr., Berlin, Md., January 16, 1914.

vice-president of the association for Texas, is arranging so that all members from his state will attend the convention in a party and go on the same train to Cleveland. Nurserymen living in Oklahoma, Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri are invited to join the party. Probably parties will be made up in other distant states, to make the journey to the convention the more pleasant.

Headquarters at the Hollenden.

The headquarters of the association will be the Hollenden hotel, one of the leading hotels of the city. It is one of the largest, and its service of the best. It is conducted on the European plan and its rates are: Single room with bath, $2 to $3.50; double, $3.50 to $5; rooms with two baths, $4 to $6.

The management has provided assembly hall, committee rooms and an ample space for large exhibits. The exhibits are expected to be an important feature of the exhibition. Application for space should be made to T. B. West, of Perry, O., chairman of the committee on exhibits. Communications in regard to membership and the badge book should be addressed to John Hall, secretary, 204 Granite building, Rochester, N. Y.

The Program.

Although the opportunities for recreation and social enjoyment will be large and alluring, the program is being made sufficiently interesting to induce members to put in attendance at all the sessions of the association. Among the speakers already on the list are Ex-president John Dayton, on "Competition"; J. R. Mayhew, president of the Southern Nurserymen's Association, on "Problems of Marketing Our Products"; Jefferson Thomas, of Jacksonville, Fla., will speak on "Where Our Trees Are Going"; W. C. Reed will tell of "Pecans for Profit"; the "old man eloquent," C. S. Harrison, of York, Neb., will arouse the enthusiasm of members to the "Mission of Beauty"; John Connon, of Annan, Scotland, has agreed to address the convention on "Trade Conditions on the Other Side"; F. Hogg, of Toronto, will speak for the Canadian nurserymen; Robert Pyle's subject will be "Roses"; Henry Hicks, of Isaac Hicks & Son, will discuss "Fitting Trees to Soil and Climate"; the witty James Parker, of Tecumseh, Okla., has selected "Water" as his subject, but furnishes no hint as to how he proposes to handle it. Ex-President J. W. Hill, of Des Moines, Ia., and George C. Roeding, of Fresno, Cal., will also have places on the program.

D. S. LAKE PROSPEROUS.

That the nursery business is financially not the worst in the world is emphatically borne out by the material condition of D. S. Lake, president of the Shenandoah Nurseries, at Shenandoah, Ia., as shown by the following, clipped from the Shenandoah World:

D. S. Lake is found to be by far the heaviest taxpayer in the district. Upon the nursery properties the total taxes amounted to $2,886.88. But this was only a part of taxes paid by him upon properties in which he owns large

The Market.

The usual after-Easter slump has taken place and business is more or less demoralized. A wave of warmer weather has increased production and made conditions even worse. Many of the wealthy residents have gone, or will soon go, to their country estates and social activity is all but over. An abundance of weddings acts as something of a bolster. Without this, and funeral work, conditions would be bad. Roses are abundant and prices have taken a big tumble. Beauties, which realized $40 to $50 per hundred for Easter, are now going at $12 to $20, and other varieties have fallen in proportion. Such varieties as Mrs. Taft, Maryland, Ward and Sunburst are selling well; others are more or less neglected. Carnations are somewhat of a glut. Violets, except for a few doubles, are over for the season.

Sweet peas are selling as well as anything on the list; valley also is going fairly well. Yellow marguerites are now in adequate supply; white varieties are not wanted at all. Dutch bulbous stock from indoors is hard to move; it also is nearing the end. The season for this has been more profitable than usual. Snapdragons, even the best pink ones, are hardly salable, something that never has happened here before at this season. Such flowers as anemones, ranunculi, ixias, tritonias, Spanish iris and blue cornflowers sell quite well. Lilies have hardly any sale and callas are hard to move. Gardenias are not selling well. Cattleya Mossiae is much preferred to C. Schrederae.

Club Meeting.

There was an attendance of 120 at the meeting of the Florists' Club, April 21. One new member was elected. On the motion of F. E. Palmer the sum of $500 was voted to be devoted to convention expenses. Charles Sander exhibited cyrtopodiums and antirrhinums, for which he received a report of superior merit; he also received a report of merit for Narcissus Olympia, a large trumpet variety. Peter Fisher showed antirrhinums, H. Waldecker had fine Spanish iris and Weld Gardens exhibited Hydrangea Otaksa. Fine standard Dorothy Perkins roses from F. E. Palmer were awarded a cultural report of merit. Prof. Rees, of Amherst, gave a splendid lecture on "Apple Orchard-ing" and Prof. Nehrting also gave an address. A good discussion followed. Patrick Welch and others gave talks on the convention. On the motion of Thomas Roland the question of affiliation was laid on the table.

Various Notes.

J. A. Budlong & Sons Co., among other roses, has J. L. Mock, similar in form to La France, but the center is deeper. It promises to be a good summer rose. Indiana, of a deep rose color, is a wonderfully prolific sort. Cardinal is fine, and so are Fire Flame, Killarney Queen, Maryland, Taft, Double White Killarney, Russell and Sunburst. The latter is well liked, but Shawyer is not cared for. A nice cut of Hadley, which has been planted heavily, already is being made.

MacMulkin had quite an elaborate decoration April 20 for the opening of the new Wilbur theater. He reports a good Easter trade. He had only sixty pot plants unsold out of his whole large stock.

The Westboro Greenhouses, Paul F. Brigham, proprietor, is sending H. T.

Capers a fine lot of Richmond, Killarney and White Killarney roses; also fine carnations, such as Benora, Rosette, White Enchantress, Winsor and Gloria. A new scarlet also is good.

John Newman has had a successful violet season. He had 35,000 singles for Easter, which finished up his crop.

Robert Montgomery had a great crop of roses for Easter. He grows fine stock, his leaders being Richmond, Hillingdon, his favorite yellow; Killarney, White Killarney and Sunburst. He does not like the last named, as it fades out too quickly.

April 18 Wax Bros. had one window entirely devoted to sweet peas, charmingly arranged in baskets tied with chiffon and ribbon on a base of purple velvet. All the best Spencers were included, on 15-inch to 18-inch stems. In another window all flowers were also arranged gracefully in baskets, the specialties being ranunculi, calendulas, double cornflowers and yellow marguerites. These all have a large sale here. The silver medals won for floral and artistic decorations at the last show of the American Sweet Pea Society are displayed here in a neat frame which shows both the front and reverse side of the medals. Easter trade here was good and now wedding orders are keeping the force busy.

S. J. Goddard states that Easter trade with him was the best on record. He finds an increasing call for Begonia Gloire de Chatelaine, which is always in flower, good alike for pots or bed-

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

The Market.

The first part of Easter week rainy weather prevailed, but Friday, Saturday and Sunday were ideal days. Business was satisfactory and came up to expectations in nearly all cases. On the average, it was a little better than last year. There was a large demand for roses, carnations, violets and bulbous stock, and as stock was plentiful there was no real shortage. Potted lilies were almost all sold. Azaleas were not so much in demand. The smaller rose plants sold well, but larger ones did not move readily. Rhododendrons were practically all sold out. Potted bulbous stock was in great demand, also violets, heliotrope, heather, etc. Large baskets did not sell well, but the small ones cleaned up quickly. There were quite a number of church decorations and a lot of funeral work during the rush.

The week after Easter business was good, with a large cut flower trade and a number of wedding decorations and a great deal of funeral work. Pansy plants are coming into the market and quite a number of beds have been set out, but the weather has been too cold for any great rush yet.

Various Notes.

Ostermann & Steele report business good for Easter, and Sheehan says it was away ahead of last year.

New Rose, Killarney Brilliant

THE MOST VALUABLE ROSE INTRODUCED IN MANY YEARS.

We consider this new rose—a sport from the original pink Killarney—the most valuable rose that has been introduced in many years. It is well named Killarney Brilliant, on account of its brilliant color.

It is a great improvement on the original pink Killarney; first, because of its much more brilliant color, it being almost crimson in bright weather, while in midwinter—in dull, cloudy and foggy weather,—when the original pink Killarney loses its brilliancy and becomes badly faded, Killarney Brilliant is as bright and deep a pink as the original variety at its best. In addition to its great superiority in color, the flower is almost twice as large, having from twenty-five to forty full-sized petals.

It has the same desirable color that Killarney Queen possesses, but has double the number of petals, making it a very double and a fuller flower; and it is also very much more productive, having the same habit of growth and the same freedom of bloom as its parent.

We have watched Killarney Brilliant growing during the past winter, planted in the same house with the original and the double pink Killarney, and when those varieties faded so as to be almost unmarketable, Killarney Brilliant was superb. We are thoroughly convinced that it will immediately supplant the original Killarney as the standard market variety, and that every up-to-date grower will be compelled to plant it, on account of its great superiority. A prominent rose grower, who has seen it growing, says it is the only rose he has ever seen that needs no advertising; it sells itself.

INDIANAPOLIS.

The Market.

Trade has been fair since Easter. There has been a little funeral work and stock is being cleaned up daily. Roses are of first-class quality and may be had at from $4 to $8 per hundred. Carnations are not too plentiful at from $2 to $2.50 per hundred. Easter lilies are plentiful at $8 to $12 per hundred. The orchid-flowering sweet peas are being cleaned up daily. Bulbous stock is not so plentiful as it has been heretofore. Home-grown violets are also becoming quite scarce.

Various Notes.

B. F. Hensley, of Knightstown, is sending quantities of stock into this market.

The Indianapolis Flower & Plant Co. has a fine line of bedding stock coming on for the spring trade.

Baur & Steinkamp are cutting some first-class snapdragon.

The May meeting of the State Florists' Association is to be held with Harry White, at North Manchester. W. J. Vesey, Jr., chairman of the finance committee for the fall flower show, is highly pleased with the way in which the contributions are coming in.

Hartje & Elder had a fine cut of carnations for Easter. John Hartje is giving his young chrysanthemum stock a great deal of attention this spring, as he expects to carry off most of the premiums at the fall flower show.

The A. Wiegand's Sons Co. is showing a large line of freshly imported box trees.

JOY!

This is a Carnation that did not get a reputation over night. We have been handling it for a little over two years and ought to know something about it.

IT'S A REAL RED

It is the kind of Carnation that proves the florist's friend. Shipped over a distance, it will look as good on arrival as when sent. This feature appeals to us because we know what it means to the man who is depending on us.

JOY has been described by Mr. E. H. Blameuser, of Niles Center, Ill.—the man who raised it—as “a strong grower, early, very free and continuous bloomer, with strong calyx and good stem.” That should be good enough for anybody.

EVANSVILLE, IND.

The Market.

Business has been good since Easter, especially in funeral work, of which there has been considerable. At this writing the weather is considerably cooler and will delay spring planting.

Various Notes.

Karl Zeidler has an immense stock of spring plants in excellent condition. Geraniums form the greatest number, of which he has about 15,000.

Austin Wallace has planted the greater part of his house to Killarney. This will be his first trial with roses in his house.

Theodore Kuebler, of the Santa Rosa Fruit Farm, has had a successful season selling mum cuttings. He is building another house for stock mums.

J. C. Elsperrmann has just received an importation of plants, including palms, araucarias, etc.

Otto Kuebler, of Newburgh, has almost decided to grow ferns for wholesale entirely. He advertises in The Review and gets results. E. L. F.

ITHACA, N. Y.

At a recent meeting of the Agricultural Council of Cornell University two appointments were made to the staff in the department of floriculture. David Lumsden was appointed assistant professor of floriculture, and Clark L. Thayer, of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, was named as assistant in investigation. Since coming to this country nineteen years ago, Mr. Lumsden has spent thirteen years on commercial places and six years at the New Hampshire Agricultural College, where he has been in charge of the work in floriculture. Mr. Thayer is a native of Enfield, Mass., and a graduate of the Massachusetts Agricultural College in the class of 1913.

Prof. E. A. White states that the staff of the department of floriculture at Cornell is now the largest of any in the United States. It consists of the following: Prof. Edward A. ## BALTIMORE.

The Market.

Since Easter, business conditions have been much depressed. Cut stock is plentiful, with a somewhat poor demand. Lilies are to be had in any quantity, the majority being belated stock intended for Easter sales. Roses are of good quality; so, also, are carnations, which are not much in demand. Sweet peas are rather scarce and all in sight are bought up at fair prices. Violets of good quality are scarce, although plenty of poor stock is to be had at low prices. The retail stores have plenty of potted plants, especially azaleas, which are being offered at a considerable reduction from Easter prices.

Any number of southern jonquils are to be seen on the streets and have been offered as low as 5 cents per dozen, thus lowering the price of indoor stock. There were a number of large weddings last week and also a good deal of funeral work, which used a lot of otherwise surplus stock.

Various Notes.

John Richmond, formerly associated with M. Richmond, on Erdman avenue, has gone to San Francisco, Cal., to engage in business.

Charles Siegwart, on Old Frederick road, had some of the finest specimens of Hydranga Otaksa ever seen about this city for Easter sales. Some of the plants had a spread of four to five feet and averaged twenty to thirty flowers to the plant. They were in good demand at good prices.

Edward Kress has registered his new seedling red rose under the name of Defiance, which suits the rose well. It is of a shade similar to Richmond and has a good odor. This variety was a seedling of Etoile de France and Gruss an Teplitz, and is said to be good as a forcing variety but especially good as an outdoor sort. Mr. Kress has a bench of it in good crop and it is well worth a visit.

W. F. E.

Varysburg, N. Y.—Emry I. Bennett has opened his greenhouse business under the name of the Crystal Spring Greenhouse, so called because a clear spring fifty feet above the level of the greenhouse supplies water for the plant.

CYCLAMEN.

200,000 GIANT FLOWERING CYCLAMEN SEEDLINGS AND BLOOMING PLANTS.

For the last 16 years we have selected three-fourths of our seed-bearing cyclamen stock before Xmas, to assure early blooming plants, and claim the finest commercial strain in this country; no flake of many so-called English varieties. Our aim is strong growers that don't have to be petted to be grown into a choice salable plant—a well built, five-petaled flower (many of them at one time), with well marked foliage; every plant an ideal, a prize winner. Received first prize at the Cleveland show and first and second at Toledo, early November, when blooming cyclamen were scarce.

STRONG AUGUST SOWN SEEDLINGS, once transplanted, $3.50 per 100; $30.00 per 1000. Cash with order. Cultural directions with all orders.

C. Winterich, Cyclamen Specialist, Defiance, O.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for 40 years and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers to date. Hardy, field-grown plants from seed sown in August, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky. Good stock to transplant which will come in bloom during last half of May. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion. $4.00 per 1000. Cash with order.

The Market.

Despite the disagreeable weather prevailing here on the Saturday preceding Easter, the trade was the best the local trade has ever enjoyed. Practically everything, in both plants and cut flowers, of good quality sold well. Roses were in best demand. Violets were scarce and of poor quality. Sweet peas and valley were in heavy demand, large quantities of the latter being used in corsage work. In plants lilies, hydrangeas, roses and bulbous stock sold best.

Various Notes.

Honaker the Florist had a fine display of both cut flowers and plants. He reports the best Easter trade he has ever had. The shipping business was immense. David B. Honaker was married April 18 to Miss Lillian Irvine, of this city. They are in New York on their honeymoon.

Michler Bros. Co. reports a general clean-up for Easter, lilies and bulbous stock being their best sellers. This firm is unusually busy just now with landscape work. A new house for roses is about completed.

The John A. Keller Estate had an excellent display of Easter stock. Three houses of hydrangeas, lilies, roses, azaleas and bulbous stock made a sight worth going to see. The cuts of roses, carnations, peas, etc., were in just right for Easter. It required some hustling to handle so large a quantity of stock. Their business was fully up to expectations.

Kelley & Current had the best lilies in this market, which found a ready sale. A big supply of roses and spiræas sold well. They had a downtown stand during the rush.

Miss Fannie White reports the best Easter of her experience. Her display for Easter consisted of a general line of well grown stock. She is now busy getting ready for the spring trade. Thousands of plants are being grown for cemetery planting.

Keller, Florist, disposed of large quantities of both plants and cut flowers for Easter. An increase was noted for cut flowers and corsage work over last year. This firm has been busy of late with funeral work. J. P. K.

HELENA, MONT.

Weather conditions up to and including Easter were ideal, with the result that everything cleaned up. Compared with last year, when cold weather prevented early shopping, trade showed a substantial increase. Baskets of plants and flowers were much in demand. Roses, especially Radiance, were in good supply and of first-class quality. Snapdragons and bulbous stock were plentiful, but not in excess of the exceptionally strong demand.

The State Nursery Co. reports a splendid business. Easter lilies were in good shape, but were not enough to go around. Both automobiles were kept busy and deliveries were made in prompt and careful shape. T. W. H.

DIRT BANDS—Experience in Using Them

Cut Flowers

United Phone.

Bird-in-Hand, Pa., March 23, 1914.

F. W. Rochelle & Sons,
Chester, N. J.

Gentlemen: In reply to your query would state that I planted seedling stock plants and snapdragon cuttings in the first lot of bands that I received from you early in January.

We took some of these out and planted them where they are to remain about the 15th of February. They made a GOOD GROWTH while in the bands, and transplanted AS THOUGH they had never been moved at all.

I have now about 14,000 carnation plants started in 2-in. bands which are making a RAPID GROWTH, scarcely losing a plant in transplanting from the sand.

I also have about 20,000 aster plants transplanted in 2-in. bands which can stay there till time to plant out of doors WITHOUT FEAR OF BECOMING ROOT BOUND, as would be the case if I used 2-in. pots.

Plants SELDOM BECOME ROOT BOUND enough to injure them in THE DIRT BANDS, and DO NOT REQUIRE NEAR THE AMOUNT OF ATTENTION that a pot plant does, in watering, shifting, transplanting, etc.

I make my bands and set them in flats, as I make them up, each flat holding 117.

When we get crowded indoors it takes but a short time to move the flats to a cold frame, where we harden them off before setting them in the field.

One man can set MORE THAN ANOTHER TIME AS MANY (twice as many) plants in the field from these bands and flats than he can from pots, and after he is through DOES NOT HAVE THE BOTHER OF GATHERING UP, CLEANING, and STORING AWAY A LOT OF POTS.

I believe anyone using these bands ONCE WILL BECOME A REGULAR CUSTOMER.

Yours truly,

Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

WILL THE BOILER SUFFICE?

I propose to build two connected greenhouses, one of them  $14\frac{1}{4} \times 130$  and the other  $14\frac{1}{4} \times 120$ . The height to the eaves and to the middle gutter will be four feet; the height to the ridge in each house will be eight feet. The side walls and gable ends will be without glass and will be constructed of two thicknesses of 1-inch drop siding, with building paper between. The houses will run east and west.

I can get a ten horse-power return flue tubular boiler, seven feet long and thirty-six inches in diameter, with twelve 3-inch flues. The fire-box is about  $20 \times 36$  inches. Can I heat these two houses with this boiler, using hot water? I wish to maintain a night temperature of 50 to 55 degrees, here in the climate of central Ohio. Will it be necessary to put the boiler in a pit? What size and height of smokestack should be used with this boiler? How should the piping be arranged, using 2-inch returns? In the north house there will be three raised benches; in the south house, two raised benches and one solid bed. C. A. B.

To heat the houses described to 55 degrees in zero weather will require about 1,200 square feet of radiation. If the boiler described has an actual rating of ten horse-power, it will answer for the two houses, but I cannot figure its capacity as much over seven horse-power so far as heating surface is concerned. There is a slight excess of grate area, so I conclude that it would be possible to maintain a temperature of 55 degrees except in zero weather, and by carefully tending the fires it should be possible to keep the temperature up to 50 degrees in any weather that is probable in central Ohio.

It will be advisable to have a 10-inch smokestack forty feet high or a 12-inch stack thirty feet high, and to place the boiler in a pit. For radiation use two  $2\frac{1}{2}$ -inch flows on the plates in each house, with three 2-inch returns connected with each of the flows.

Efficient and profitable handling of condensation; returns condensation to boiler at initial temperature—perfect circulation; proper drainage; removes large proportion of air as well as condensation. Boiler is situated on top of ground; convenient; no "up and down stairs"; labor-saving; economy in fuel.

These are only some of the reasons why a Morehead is needed in your greenhouse. Have our engineers give you complete information. It's absolutely free.

THE FUEL MARKET.

The market reporter for the Black Diamond presents a decidedly gloomy picture of the condition of this week's coal business, stating that the market is dull as a result of general business depression, that "storage coal continues to satisfy all demands and the market is without purchasing power." The natural inference would be that now is a good time to make arrangements for the purchase of coal.

The authority referred to goes on to

WHEN YOU BUY—GET A KROESCHELL
THE BOILER OF GENUINE EFFICIENCY

The customers' interest first—is the basis of the Kroeschell standard, and this principle makes the Kroeschell policy the most liberal of all in the greenhouse boiler business.

The great variety of boilers that we make places us in a commanding position. We make every type of boiler that is used, from the smallest house heater to the largest water tube steam boiler (600 horsepower). For the above reason we can furnish the most efficient boiler unit in every case.

It is the Kroeschell principle to supply only that type of boiler which is best suited to the conditions, and under no circumstances do we take any other stand.

Every Boiler of the Highest Standard

MATERIAL—Governed by Kroeschell specifications—the best that money and brains can produce. WORKMANSHIP—the kind that is an inspiration to all boiler makers. BOILER EFFICIENCY—determined by actual tests under working conditions. BOILER RATINGS—honest and true blue—guaranteed actual working capacities.

Probably you have wondered why the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler is not sold by any of the greenhouse material and construction companies. In justice to all concerned we feel it is our duty to state that the Kroeschell Boiler is never sold by any one but—The KROESCHELL BROS. CO.—We have no agents, and as our prices are based on sales direct from factory to user, we do not quote anyone dealing in boilers special resale prices. Our stand in this matter has brought out a lot of competition; nevertheless, the great efficiency of the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler cannot be disputed, and in spite of the keen competition the Kroeschell Greenhouse Boiler is heating more glass than any other make.

state that "contracting continues to be the only feature of any importance in the smokeless market. The operators started to close their contracts early in February and have been appealing to the buyers persistently for the last two months. Prior to April 1, a good part of the all-rail business had been closed, and in the last week or ten days some more contracts have been signed. The 1914 business, as a consequence, has about been hooked and now attention is being centered upon the lake trade. As a general rule, buying of coal on the lake is decidedly backward this year, due to uncertainties over mining conditions. However, the smokeless operators, who are confronted by no such uncertainties, have been able to fix a definite price and therefore have been able to close up a good deal of business.

"On spot coal in Chicago the smokeless market has been variable. Some of the speculative coal shipped in last week has been cleaned up and, due to a rigid restriction of shipments, the market has been strengthened. The exceedingly low prices of last week have, in the main, been withdrawn and $1.00 a ton is about the low price on spot run of mine coal. Standard shippers are not deviating from their new circular figure of $1.25 for mine-run."

Mrs. J. L. Miller sold everything in pot plants at Easter, with the exception of Von Sions. The call for double narcissi is so small that none will be grown another season. Singles sold well. ## ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

After a busy season, business usually slackens up and becomes quite slow, but this cannot be said of the business we have had since Easter. A number of weddings have taken place and the call for decorations has been heavy.

Stock is arriving in good condition generally. The quantity of roses is larger than trade calls for, but the stock is in good shape and will carry over. There seems to be a heavy supply of short-stemmed stock. Some wonderfully good American Beauties are on the market. Prices are reasonable. Callas are arriving again and the supply of Easter lilies keeps up well. Valley is plentiful. Cattleyas are in fine condition and sell well. Sweet peas are improving in quality and length of stem, retailing at $2 per hundred. Violets are not coming in fast at present and are small. Single and double tulips are in profusion. Poeticus sells well. Yellow and white daisies, mignonne, pansies, forget-me-nots and German stocks are much sought for. The supply of green goods is about normal.

Various Notes.

Charles E. Sharpe has been away on a visit to Hornell, N. Y., for two or three days.

Otis Bassage, who has been connected with the Rochester Floral Co. for the last three and one-half years, will leave the company's employ April 18, and return to his fruit farm, at Webster, N. Y.

Miss Rose E. Brown, who contracted a severe cold during Easter week, was home sick with a bad attack of grip all last week. She is now steadily improving and will soon be able to return to work again.

A visit to the greenhouses of C. W. Curtis, of Irondequoit, N. Y., found everything in good condition. Never before have his carnations looked so well as now. A beautiful white pelargonium, the cuttings of which came direct from Germany and which is named Easter Palm, is showing fine blooms. Pelargonium Easter Greeting is also here and promises to be a good seller. He has several thousand geraniums in pots ready for bedding purposes. A new Lord & Burnham house is being erected and will be finished in a short time.

William Hooper, head gardener of the Whitney estate, has probably the finest pansies in town. The flowers measure from three to three and one-half inches across.

George Cramer, who was helping the S. A. Anderson Co., of Buffalo, during the Easter rush, has returned to town.

Good, hardy shrubs and plants are on sale at the store of the Mauer-Haap Co.

GLEN COVE, N. Y.

The monthly meeting of the Nassau County Horticultural Society was held April 8, at Pembroke hall, with President H. Gaut in the chair. A letter was read from the National Association of Gardeners, inviting all societies interested in the coöperation movement each to appoint a committee of three, to be known as the coöperative committee, to work hand in hand with a similar committee of the N. A. G. Edward Rorke, of Locust Valley, and Leon Mamfroy, of Roslyn, were elected to membership. Mrs. W. A. Rossiter, of Glen Cove, was elected to honorary membership.

Judges for the monthly exhibits were S. J. Trepess, James Duthie and George Ashworth. Awards were made as follows:

Twelve large trumpet narcissi—J. W. Everitt, first.

Twelve early single tulips—H. Gaut, first.

One pan hyacinths—F. Honeyman, first.

Henry Gaut received a cultural certificate for a fine collection of twelve greenhouse-grown vegetables and herbs; F. Honeyman, a certificate for a fine specimen schizanthus, and H. Gaut, a certificate for two pans of the new Holland iris, which were extremely fine. Honorable mention was given to James McCarthy for a vase of carnations and to James MacDonald for a vase of double tulips.

Mr. Wilkinson, of the New York state department of agriculture, gave an interesting and instructive address on "Home Gardens," which was short, owing to the lecturer's having to catch a train, but was enjoyed by all present. F. E. Conine also addressed the meeting. J. J. Levesson, of the Brooklyn parks, will give an illustrated lecture on "Long Island Trees," Thursday afternoon, May 7, at the Glen theater, Glen Cove. The secretary was instructed to write to Mr. Wilkinson regarding the vegetables shown at some of the New York state fairs, which are usually tables with collections of monstrosities of the vegetable kingdom, instead of vegetable exhibits such as are staged by the average private gardener.

Dates of this society's shows for 1914 are: Rose show, June 9; dahlia show, October 6; chrysanthemum show, October 29 and 30. Exhibits for the next meeting, Wednesday, May 13, are twelve Darwin tulips, mixed; a vase of a flowering shrub and three heads of lettuce. Harry Jones, Cor. Sec'y.

Dixon, Ill.—Charles O. Engel has purchased an interest in the Swartley greenhouses, at Sterling, and now receives stock from this concern for his store, the Rosery.

GREENHOUSE SHADING

No. 6 High Street, MORRISTOWN, N. J.

AFTER twenty-five years' experience in Greenhouse work, with Lord & Burnham Company, in the glazing and painting department, I am convinced that what is most needed in this line is a good shading, and I am pleased to advise you that I have the real thing, which I am sure you will find to be just what you are looking for.

This shading is beneficial to the painted wood, as it does not contain any gasoline or naphtha which would destroy the paint. In addition, it is beneficial to the glass also, for you will find that when the shading is removed the glass retains its former brilliancy.

As to its application, this is a very easy matter. It can be either sprayed on or put on with a soft brush. For real good work, however, I would recommend the use of a soft brush.

Another advantage of this shading is that when it is no longer needed, it can be removed without any difficulty, leaving the glass, as before stated, with its original brilliancy.

I am making this up in gallon cans, in three shades—light green, light blue and pure white. When ordering, kindly mention the color desired.

I trust that you will kindly favor me with a trial order to prove its worth, after which I have no doubt whatever but that you will continue its use.

WASHINGTON, D. C.

The Market.

Washington is experiencing its first touch of summer and the markets are flooded with stock of all kinds. Prices have dropped materially. Business has dropped off quite heavily, although some nice opportunities are occurring for wedding and dinner decorations. There is, however, a general complaint of poor business and this applies to many lines. Some choice stock is being received in roses and snapdragon, the latter being exceptionally fine.

It was surprising to note the large number of potted plants that were left over after Easter. The business this year was but fair, although not falling below expectations. Corsage bouquets were in greater demand this year than ever before, but they were mostly of the dollar variety. High priced plants failed to find a market; everything had to be of a medium price or it stuck.

Various Notes.

Although it is reported that fewer peddlers' licenses have been taken out this year than ever before, it does not seem as though the streets are any the less populated by those vending flowers. As a result of the agitation by the florists, these peddlers will come under a closer watch on the part of the police officials.

Fred H. Kramer is confined to his home by illness. He had a narrow escape from an attack of pneumonia, but was reported to have passed through the dangerous period April 19. It will, however, be several days before Mr. Kramer can again attend to business.

Society folks of Washington have adopted a new style in the wearing of bouquets, brought about by the tango, and Miss Eleanor Wilson, who is soon to become the bride of Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, was recently seen wearing a corsage bouquet at her right shoulder. When in this position, while the wearer is dancing the tango, the flowers are safe from harm, whereas, with the new dances, a corsage bouquet worn in the usual place would soon be crushed. Thus the tango bouquet has come into fame and an opportunity is given to the florists to produce something just a little bit different from the usual to further increase their sales.

KNOXVILLE, TENN.

The Market.

The weather was good and made deliveries easy for Easter. The trade for that day showed a big increase over last year's. Cut flowers were greatly in demand; roses, carnations and violets were in special request and fell short of the demand. Plants had a good sale, but, aside from lilies, people were looking for novelties in this line.

Since Easter the cloudy weather and rains have interfered with sales and delayed outdoor work. Stock has been fairly good, and the slump was not as big as was anticipated.

Various Notes.

C. L. Baum says this is his last year with bedding stock and he is trying to sell out clean. Early orders made delivery easy for Easter and out of 600 deliveries there were only four complaints. The public was hunting for novelties and the supply of home-made birch-bark rustic baskets sold out completely. Cut flowers were most in demand, and pot plants did not sell well, although lilies, azaleas, rhododendrons and pot valley sold out.

A. H. Dailey found roses more in demand than carnations, with few calls for lilies.

Addison J. McNutt estimates his increase in Easter trade this year as seventy-five per cent. He had a fine cut of white roses, sweet peas and snapdragon. Carnations were scarce. Violets were asked for by many, but the warm weather had cut them off.

Spiræas and potted lilies sold extremely well, while cut flowers were in strong demand, with Mrs. Rosa Hall Ryno. Trade since Easter has continued good.

Getting out young stock keeps all hands busy at the Howell Nursery Co. The season for shipping shrubbery is about over.

"Business in seeds is getting back to normal," is the report of D. R. Mayo. The recent rains have retarded planting.

B. F. Hensley, of Knightstown, Ind., who has a plant of about 75,000 square feet of glass, was a visitor here Easter week. He was returning home after a visit of several weeks with his parents in North Carolina. A. J. M.

Scotch Soot

Where there is a house that is just full of buds almost ready to show color, nothing will turn better color into the flowers than a little soot, that can be scattered over the benches, before watering. The amount applied should not be excessive, as the soot is very strong and may damage some of the foliage somewhat. Apply just enough to blacken the surface of the soil in the benches and let it go at that. Better a little oftener than too much all at once.

About the Cost of Greenhouses

IN figuring the cost of a greenhouse, too many growers put too much emphasis on what the materials cost and too little on what the erection costs.

In fact, some simply don't know what it actually costs to erect their houses. They put them up during the slack season, when their men can work at it at odd times. No careful record is kept of the time the men really are working on it.

Whether it's slack time or busy times, your men have to be paid just the same and you can't dodge erection costs that way.

It has been proven over and over again that the best iron frame house we build can be put up, by either your men or our men, in less time than it takes to erect either an all-cypress or half-iron frame house.

Your glass costs you the same, no matter what construction you buy. So does your masonry; your painting; your benching; your heating; your ventilating apparatus.

Then why not put the cost of all those things into a Hitchings house of everlasting lastingness?

This comparative cost of construction is a thing we would like to sit right down and talk over with you from a to z. We have some facts and figures that will prove mighty interesting. Let's get together—we two.

WHY TELL TRADE ONLY? TELL THE PUBLIC TOO!

Getting telegraph orders from other Florists has heretofore been the effort of Retailers; now it is to get orders to send

HE florist who rakes in the profits is the one who, in the popular phrase, "gets 'em going and coming." The efforts of the retailers seem now to be largely devoted to getting the profits from the telegraph business as it is coming—to filling the orders the other fellow has taken. Why not work on the other end of the game for a while and get the profits from the orders going as well as coming?

Much effort is being made to let the other members of the trade know how well we can take care of their wire orders. Let's tell the public, now, how well we and the other fellows can take care of flower orders by telegraph. Of course, the filling of wire orders is a part of the business that is not to be slighted, but the development of the business depends on somebody's efforts to get the orders from the public. Besides, the more orders one sends, the more orders one will be likely to receive, naturally.

The Ignorant Public.

The general use of wire delivery can not be brought about until the public understands what the delivery of flowers by telegraph means and how easy it is for the public to use it. A phrase, such as "Flowers by telegraph," or "Telegraph delivery of flowers," is plain enough to florists, but what does it mean to the young man whose knowledge of the workings of a florist's store includes only the salesman's order book and the cash register? The telegraph is to him only an exceedingly expensive means of communication, and he doesn't know the name of a single florist in the town to which his girl has gone! Who sends the telegram and to whom? Doesn't it cost a great deal extra to deliver flowers so far away? These questions sound ridiculous in florists' ears—that's because they know all about it. The young man cited is an extremely ignorant person, to be sure, but it's a safe bet, ten to one, that he will never be any wiser on this subject unless florists, in some way or other, make these points clear. Probably three-fourths of the florists' customers are in complete ignorance in regard to this new branch of the business, beyond a word or two, or a phrase, that has come to their ears.

Easy to Tell.

It is not so hard as it sounds to remove this state of ignorance. It may be done by the mere statement in the florist's advertising that he is able, through his association with florists in other cities all over the world, to deliver promptly, anywhere, orders that are left with him, at no extra cost, or, if such is the case, at no extra cost beyond the charge for the telegram. If the individual florist chooses to amplify this statement by a more detailed explanation, he will undoubtedly lose nothing by it; it will rather prove to be that sort of interesting information that is so effectively used as advertising copy nowadays. He will at least avoid the indefinite and meaningless statements that lessen the value of so much of the work of the ad-writer who knows too much about his subject.

Many Means.

The possibilities of such advertising have evidently set going a number of florists' thinkers, and several means of bringing this feature of the business before the public mind have been tried with more or less success. The daily newspaper, of course, presents the easiest and, in most cases, the cheapest means of covering a wide field. The advertisement reproduced, three quarters of the size of the original, on this page, was used by a Chicago retailer to bring this one feature clearly before the flower buyers of his city. It is not without value to note that the circulation of the issue of the Chicago Tribune in which this advertisement appeared was sworn to be 261,276, which means that, by the usual conservative estimate of four readers to a copy, it reached over a million people.

There are other ways of telling people the same story, all effective in their own way. Circulars and post cards can be used to decided advantage, bringing the point emphatically home to the florist's own patrons. Posters in the store and window can be made productive of results if they are well got up. The members of the F. T. D. are finding good use for the poster shown in the February 12 issue of The Review.

Stickers and Windows Used.

A novel form of advertising now being got out especially for this line of the florists' business is in the shape of stickers, bound in books, which can be put on each letter, statement and order sent out by the florist, thus keeping telegraph delivery constantly before the eyes of the patrons of his store.

Not the least effective means of attracting the public's notice to wire delivery is window decoration. Several of these, of especial merit, have had notice in The Review. For instance, the St. Valentine's day window decoration of Edward Seeery, at his Passaic and Paterson, N. J., stores, described in The Review for February 26, was a notable one. The circular was distributed from house to house throughout the section of the city from which they draw their patronage, and it was enclosed with May statements and such parcels as permit of putting in advertising. There was just a little too much matter on the circular to get a thorough reading in places where life is complex, but where things are taken a little easier "the more the merrier" applies as well to business literature as to other things. The circular brought Frey & Frey plenty of business. It would have made a splendid newspaper advertisement.

STARTING THE BUYING EARLY.

Mothers' day, like every other special flower day, brings a big rush at the last minute. Gradually the trade is finding out that a big bunch of business cannot be transacted in a few hours and that a really worth-while total demands an early start.

The reproduction on page 12 of the advertisement of Jacob Schulz, reduced to one-fourth its original size, shows how that enterprising Louisville retailer started the business early last season. The advertisement appeared three days before Mothers' day. It was followed by an advertisement making a special offer for Mothers' day—a general assortment of flowers and plants, without a word about white carnations. It was demonstrated that the people buy what they are told to buy—that it is just as easy to sell boxes of mixed cut flowers as it is boxes of white carnations.

BY RUBBER STAMP.

One of the simplest methods of advertising Mothers' day is that employed last season by the Idle Hour Nurseries, Macon, Ga. A neat rubber stamp was procured some weeks ahead of Mothers' day and on everything that went out in the two weeks before the event there was a reminder of the approaching call for flowers. It worked so well that this year the stamp will be used again. This is what it will say:

MOTHERS' DAY
Sunday, May 10, 1914.
Please let us have your orders early.

"SOLD EVERYTHING."

Full-page advertisements have come into fashion in many cities, but the one reproduced on this page was the first any florist ever had published in the newspapers of Texarkana. G. W. Moffett and P. W. Mackley, who own the Majestic Floral Co., of Texarkana, after reading The Review's Mothers' day suggestions, issue of April 24, 1913, decided to try strong publicity, having a large supply of stock. The local newspaper, the Four States Press, got up a strong display for them and printed a story concerning the origin of Mothers' day. As to results, the advertiser wrote to The Review:

"This full-page advertisement was a great benefit to us, as we had a nice supply of stock. When our carnations were sold out the people were willing to take roses, sweet peas or any other flowers. The demand so far exceeded our expectations that we had to turn down a lot of calls. We truly hope that all florists had as good a business on Mothers' day as came to us through following the suggestions made in the articles in The Review."

The Texarkana gentlemen evidently got from their advertising all the results they could use, but it is manifest that they did not get the full benefit of the advertising—they were too late. Their advertisement, which is reproduced, much reduced in size, on this page, appeared in the Sunday morning paper of Mothers' day. At the latest it

ORIGIN OF MOTHER'S DAY
Some three or four years ago Miss Anna Jarvis of Philadelphia originated the idea of every one wearing a White Carnation in memory of the best Mother on earth. YOUR Mother, if the dear old lady were dead. The idea took hold of the people like wildfire on a prairie, and as we are all creatures of sentiment, more or less, every one began wearing a White Carnation.
The happy thought thus struck a florist in the South that the drug mother should also be remembered, and that a bright colored Carnation be worn in the buttonhole or at the corsage. Hence the suggestion.
"A White Carnation for Mother's memory—A Bright Carnation for Mother's living."
The second Sunday in May has been designated as "Mother's Day," and already the governors of forty-seven states have issued proclamations relative to its observance.

should have appeared Saturday morning, and some advertisers have found Friday the better day. If a Sunday morning page sold them out, a half-page printed Saturday morning in so good a paper as the Four States Press evidently would have done the work a day earlier, and they could have joined the Mothers' day congregation at the little church around the corner. No use advertising for Sunday. "Go to church Sunday," or to the baseball game. Don't try to make more work Sunday. Six days a week is enough for any man.

A WORLD-WIDE OBSERVANCE.

The Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., as an advertisement, has sent its customers a display card on which it is said that "Mothers' day is the one holiday the whole world can observe as one nation. Wear any flower—or your Mother's favorite."

FERTILIZER FOR VINCAS.

Would you advise the use of liquid sheep manure and nitrate of soda in forcing along Vinca variegata? What would be about the right solution of the soda?

E. D. C.

Liquid cow or sheep manure is safer than nitrate of soda. The latter is a powerful stimulant, but tends to produce a soft growth. In using nitrate of soda, one pound is sufficient for fifty gallons of water.

C. W.

TAXES AGAIN.

The Nebraska florists are up against the same proposition that is confronting the trade in Ohio, where an effort is being made to escape the payment of taxes on growing stock in greenhouse and nursery. Owners of greenhouses in Kearney have refused to list their growing plants for taxation. The owners say greenhouse stock is the same as a farmer's growing crop and is not assessable. All property is supposed to be listed April 1, but as farmers have no growing crops at that time and have no assurance that they will have a crop, their planted grain or growing grass is not assessed. Secretary Henry Seymour, the questions and answers man of the state board of assessment, says: "The board ruled long ago that the stock in greenhouses is in the same class with merchandise or nursery stock and should be assessed. Greenhouse products are the stock in trade of florists and are drawn upon the year around for purposes of sale."

RETAIL STORE MANAGEMENT

WHAT THE LEADERS IN THE TRADE ARE DOING

KANSAS CITY STYLE.

The Florists' Club at Kansas City is doing things a little differently from other similar organizations. For instance, they are taking up for discussion the problems connected with flower store and greenhouse management, seeking solutions of trade troubles. At a recent meeting the discussion turned to this season's shortage of hardy cut ferns. It was pointed out that the supply in Kansas City is erratic this season, there being times when it is almost impossible to get ferns; "a panic in ferns," as one speaker described it. The matter was referred to M. H. Smith, chairman of the press committee, with instructions to gather information regarding the situation, to be reported at the next meeting of the club.

THE TWO SALESMEN.

[With Apologies to Walt Mason and System.]

Two flower salesmen went one day to work for Florist Jones; each drew on Saturday, as pay, eleven big round bones. "It isn't much," said Jones, "but then, do well, and you'll get more; I'd like to have some high-priced men around this blamed old store. You'll find I'm always glad to pay as much as you are worth, so let your curves from day to day astonish all the earth."

Then Salesman Number One got down and buckled to his work; and people soon, throughout the town, were talking of that clerk. He was so full of snap and vim, so cheerful and serene, that people liked to deal with him, and hand him good long green. In busy times he'd stay at night to straighten things around, and never show a sign of spite, or raise a doleful sound. He never feared that he would stay a half an hour too long, but he sold flowers throughout the day with cheerful smile and song.

And ever and anon Brer Jones would say: "You're good as wheat! I raise your stipend seven bones, and soon I will repeat!" And now that Salesman Number One is manager, they say; each week he draws a bunch of mon big as a load of hay.

But Salesman Number Two was sore because his pay was small; he sighed, "The owner of this store has seven kinds of gall. He ought to pay me eighteen bucks, and more as I advance. He ought to treat me white—but shucks! I haven't got a chance."

Determined to do just enough to earn his meager pay, he watched the clock, and cut up rough if late he had to stay. He saw that other salesman climb, the man of smiles and songs; but still he fooled away his time, and brooded o'er his wrongs.

He's still employed at Jones' store, but not, alas! as clerk; he cleans the windows, sweeps the floor, and does the dirty work. He sees young fellows make their start and prosper and advance, and sadly sighs, with breaking heart, "I never had a chance!"

And hundreds raise that same old wail throughout the florists' trade; you hear that gurgle, false and stale, wherever failure's made. The men who never had a chance are scarce as chickens' teeth, and chaps who simply won't advance must wear the goose-egg wreath.

UNIQUE TABLE DECORATION.

The motley group of guests in variegated costume seated around the table in the accompanying illustration is enough to attract attention of itself, and, with the addition of several other features not at all common, may certainly be called a unique decoration for a dinner table. Around a miniature oval table, sixteen inches wide and twenty-four inches in length, were seated, when all were present, twenty-four miniature figures, representing a fancy-dress party of a society dancing club. The little table and its guests were in the midst of a miniature roof garden, which was illuminated and decorated with flowers and beds of flowers.

The entire roof garden, with the tiny party seated around the miniature table, was placed in the center of a large table, at which the twenty-four life-sized guests of this dancing club were to dine. In an adjoining room was a Victrola, which was boxed up so that the sound issued through a pipe that ended in a funnel under the little roof garden. Needless to say, the twenty-four life-sized guests found much entertainment in this novel decoration, which was from the store of the fanciful "F. T. D." Pochelon, at Detroit, Mich.

A DECORATION OF DISTINCTION.

A piece of work worthy of more than ordinary note is the church wedding decoration shown in the illustration on page 15. The fact that the photographer has done his work unusually well adds to the value of the reproduction and brings out the beauty of the original effect. The decoration was done by Philip L. Carbone, of Boston, for an Easter wedding at the Arlington Street church, in Boston, and is rated by this store as one of the most important pieces of work its force ever undertook.

About 300 rambler roses, mostly Dorothy Perkins and Lady Gay, were brought into bloom for the occasion. In addition to these, 4,000 Lilium candidum and two dozen white lilacs were used. The trimmings of roses on the columns reached almost to the ceiling of the church. Smilax was used only on the side walls in the galleries. The masses at the base of the columns were composed of lilacs, rambler roses and lilies. At the corner of each pew was tied a garland of smilax with a small bunch of roses. In order that the red carpeting of the church might not ruin an otherwise beautiful effect, the entire floor was covered with a specially dyed burlap of foliage green. The particular care which was bestowed on every detail was well rewarded by the unusually fine effect of the finished work.

Medina, N. Y.—The John C. Moninger Co. will soon start the erection of three houses, each 25x200, of iron-frame, truss construction, at Lee Smith's plant. A Kroeschell hot water boiler will be used to heat the plant.

Geraniums

LEAF DISEASE OF GERANIUMS.

We are mailing under separate cover a sample of some geraniums which are giving us lots of trouble. For three years they have been acting in this way, beginning in February or March and continuing until about May 10. Our stock plants are bedded in the ground in other houses and are perfectly free from this trouble. We have tried running them pretty dry and they have had plenty of room. In years previous to the last three we have grown geraniums in the same house as these are grown in, and under exactly the same conditions. This disease was first noticed on some plants we bought, but our own plants were not affected at that time. Now it has spread to all our geraniums. We have used cinders and have tried sand in the benches under the pots. Do you think the disease is in the plants, or is it due to the condition of the house or the soil?

P. & C.

The Review each year at this time receives many queries similar to this, relative to leaf diseases of geraniums. While cultural conditions and soils may sometimes account wholly, or in part, for the trouble, the most likely cause of the disease is that the purchased plants may have been propagated in a fairly warm house and left in a crowded condition in the cutting benches before being shipped to you. Most of these troubles have their origin in the cutting bench. This does not apply to geraniums only, but to many other plants. A poor soil is less likely to start trouble of this sort than is an overrich one.

I would suggest throwing away the worst affected plants. Keep the others picked over and well spaced apart. Spray all affected plants and, for safety, your entire batch with a good fungicide, such as Bordeaux mixture. Two or more applications may be necessary. Be sure the foliage is perfectly dry when it is applied. Use the remedy at the prescribed strength. Keep your houses well ventilated and dry, and do not allow any debris to be thrown below the benches. Nothing will encourage fungoid diseases more than decaying vegetation below the benches. Be careful to select cuttings from clean plants only.

C. W.

WORMS IN GERANIUM SOIL.

I find a great many small worms in the soil of my geraniums. The worms have a black head, but are otherwise about the color of the new roots. Can you tell me of something which will exterminate these? I have used lime water without success.

J. I. H.

As lime does not get rid of the worms referred to, give the plants a watering with Vermine, which destroys these and other soil pests. Use at the rate of one part of Vermine to 250 parts of water.

Carbon bisulphide and Vaporite are also used to exterminate soil pests. C. W.

GERANIUMS LOSING FOLIAGE.

Will you kindly give me a little information regarding my geraniums? The ends of the branches seem to become blasted. The new leaves, when about one-fourth grown, get spotted and in a few days turn brown and die. I do not know the cause of this. I keep the plants on the dry side and give them all possible air and a night temperature of 45 to 50 degrees, never above 50 degrees. Around where these were affected there is a leak in the hose and, after watering, there will be a puddle of water there for several hours. Aside from that, the floor and atmosphere are dry. Also, about one-half of my old stock plants seem to go blind. The leaves are misshaped and the ends of the shoots turn brown in about the same manner as the other geraniums.

W. E. H.

If I knew the nature of the soil in which your plants are potted and had some idea of their present vigor, I could answer your query more intelligently. The puddle of water, if about the bases of the plants, might in some measure be accountable for the disease. If your soil is all right, your house a suitable one and well ventilated, and if other conditions are all right, you should soon master this trouble. I would advise throwing away the worst plants. Give all the affected ones a spraying with a fungicide. Continue to keep the air and foliage dry, water carefully, remove weeds and bad leaves, keep all refuse away from below your benches—too many florists throw sick and useless plants there—preserve cleanliness, and your plants should soon improve. The old, blind stock plants would better be discarded. Give the others some suitable feeding, such as fine bone, to brace them up. C. W.

DISEASED GERANIUMS.

I am sending some geranium leaves which are affected with some kind of disease or insect. Kindly let me know the nature of the trouble and the treatment for it. As yet it is not bad, but I am afraid it will spread and ruin my crop.

A. D. K.

Throw away the badly affected plants and pick over the balance. Keep the atmosphere dry and ventilate freely. Give plenty of sun; do not shade at all. Underwater the plants rather than the reverse. Do not spray overhead with the hose. Keep the ground below the benches clean; any rubbish thrown there will produce moldiness and aggravate the trouble. Spraying the plants with Bordeaux mixture may help to remedy your trouble, and I have found Fungine an excellent remedy.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Stevias.

If an adequate supply of stevia cuttings has not been put in, it is not yet too late to make up any deficiency. This is an easy flower to grow and, while somewhat common, is all but indispensable on a place where the stock grown is retailed. Every bouquet of flowers and every floral design can be furnished in part by this useful little flower.

Rambler Roses.

A new supply of ramblers should now be secured for next season, if they have not already been bought. Some for an early crop are better pot-grown through the season, starting them indoors, cutting back to within a few inches of the pots, allowing the young canes to come up and judiciously reducing the number of these. The plants are better kept indoors until the middle of June and then plunged outdoors, where they can be kept well supplied with water. Also, to keep the canes erect so that they will ripen up thoroughly, some supports must be given.

Where pot culture is not resorted to, a good plan is to buy the plants now and, if a well manured, sunny piece of ground is at disposal, plant them there and keep the canes erect to assist in maturing the wood. To produce standards of any particular varieties, select one stout cane, cut away all others, leaving the single cane of any desired height, and remove all growths except such as will form a suitable head. Such roses as Dorothy Perkins, Tausendschon, Excelsa, Lady Gay, White Dorothy, Hiawatha, Newport Beauty and American Pillar are all suitable to grow for forcing purposes.

Poinsettias.

Where poinsettias are wanted with a considerable length of stem, the old roots should now be shaken out, potted, pruned back and started in a temperature of 55 to 60 degrees. A warmer house is not to be recommended, as the cuttings are then less stocky. Water somewhat sparingly until growth starts; then water more freely. Cuttings rubbed off with a heel root with the least trouble and are less liable to damp off than such as are cut below a joint. Where pans not exceeding eighteen inches in height are wanted, the roots need not be started for a month yet, but if any are to be grown in benches or as single specimens in 6-inch pots, now is the correct starting time.

Carnations

PLANTING IN THE FIELD.

Pushing the Work Systematically.

Planting the young carnations in the field is one job that you want to complete as quickly, once you have begun, as it is possible to do it. Having satisfied yourself as to the weather conditions from this time on and having got your inside work in such shape that you will be able to give your undivided attention to the planting, you are ready to make a start. It requires a little foresight and system, where any quantity is to be handled, but system is a prime necessity on any place, if things are to move along smoothly. A few points that we find a great help to us might be of some benefit to you as well.

Before we begin operations, we make up a list of all the varieties on each bench. These are jotted down in rotation as they stand on the bench, and notation is made, approximately, of the number of plants of each variety. By consulting these lists, we are able to locate each batch of any variety without having to hunt all over the place for a batch that we thought we had somewhere. Each batch is checked off as it is taken out. Try this and you will be surprised at the amount of time it will save you.

Filling the Trays.

Have enough trays of a convenient size to hold as many dumped plants as your force can set out in an afternoon, unless you have enough help to be able to have one force dumping while the other plants out. We find that on nearly every place there are several men who have more or less work to do inside, before they can help on the planting. So we put all the available help to dumping out plants in the morning, setting the plants in trays, and by noon we usually have enough plants dumped to run all hands at planting for the afternoon. Our soil is fairly sandy and dries off quickly, enabling us to resume planting soon after a rain. So, if a rainy day comes along, unless it has the appearance of a prolonged spell, we dump out enough plants for a whole day's planting, having first given the plants a good watering, so that they will not suffer for water even should they stand a couple of days. Be sure you provide enough burlap to cover the plants after they are dumped out of the pots and are waiting to be planted, as they will dry out quickly on a bright day.

With Line and Trowel.

During the planting we divide the force into droppers and planters. A good man will plant about as fast as a boy will drop the plants. We use a line to plant by and trowels to plant with. We have known fields that were so mellow that one could plant without a trowel, but even in such fields we think a trowel is best. It enables the men to get down to the moist soil better after a day or two of sunshine has dried out the soil somewhat on the surface. We use hand cultivators and therefore plant more closely than others who use horse-power for cultivating. Our rows are spaced sixteen inches

PLANTS WINTERED OUTDOORS.

Last fall we had a surplus of carnation plants, which were left in the field. Would you kindly let us know whether it would do to plant these inside in the coming fall? The plants are small, but bushy. Please notice that we are located in the southeastern part of Washington state. R. B. P.

If these plants are properly cared for until benching time, there is no reason why they should not make good plants for that purpose. In your climate, where the winters are not so severe as they are farther east, the plants would likely live through the winter in good condition. They will require regular cultivating and the usual care given the young plants. I am not conversant with your market, but it has just occurred to me that it might pay you better to allow these plants to bloom outside this summer and to use young stock for your benches. Left outdoors, they would probably give you several times the value of the young plants, in blooms. A. F. J. B.

Our carnations in the greenhouse have the black spot. The blossoms for some time have been inferior, but only in the last few days have we discovered beyond a doubt that the disease is black spot. The carnations in the field, which we expected to put in the greenhouse for next season, were cuttings taken from the plants now in the greenhouse. The plants in the field show some signs of the black spot. We wish to obtain your advice on what course to pursue. As the season for the blooming of the plants in the house will soon be over, it does not make much difference about them. Will there be any chance to save the plants that are now in the field? Or would it be better to destroy all the carnation plants, both in the house and outside, which we have on hand and buy our entire stock of plants for next season's use? R. F. C.

I do not know of any disease of carnations called black spot; you probably mean what we call leaf-spot. This disease is propagated by means of spores, which multiply rapidly in a humid atmosphere. The fact that certain young plants were propagated from old plants which were affected by the disease does not necessarily mean that the young plants will be affected too, unless some of the spores were taken along with the cuttings, or unless the young stock is subjected to the same conditions which brought on the disease in the first instance. In our northern latitude, if normal weather conditions prevail, we expect all such diseases as leaf-spot, rust, etc., to disappear during the plants' stay in the field. Your Texas climate, how-rooting. Just why they did not root, I am unable to say with any certainty. The temperature you name is too low, but that should only retard the rooting, if other conditions are right. The watering with the ammonia and copperas may have had some effect, but of that I am not certain. Next time, use fresh sand and water only with clear water.

will be sufficient, but if there is a great deal of rust on them, so that after it is all picked off the cuttings are denuded of most of the foliage, then it would be better to throw them away. If you have not a sufficient stock of healthy cuttings, I would advise you to buy what you need from some reliable specialist, rather than try to root them at this late date. When rust attacks cuttings and is allowed to get a good start, it is difficult to get it under control. Usually the young plants are so weakened by it that they can never become strong plants and would better be discarded at the outset. Picking off the affected leaves and dusting with air-slaked or hydrated lime will keep it in check.

Those light spots are most likely what we formerly knew as "bacteriosis" and later as "stigmomose," both of which names are being proved to be correct in some cases only. Your case may be similar to others which have come under my observation. Perfectly clean cuttings would be taken from apparently clean, healthy plants. After the cuttings had been in the sand about two weeks, these light spots would begin to show. They would be plainly visible until about a month after potting, when the new growth would come as clean again as the plant from which the cutting was taken. I feel confident that no insect of any kind had anything to do with these spots and the circumstances tend to support the theory advanced by me many years ago, that it is a case of improper nourishment. Avoid such cuttings as much as possible, thereby aiding in the elimination of the trouble.

SOIL FROM CHICKEN YARD.

Three years ago I put some soil from the greenhouse into a chicken yard, 25x50 feet, where about thirty to forty chickens are kept during the year. The soil is about a foot deep in the yard. Can this soil be used for carnations again in the coming fall, without additional cow manure? The soil seems rich, not having been used ever, is quite different from ours. With the intense heat, you would be likely to have trouble after every drenching rain or rainy spell, especially if you took the disease out along with the plants.

It might be well to defer such drastic measures as you suggest until you can see whether or not you will be able to use these young plants for benching this fall. One can never tell what kind of season is in store. I would suggest that you dust the young plants well with Grape Dust or dry slaked lime. Spraying with Bordeaux mixture should also prove effective in eradicating the disease, or in preventing its appearance if it has not started.

A. F. J. B.

CUTTINGS HAVE NOT ROOTED.

I am sending you a few carnation cuttings from a bunch of 3,500 which I made December 20. There are few that are rooted yet and they look wilted, although I have kept the sand quite moist all the time. The temperature has been 45 to 48 degrees at night and 50 to 60 degrees in the day time. The first watering after they were put in the sand was with a solution of ammonia and copperas. They were placed in sand which had been used to root geranium cuttings. There are few of them rotting, but they do not root. Will they root yet and why have they not rooted before this time?

R. H. W.

I do not know in what condition the specimens forwarded left your place, but they were dry as a bone when they reached here. They do not show the least sign of a callus on the lower end and if your cuttings are all like these, there is little prospect of their

It is getting rather late now and I would advise you to buy what cuttings you need for the coming season.

A. F. J. B.

CUTTINGS RUSTY AND SPOTTED.

Will you please tell me how to get rid of rust on carnation cuttings and tell me, also, what is the trouble where some cuttings are spotted yellow?

C. W.

About the only way to get rid of rust on cuttings is to pick it off. If they are not too badly affected, this since it was placed in the yard. Would lime help to sweeten it? P. C. M.

I do not think that I would care to use the soil in question for planting this season. From what I have seen of chicken yards, I would not use the soil without first having sown it in grass for a couple of years. Do not use it if you can possibly avoid it.

A. F. J. B.

KEEPING CARNATION BLOOMS.

Please inform me whether carnations can be kept better elsewhere than in the ice-box. Our cooler is new and up-to-date in construction and is kept day and night at a temperature of 38 to 40 degrees. After a day or two the carnations become black at the edges and close up. Is a temperature of 40 degrees too cool for carnations?

B. C. B.

A temperature of 38 to 40 degrees is too cool for carnation blooms and the ice-box is not the place in which to keep them. Out in the open room, in a temperature of 45 to 50 degrees, is the proper place, providing there are no strong drafts. Under such circumstances the blooms will keep in salable condition for several days and give good satisfaction after they reach your customers.

AMERICAN METHODS ABROAD.

How Our Ways Work in Germany.

When a foreigner spends a long enough time in this country to learn our American methods and then returns to his native land he invariably applies the knowledge he has gained here to old-world conditions with successful results. This is true in the florists' trade as well as in other lines of work, and has proved equally profitable. The application of American ideas in carnation growing at the plant of Arthur Moll, at Soden am Taunus, Germany, by Otto Dellinger has produced remarkable results.

Otto Dellinger learned our ways of growing carnations when he was in the employ of the Chicago Carnation Co., Joliet, Ill. Five years ago he yielded to his longing for the fatherland and returned to Germany. There he became manager of the plant of Arthur Moll a grower of high-class carnations. At that time the plant was a comparatively small one and the stock was not of the high quality that Mr. Dellinger had been accustomed to in this country.

Five Years Bring Advance.

The new manager saw the difference between what was and what might be and at once set to work to bring about the change. The improvements brought an increase in business and house after house was built to take care of the trade. Today the establishment is the largest carnation growing establishment in Germany and has 200,000 carnation plants under glass. There is a large propagating house and the whole range is divided into what are known as the A, B and C plants. An idea of the total glass area may be obtained from one of the illustrations, which shows two of the three plants.

The carnations grown are the best American varieties. The stand-bys are at present White Wonder, Mrs. Ward, Gloriosa and Beacon. In addition a few English varieties are grown. A great deal of attention is paid to the new varieties as they appear and they are all tried out to see which is the best adapted to German conditions and uses. The American idea of keeping abreast of the times and being always up-to-date is not limited in its application to this country, but brings business in any land.

An Up-to-Date Equipment.

The names of the various kinds of apparatus used in the plant are most of them familiar to American ears. The houses are all ventilated with the Evans Improved Challenge apparatus. The boilers are Moninger-Furman and Strebel. The results obtained with these appliances have always given satisfaction and they are used throughout the plant. All the houses are heated by hot water, which is driven through the system by means of an electric pump. Electricity is used also to light the entire range. A splendid view of the overhead arrangements is shown in the illustration showing the centerwork in the C plant.

To furnish the heat and power for so extensive a range is in itself no slight undertaking, and the power-buildings and service houses are themselves large buildings. The half dozen tall brick chimneys and the huge water-tower are landmarks in that hilly country. The mark of an up-to-date manager is shown throughout the entire plant, the mark of a man who learned his methods in a good school.

EVANS GETS DECISION.

In the United States Court of Appeals at Chicago, April 14, a decision was handed down affirming the decision in the United States District Court for the District of Indiana in the case of John A. Evans vs. James E. Jones. The case was heard on appeal at Chicago January 29, by Judges Mack, Baker and Kohlsaat. In the decree the court says: "The appellant denies the validity (of patent No. 815,914), but does not dispute infringement if the patent is valid." The court decides that the patent is valid and affirms the decision of the district court.

This is the case relating to the right to manufacture and sell the greenhouse ventilating device put on the market some years ago by J. A. Evans, of the Quaker City Machine Co., Richmond, Ind., using the name Twentieth Century Arm.

A MARKET FOR SNAPDRAGON.

Get Ready Now.

Reports from some of the large cities were that snapdragons of all colors were hard to move for Easter. This is not at all surprising when one considers that nearly every grower tried to get in a batch of these flowers for Easter. There was something of a scarcity for a few weeks before Easter, with excellent prices ruling, but growers held back all possible spikes and placed them on the market in overwhelming supply, with the inevitable result that the bottom fell completely out of prices. I know that large numbers were retailed at $4 per dozen, but I also know where offers of $4 per hundred at wholesale could not be had for really good spikes on Easter Saturday. This is a trouble which can be righted. It is evident that a moderate number can be profitably sold for Easter and it is equally certain that for Memorial day all will sell without trouble at better prices, on the average, than were realized at Easter.

From October until the end of March there is a paucity of snapdragons and far more could be sold. To fill this gap should be the endeavor of growers. Of course pink is the color to grow, but, unfortunately, none of the pinks can be depended upon to bloom so freely in midwinter as the yellows and whites. The two latter colors sell moderately well, however, and should be tried for a winter crop. To get an early crop of snapdragons it is necessary to make a start now. No matter whether seedlings or cuttings are used, this is the time to start stock. Cuttings from the sides of the flowering stems make splendid plants. Select the best types, such as have foliage carried well up to the flowers. The flowers should have waved standards in the

CHICAGO, April 25, 1914.

The Florists' Review,
508 So. Dearborn St.,
Chicago, Ills.

Gentlemen:-

It will interest you to know that we have just closed a contract with the Kemble Floral Co., of Oskaloosa, Ia., to build the largest and finest florists' refrigerator in the State of Iowa, also to supply complete up-to-date fixtures for a new store.

This is one of the largest refrigerator and fixture contracts ever given in the florists' trade and we are glad to say that our success in securing the order can be traced directly to our advertising in the Florists' Review.

Money spent for advertising in The Review is as good an investment as gold bonds.

Yours very truly, way of the Spencer sweet peas and should not be too widely separated on the stalks. If seed is used, buy a good strain and use only one or two self colors. Seedlings possess greater vigor than cuttings. They may vary a trifle in coloring and contain a few rogues, but a good selection contains few not true to color.

Growing the Stock.

Pot off cuttings when rooted; place seedlings closely in flats and later pot off. Carry over the summer in a cool greenhouse or coldframe. Stock from seed can be allowed to run up to show flower, so that any poor colors can be discarded. Planting in the benches should be done from August 15 to September 1. The plants at this time should be in 4-inch pots. If the shoots which ran up to flower were headed back quite hard, a fine crop of shoots will come up and commence to flower early in October, give a fine Thanksgiving and Christmas crop and continue to flower profitably until Memorial day. Do not use solid beds or the results in winter will be poor. The benches should not contain over four inches of soil. If the bench is well matted with roots before winter arrives, a fine crop of spikes is a certainty. Feeding on the surface by means of fine bone, sheep manure or cow manure will keep the surface covered with active roots. Place the plants 10x12 inches apart. This pays better than spacing them closer, although for a Memorial day crop 8x8 will answer well. If seed is used, select the intermediate varieties; the dwarf and tall are less suitable commercially.

Snapdragons have come to be an important flower in the markets. We may expect occasional gluts, as in the case of all other flowers. What, however, is much needed is a larger winter supply. Anyone can bloom snapdragons from March 1 onward, but it needs more cultural skill to produce a steady crop during the short days of winter. Nevertheless, it can be done if growers will work on the lines suggested. We have one winter strain offered now which can be depended upon to flower freely all winter. Others will no doubt be forthcoming, just as in the case of sweet peas.

OBITUARY.

J. M. Vandervort.

J. M. Vandervort, founder of the New Antioch Nurseries, at New Antioch, O., died at his home near that town Friday evening, April 17, at the age of 81. Fifty-four years ago the New Antioch Nurseries were established by Mr. Vandervort and have since grown to a considerable size. His son, P. C. Vandervort, has been connected with the business for a number of years, the firm being known as J. M. Vandervort & Son. Besides his son, Mr. Vandervort leaves a daughter, Mrs. Charles Henry. The funeral services were held at the New Antioch church April 20, and the body was buried in the cemetery there.

A SMOKY CITY VIOLET VENDER.

In the marketing of some of the higher-priced flowers, at least in most parts of the United States, there are few opportunities for the street salesman. In the disposal of such expensive stock his aid is seldom wanted. Only when such blooms accumulate until they become a formidable, unmanageable, dismaying surplus—only then are the services of the sidewalk salesman acceptable, and even then his assistance is not always received with great demonstrations of gratitude or appreciation. In such cases the street merchant is regarded by the majority of florists as, at best, one of the oft-mentioned "necessary evils" which abound in this imperfect world and which must be endured as patiently as possible until a better era arrives.

In the violet market, however, the conditions are different. Though the selling of violets is not permitted in the streets of some American cities, yet in many other cities and towns of this country, not to speak of foreign lands, the street salesmen are the principal agents for the retailing of violets. Without these regular outdoor retailers the violet market in many localities would, for a time, be seriously disorganized.

Joe Brown, the Pittsburgh violet vender who smiles at the reader from these columns in the same manner in which he smiles at a prospective customer, looks as if he would carry on the business gracefully as long as the business suited him, and bow himself just as gracefully from the scene when he considered the business no longer profitable. He is typical of the flower peddlers who operate by hundreds in cities east and west.

Northampton, Mass.—The trolley waiting station in the new Connor block will be in the charge of Alexander Parks, who will use part of the room for the sale of his flowers.

Ashtabula, O.—The Ashtabula Lettuce & Vegetable Co. has been incorporated by E. R. McCune, F. E. Davenny, G. H. Ford, H. D. Cook and A. J. Kain, with a capitalization of $20,000.

SOCIETY OF AMERICAN FLORISTS.
Incorporated by Act of Congress, March 4, 1901.
Officers for 1914: President, Theodore Wirth, Minneapolis; vice-president, Patrick Welch, Boston; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New York City; treasurer, W. F. Kasting, Buffalo. Thirtieth annual convention, Boston, Mass., August 18 to 21, 1914.

CHARLES HENRY FOX, the Philadelphia florist, copyrighted the word Flowergrams, coined by him to describe the sending of flowers by telegraph.

Not a few subscribers save themselves the bother of annual renewal by sending The Review $2, $3, or sometimes $5, instead of the dollar-bill that insures fifty-two visits of the paper.

THE votes of the florists' clubs indicate that affiliation with the S. A. F. is approved on general grounds but that the proposition as thus far presented is too indefinite to afford a basis for action.

THE parcel post rates on plants seem to give excellent satisfaction to those who do business within a narrow radius; the protest is on the part of the mail order houses that have light parcels to send long distances.

CORRESPONDENTS and contributors will do well to remember that The Review is a business paper rather than a botanical journal. The first test of availability is value to the commercial readers; the second, exclusiveness. There is much good material we are willing to leave to others as not coming close enough to our line.

IN spite of the fact that My Maryland has proved to be an excellent summer rose, many growers are dropping it this season. To hold its place with the trade a rose must be an all-the-year-around producer. The big grower does not wish to give the space to a variety that will make return only a part of the season; the small grower cannot afford to do so.

SINCE the parcel post went into operation the Editor's desk has been pretty regularly supplied with flowers, but seldom has a bouquet attracted as much attention as did a vase of Antirrhinum Nellose that stood for nearly a week. A dozen spikes came from F. W. Fletcher & Co., Auburndale, Mass., and arrived in good shape after their thousand-mile journey. Every visitor commented on the clear shell pink color, but especially on the long, compact flower head and the straight stem, so stiff that it evidently needs no tying.

The Review brings results.

NIGHT LETTER TELEGRAM

Boston, Mass., April 28.—Notwithstanding the inclement weather, the Boston convention garden has progressed so well that the City of Boston Park Department is now prepared to receive shipments of ornamental trees, shrubs, conifers and herbaceous plants. Bedding plants, such as cannas, geraniums, etc., may be sent May 20. All such shipments should be sent expressage prepaid, addressed Boston Park Department, Back Bay Fens, Boston, marked for convention garden, care James B. Shea. John Farquhar.

HERE'S HOW!

The man who has stock on hand is always watching the man who sells out clean. He wants to find out how the other fellow did it, so that he can go and do likewise. Here is a way that so many have described that there oughtn't to be anybody watching the other fellow now; they should all be using the Classified Ads in The Review. Are you?

From the classified ad I placed in The Review last month I got more orders than I could fill. Sold out clean. I think The Review is a top-notch. —R. C. Grogan, Shell Creek, Tenn., April 23, 1914.

Please discontinue my classified ads for asters and salvias. I did not expect such a demand for these plants, so I did not plant enough. This morning's mail brought more orders than I can fill, so omit my tomato ad also. —H. J. Potomkin, Muncie, Ind., April 25, 1914.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

Starting last week with an overload, the market was heavily supplied in practically all lines, and conditions favored the buyers. The result was that an extremely large volume of business was done at low average prices. The total sales ran into good money, because of the quantities handled, but it was far from a satisfactory market from the viewpoint of growers and wholesalers. The situation developed the usual difference of opinion as to the better course: Some houses pursued the policy of selling out at the best price obtainable, while others preferred to lose some stock rather than to let it go on buyers' offer, believing that realizing fair prices for a part of the stock gave as good a total and average, allowing for some waste, as does the policy of cleaning out at low rates to the big buyers. It is a question that always comes to the front at this season and which never is settled.

While the start of last week was dull, the middle of the week was much worse, as is usual at this season, with a distinct improvement at the end of the week. Springlike weather hastened the crops, but by the end of the week it began to be said that a falling off could be noted. Particularly on Beauties, the receipts were lighter and the demand stronger. Good stock began to realize the full summer prices. The quality is much better than it has been. Roses were hard hit by the first few days of high temperature, but appeared to become acclimated, and by the end of the week much of the stock showed fair quality. There was no shortage of any variety of rose; even the so-called novelties could be had in quantity equal to the demand. It was

A Word About Stock for Mothers' Day

BECAUSE of many inquiries, we wish to announce that we expect to be able to supply Carnations for Mothers' day (at $30.00, $40.00 and $50.00 per 1000, according to color and quality), on all orders that call for other stock. No white carnations alone. We have a big supply, but so many others report being off crop on carnations that we anticipate a record demand, so we advise ordering early—a full line of stock. Our supply is so large that we do not expect there will be any material advance in prices for Mothers' day, except on carnations. Order enough.

FANCY ROSES

It is well to remember that Amling's specialty always is a grade of Roses just a little better than can be had elsewhere in quantity. A large crop is on. We have a full line, including

GOOD BEAUTIES

Now is the time for you to push Beauties—we shall have a splendid supply for weeks and can keep you selling on a nice margin of profit. Plenty of short and medium stems.

SNAPDRAGON

If your trade will welcome a new decorative flower, show them our fancy Snapdragon—long, strong, full spikes. Don't make the mistake of supposing it is like the ordinary stock—it's far finer. White, pink and yellow—specially strong on pink.

on roses that the week saw the lowest prices and the biggest volume of business.

While carnations weakened in sympathy with the rest of the market, they held their own surprisingly well. At the end of the week, when the general demand was the strongest, there was an actual scarcity of strictly first-class white and Enchantress, though there continued to be about enough of the lower grades. Those who had good stock at the end of the week refused to consider anything but straight prices.

Sweet peas were in large supply. There are three separate crops in market: The tail end of the winter-blooming Spencers, the last of the winter-flowering grandifloras and the first of the spring-blooming Spencers. They continue to be the most popular of corsage material and the best peas still bring fair money, in spite of the heavily loaded condition of the market and the greater abundance of Ward roses, the principal competitor for corsage use. Violets are no longer wanted. Last week there were quite large receipts of violets that were fine for this time of year, both eastern stock and Glencoe doubles; however, nobody wanted them in quantity; even the peddlers found them difficult to sell.

Large quantities of Easter lilies and callas obstructed some of the wholesale houses; the trouble was not so much large receipts, although they were heavy enough, but lay in the fact that nobody seemed to want lilies. Their only outlet was a limited use in funeral work. Naturally, prices were low, although most of the wholesalers were holding them at $6 to $8 per hundred.

Bulbous stock also has met with little demand; people do not seem to want tulips and jonquils after Easter. Good stock met with extremely slow sale last week. The indoor crop will see its finish this week, but the outdoor flowers will be on the market for some time yet. Spanish iris in other colors than yellow has sold fairly well, the lack of demand for yellow iris being generally attributed to the overabundance of southern jonquils.

Why don't people buy snapdragon? Fine, long, fancy spikes that made a hit a little earlier in the season were practically without demand last week, and reports from other cities were to the same effect. With the market heavily supplied with the staples, naturally there was little call for the miscellaneous flowers, which only a few stores handle in quantity.

The present week opened with conditions practically unchanged. With continued warm weather there is an abundance of stock except carnations. Sweet peas have come on in enormous quantities, exceeding anything in the experience of this market. Lilac from southern Illinois also has flooded the commission houses and is realizing only a fraction of the oldtime prices.

The wholesalers are wondering what

Recently we have had splendid evidence of the quality and adaptability of this Tissue to the needs of the trade—the mill for the time being not being able to keep us supplied, we were forced to handle a few hundred bundles of the Tissue we consider next best to our Improved Beauty Brand—but the buyers objected to taking the next best; those who knew the excellences of the Improved Beauty Brand Tissue would be content with nothing less.

They all deplore a situation that promises to force carnations to a high price, believing that it will be harmful to the future of this rapidly developing "day." They hope to see the trade push the flowers that are in big supply. Ordinarily carnations are abundant at this date.

Moninger Increases Capital Stock.

Certifying to the secretary of state at Springfield that its capital stock has been increased from $25,000 to $100,000, the John C. Moninger Co. is making a number of changes in its organization, made desirable by the expansion of the business and the wish to admit some of its young men to a share in it. The concern was established in 1869 by the late John C. Moninger, who early drew to his support as young men those who now are passing a part of the responsibilities to their sons and associates. Incorporation took place in 1894. A considerable surplus has since been accumulated, a part of which now is being capitalized and a portion of the new stock placed at the disposal of P. L. McKee and the sons of Messrs. Kurowski and Rupp. The roster of officers now stands:

President—E. F. Kurowski.
First vice-president—R. E. Kurowski.
Second vice-president and general manager—Philip L. McKee.
Treasurer—N. J. Rupp.
Secretary—W. M. Rupp.

The public boiler test conducted for four days last week proved an excellent advertisement for the Moninger Co. There was a good attendance of florists and others, including a number from out of town. Several sales were reported, in addition to giving those interested an opportunity to see how boiler manufacturers test their product.

Poehlmannville Notes.

There are 400,000 rose plants on the benches. Nearly half have been or are to be replanted with young stock this year. While a good many houses already have been planted, principally with Russell, Killarney Queen, Hadley and Milady, there still are over 200,000 2½-inch and 3½-inch plants in Plant B, presided over by Adolph Poehlmann. It is agreed that he never has had a better lot of young stock with which to start a new season.

- One of P. J. Foley's ideas embodied in the new houses is a bar casting that must add materially to the strength of the house. Not only is the sashbar screwed to the ridge, but underneath is a casting that fits between the two bars and under the ridge, attached by a screw to each. The casting is quickly attached, as it is drilled for the three screws, and the bars and ridgepole also are drilled in the factory.

Guy French has been making some tests of Evergreen fertilizer, manufactured by a corporation of which A. F. Poehlmann is president, on carnations. Choosing two benches of the same variety in the same house, he gave one bench nothing but Evergreen from start to finish, while the other had the regular manure treatment. This was tried with several varieties. As they stand today, those that had only the chemical fertilizer look as good as those that had manure, and in one or two cases decidedly better.

As indicating the call for bedding stock, G. C. Anderson says his department holds two orders for geraniums for May delivery totaling 13,000 plants.

After building many monolithic benches of concrete, those now being installed, including the new houses, are of pecky cypress on concrete posts.

One of last week's visitors was William M. Bailey, who was one of the first employees, twenty-seven years ago, when August and Adolph Poehlmann were just starting in business on leased land about two miles south of the present location. Mr. Bailey has spent most of the intervening years in the south.

Florists in the Movies.

If the summer season proves dull in the flower business, at least one firm of florists proposes to keep busy during the dog days, for April 24 Harry M. Lubliner and Joseph Trinz closed the lease of Orchestra hall for July, August and September at a rent of $5,000 a month, and will convert it into a high-class moving picture house. The orchestra association will provide the full complement of ticket sellers, ticket takers, ushers, and other house employees, as well as lights. The seating capacity of the theater, 2,577, makes it one of the largest moving picture theaters in the country.

Lubliner & Trinz recently secured the properties at 3133-41 Lincoln avenue and 2333 and 2343 same street, on each of which will be erected theaters of 1,500 seating capacity.

meeting April 27 by W. F. Schofield, against the seating of Hugo Krause, who defeated Mr. Schofield in the aldermanic election April 7. The basis of Mr. Schofield's contest is a charge of repeating in two precincts, the voting of non-residents of the ward, and a miscount. In company with six other candidates who did not prove popular with the ladies, Mr. Schofield also attacks the legality of the women's vote. This is up to the Supreme court. Should it decide that the women's suffrage law is unconstitutional, Mr. Schofield claims election, since on the total vote he was defeated by only 306, while the 4,495 women voters gave the other candidate a plurality of 759. In other words, if the women's votes are declared illegal, Schofield will have a plurality of the men's votes amounting to 453. Mr. Schofield and his friends claim that an act of legislature was not enough to give women the right to vote, and that an amendment to the constitution is required.

Among the most satisfactory of roses, from the consumer's point of view, is Prince de Bulgarie, according to E. Wienhoeber, who says it opens well and lasts well for his customers; the Wienhoeber store sells constantly increasing quantities of Bulgarie.

In order to make room for its 7,000 plants of Killarney Brilliant, the Wendland & Keimel Co., Elmhurst, threw out 7,000 perfectly good Killarney.

A weekly voting contest for the most beautiful woman in the building has been started by Zalinger & Hirsch, Insurance Exchange building. The prize is a dozen American Beauties. Each purchase entitles one to a vote. It is creating quite a little rivalry among the admirers of the different contestants and, naturally, an increase in business.

After having lived next door to the greenhouses for thirty-two years, Peter Reinberg and family this week have moved into their handsome new colonial mansion at Sheridan road and Hollywood avenue. The old home to which Mrs. Reinberg went as a bride will be occupied by Foreman Emil Reichling, while the newer residence just vacated by Mr. Reinberg will be used by Henry Zender.

April 27 the E. C. Amling Co. received a large box of phalænopsis sprays by parcel post from San Francisco. They came through in fair shape, but were a little the worse for having lain in the Chicago postoffice from Saturday afternoon until Monday for lack of a special delivery stamp. Those who use the parcel post for flowers should remember that there are no regular deliveries Saturday afternoon or Sunday.

The first Gladiolus America seen this season reached Zech & Mann April 27. Reversing the usual course, instead of going to New Orleans, these came from there. They were excellent, but might have been cut a little sooner.

The fine property, 132x660, at the southeast corner of Foster and St. Louis avenues, was sold April 24 by John Reitmeier to E. T. Martin. The consideration was not disclosed. Mr. Reitmeier is a well-known carnation grower on Winona street.

The first peonies are due this week, according to E. E. Pieser, who says Kennicott Bros. Co. had Tennessee stock before the end of April last year.

To afford better working conditions for the constantly increasing office force, the A. L. Randall Co. has removed the balcony over the office space and put in new lights.

At 1429 Morse avenue, F. A. Parkmire, who trades as the Lake Shore Floral Co., has just finished his first year in business. He is well pleased with the progress made.

The trade in Chicago will be specially interested in the illustration on page 70 of this issue showing the retail store of the Los Angeles Flower Market at Easter. The proprietors, two former Chicago florists, stand in the foreground. C. E. Morton formerly was in the retail business here, and Fred Sperry was in the wholesale end in partnership with A. L. Vaughan. They are understood to be doing well at Los Angeles.

A carload of Belgian bay trees arrived at Winterson's Seed Store April 28.

John Kruchten, who of late has been something of an authority on the Easter lily situation, says the present week will see about the end of the glut of stock that failed to make Easter.

Stollery Bros. were represented in the auto parade of the Federal League Boosters' and Rooters' Club last week. Their truck, decorated with flowers and streamers, attracted a great deal of attention. Mothers' day already is being advertised by Stollery Bros. Printed cards last week were placed prominently in the window, calling attention to the date. Attractive baskets of roses, sweet peas and daisies are on display. Baskets of flowers have sold well for many months.

That the sweet pea receipts April 27 were the heaviest in the history of the Chicago market was the belief of Kyle & Foerster, who say it certainly was the case so far as their experience goes.

Not only are carnations scarcer than ever before at the end of April, but N. J. Wietor says he does not recall any time during the regular season when the supply has been so light.

The store at 1222 East Sixty-third street is again in charge of Miss Florence Keenan, sister of the proprietor. Miss Keenan was at home for some time following an operation for appendicitis, December 8, at the Englewood hospital, and has not yet fully recov-

The Market.

The market is overloaded, while qualities are good. The better grades of Richmond, Killarney and Radiance roses are in some demand, while it is said that there are hardly enough cattleyas to go around. These are now bringing from $6 to $7.50 per dozen. Fine American Beauty roses can be had at $3 per dozen and the buyer can pick over the stock until he gets what he wants, as sales in large quantities were last week recorded at as low as $5 per hundred. So plentiful are these that one firm which weekly decorates thirty or forty churches in and around Washington last week used Beauties. Violets have about passed off the market. Sweet peas dropped to as low as $2 per thousand and even at that price were in little demand. Carnations are good, but nobody seems to want them, even at $7.50 per thousand, in colors, while white carnations are somewhat scarce and holding up to $3 per hundred.

The Mexican difficulty is playing havoc with business, for the reason that many social functions have been postponed.

Easter rush, was the presentation to the retiring president, Otto Bauer, of a handsome cut glass water pitcher heavily inlaid with silver and bearing his monogram on a medallion at the front, in appreciation of his efforts during the year. The surprise was complete and Mr. Bauer found himself at a loss for words to express his thanks.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Eastern Market.

The group of wholesale florists who distribute the cut flowers and greens coming into the eastern market agree that never before have they seen so many flowers in one week. Many of them have been closely identified with this market since it became worthy of the name. Their judgment, so unanimous in its expression, is noteworthy. They further agree that the quality of the stock is excellent for the close of April. They also agree that the volume of business is satisfactory—quite so—but, and this word should be spelled with a capital—But the market is demoralized. There are so many flowers that it is an actual fact that there are pretty nearly two flowers for every one needed, so that the average prices are low, distressingly low; low to a degree that makes it hard to send out the returns to the growers, they are so dreadfully low.

That little description gives a better idea of the market than any verbatim account could possibly do. Take lilies for example: It is not uncommon to have a surplus of lilies after Easter; we expect it. This season it seems as though, between the growers who missed Easter, the growers who assure you they never intended to make Easter, and the growers who force lilies for cutting at all seasons of the year, we have a crop of lilies of such extraordinary size that it would take a carload of dynamite to move them. The market quotation on lilies cuts no figure whatever. Those prices are obtained for a dozen, or twenty-five, or fifty, or, once in a long while, for 100. The man who will move a quantity is not vexed by petty price considerations. He gets those lilies and is regarded as a benefactor to the heavily loaded market. There is only one regret—that he cannot use more. Other flowers are not so overplentiful as lilies, save perhaps snapdragon, which generally can be moved at some price when of good quality, though this is not always the case. Lily of the valley, lilac and cattleyas are the scarce flowers on the list, if one may use that term; it is in a comparative sense only.

There have been some excellent weddings, some large funeral orders and some parties. The out-of-town demand has at times been heavy. Yet all these things do not make serious impressions on the tremendous supply of stock, a supply so heavy that good judges wonder whether we may not see a corresponding scarcity in mid-May, strange as that would seem.

For the benefit of our southern cousins it must be added that the heavy shipments of Barrii, Langtry and poeticus narcissi were absolutely unsalable at any price; alas, a veritable lemon. The greenhouse-grown daffodils, notably Emperor, are notably fine. Violets still are here, both from Hightstown and the Hudson river. Greenhouse-grown Spanish iris, purple, lavender, white and yellow, has sold quite well. Gladioli, including America, are in fine form. In orchids, Cattleya gigas has appeared, though Mossiae still is the star; Schroederæ is less favored. Plumosus sells quite well.

Grow!

A. E. Pettit has issued what is understood to be the first number of a little pamphlet intended solely for the 150 members of the house of Michell. Through his courtesy I am able to give you some of his ideas, as there set forth. "Grow" is intended to stimulate the interest of its readers and to direct their energy. The first page is historical, the next prospective. Then follows a clever description of a sale, an extremely well managed sale, in which the salesman thought for his customer so ably that the customer bought at one time all that he required, and, of course, bought more than he had intended. Stress is laid, in the interview, on the fact that the salesman talks enough and not too much, and that he thoroughly understood his business. Then follows a telephone sale. The booklet closes with a promise of another number, intended, I think Mr. Pettit said, for florists.

Various Notes.

Raymond Brunswick reports that the M. Rice Co. has had the largest April in its history. The demand for magnolia leaves has been exceptional.

Callas are not so abundant and are selling fairly well. Valley is a little soft. Sweet peas are in good demand for corsage and bouquet work and are of good quality. Snapdragons and daisies have sold well this week. Roses are in especially good condition. American Beauties are of fine color, but retail at somewhat low prices. ber. The committee will report at the next meeting. The advisability of holding a show annually has been questioned. At the show of last year some of the commercial florists who are members of the association did not exhibit, and unless a larger number agree to do so this year a show may not be held. The show of last year was successful from an artistic point of view, having been probably the finest of its kind ever seen in this city. After the usual business had been transacted, Charles W. in the earlier part of the week, but have accumulated toward the last, and prices are correspondingly low. The retail stores are reluctant to buy except to fill orders that are already in hand. Beyond the necessary flowers for display purposes, little stock is being carried, as the low prices are little inducement to speculate. Sweet peas are beginning to show the effects of warm weather, in shorter stems and poorer keeping qualities. Violets are

Club Meeting.

When the regular semimonthly meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club was called to order, April 27, by President Johnston, there was a fair attendance. The publicity committee met before the meeting and organized. Mr. Gernand, of the News, was present and spoke of advertising Mothers' day in the daily papers. There is a movement on foot to get all florists interested to advertise on the coöperative basis, this plan being an advantage over each one advertising separately.

An invitation was received from the Maryland Agricultural College for all florists to attend on Farmers' day,

Various Notes.

Geo. V. Smith, whose store at 2118 Madison avenue will be taken over by Pierce & Co., has opened another store at 1130 West North avenue, in the vicinity of his former store.

F. J. Michell, of the H. F. Michell Co., Philadelphia, called on the trade here last week in the interest of his firm.

Great interest is being shown by the local trade in the flower mart which is to be held May 12 at Mount Vernon place. A large number of florists have signified their intention of erecting booths and making a large display. As this movement is about to be copied by at least two large eastern cities, which will send representatives to view the display, it is to be hoped that every florist in the city will be in attendance with a good exhibit of both plants and cut flowers. Booths will be furnished free by the Women's Civic League, which has the affair in charge. A commission of twenty per cent on the gross sales is all that is asked, which, compared with the fifty per cent asked on former occasions, should be an inducement to those who heretofore have not been represented.

The Walter R. Siebrecht Co., of New York, which has conducted a wholesale commission business at 200 West Mulberry street, has withdrawn from business in this city, and in its place the Baltimore Wholesale Cut Flower Co. will carry on the business. This concern was recently incorporated, with a capital stock of $25,000. Those named in the incorporation papers were Walter A. Siebrecht, of New York; Irving Jaffee and Thos. F. McMahon, of Baltimore. J. A. Barker will continue as manager for the new firm.

The Meyer-Stisser Co. reports a large business in seeds and poultry supplies.

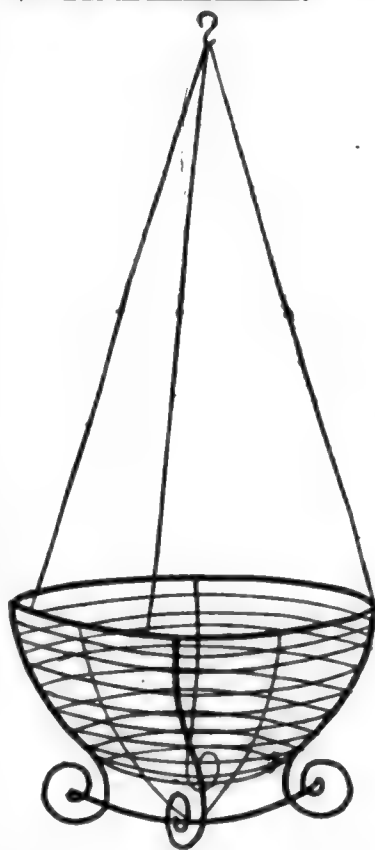

The Baltimore News, through its various agencies, has disposed of over 25,000 packets of assorted flower seeds during the present spring. These are sold at 1 cent per packet, to promote the growing of flowers in the back

Golden Queen is another yellow and John Pfister is a good crimson of dwarf habit. Set your plants nine inches apart each way and, if kept well pinched, they will soon cover the ground. ## BEST SOILS FOR FLORISTS.

Nitrates of Soda and Potash.

The use of nitrate of soda on fertile land is attended with good results, because not only does it serve as a source of nitrogen itself, but it acts as a solvent of other plant foods. If it is applied to poor land, small results are seen, because there is nothing for it to act upon. In dry seasons nitrate of soda is useful to assist vegetable crops. Lettuce, onion, cabbage, cauliflower, and leaf crops generally are much benefited by it. But it surely impoverishes a soil, and should not be applied alone, but mixed with phosphates.

Nitrate of potash, owing to its expense, is not much used as a fertilizer, there being a large demand for it in the manufacture of gunpowder. It may, however, be made at home. German kainite—otherwise called kainite salts—contains fifteen per cent of potash and is reasonable in price, but the use of it on land has not met with the beneficial results expected of it. But if these kainite salts be mixed in layers with manure, owing to the fermentation of the manure the kainite, which contains sulphate of potash, is converted into nitrate of potash.

Waste from Slaughter Houses.

Blood and tankage collected from the slaughter houses, and from the vats where the waste of butcher shops is boiled down and then dried, are valuable sources of nitrogen. A rich compost and an excellent fertilizer is made by mixing this blood and tankage with a potash salt or wood ashes. This is excellent for potatoes, and in fact any vegetable crop. Fish refuse is rich in nitrogen, containing as high as ten to twelve per cent. It should be used sparingly, and well mixed with the soil, as it may burn the crops. It should be valuable for corn, grapes, and most vegetable crops.

This branch of our business has been built up on the quality of the goods we have delivered to our customers. We desire that each and every Begonia grower send us his order, or at least a share of it, for comparison sake. Don't delay. Orders booked now will be delivered in June. All plants to be twice shifted and shipped from 2½-inch pots. All of the very highest quality.

BRANCH

Mention The Review when you write.

to 500 pounds per acre are taken from grass land every year, and if not put back the grass will eventually become thin and die out.

Bone and Superphosphates.

Phosphoric acid is put on the land in the form of ground bone, superphosphates and ground phosphate rock.

In addition to supplying phosphoric acid to the plants, phosphates appear to have a stimulating influence upon plants and soil.

Liebig, the famous German agricultural chemist, first proposed that sulphuric acid be added to bone. When so treated it was known as superphosphate and gave more rapid results than either ground bone or meal. This discovery was the real beginning of the fertilizing industry. The superphosphates are highly soluble and quick in their action. On account of their solubility, they are liable to be washed out of sandy land, and they are also rapidly used up by the growing plant. This would indicate that they are highly beneficial to grass, corn, peas and beans, and quick growing crops.

Gypsum, or land plaster, added to a superphosphate, reduces it and makes a better fertilizer for root crops and slow growing plants.

"TEDDY JUNIOR"

A Grand, New, Dwarf Fern

"Teddy Junior," the fern for every household. It is a sport from the now famous Roosevelt fern, and while its habit of growth is to produce a shorter frond, it retains all the valuable characteristics of the parent plant. The fronds are broad and beautifully tapered from base to tip; they droop just enough to make a shapely, graceful plant, permitting it to finish with a full center and perfectly symmetrical spread. The pinnae are distinctly undulated, giving the fronds an attractive, wavy appearance, which adds materially to their charming decorative effect, and thin, scraggy foliage is never seen in this variety. "Teddy" will produce about four times more fronds than any other fern ever introduced, finishing with fifty to sixty fronds in a 4-inch pot, while twelve to fifteen is the average number other varieties will produce in the same size pot. It is such a compact, vigorous grower that it will thrive under most adverse conditions, making an exceptionally rapid growth and producing a plant of rare beauty and perfection in the average dwelling house without special care or attention. Owing to its habit of producing the great quantity of massive foliage in small pots, this fern makes the finest pedestal plant ever produced, and will prove indispensable for decorating dining room or library tables and numerous other places in the home where limited space will not permit using large pots or varieties with longer fronds. As a table decoration, fern growers can appreciate the commercial value of a dwarf variety that will produce forty to fifty fronds twelve to fifteen inches long in a 4-inch pot. Such plants could readily be disposed of, and every grower can produce them from "Teddy Junior" with as little care and expense as they can grow other varieties. Fine, young plants from 2 1/4-inch pots, $3 per doz.; $15 per 100; $140 per 1,000.

Various Uses of Gypsum.

Gypsum is useful to apply to sandy soils, for to such soils lime cannot be applied. While this sulphate of lime suits the purpose admirably, it is profitable, easily spread and slowly soluble, and assists in absorbing and retaining the ammonia of fertilizers. It also absorbs water, and so increases the fertility of the soil. Gypsum, when mixed with farm or stable manure, or placed in poultry houses, or spread upon stable floors, fixes the ammonia and so prevents loss of nitrogen. It also has the power to absorb ammonia from the atmosphere. Gypsum also has the power of acting upon the silicates of the soil, releasing soda and potash and thus increasing fertility. Gypsum contains as high as fifty-six per cent of sulphate of lime, twenty per cent carbonate of lime, iron and some alkalis. A dressing of 500 pounds to the acre has increased the yield of clover one ton per acre. It is useful in rose and carnation soils, absorbing the surplus ammonia and giving it to the plant when needed. It also helps to prevent stem-rot by checking fermentation of decaying manure. It also corrects acidity in soils.

Magnesia and Iron.

We have now dealt with all the principal elements that are used by plants. Magnesia and iron and silica are found in the ash of plants, but these are usually found in sufficient quantities in soils for the plant's use. An oversupply of magnesia is injurious; so is an oversupply of iron. Iron is essential to all plant growth. The chlorophyl grains of the green leaves and green parts of plants all contain iron. Iron appears to have a stimulating influence upon beans and roses. A small quantity of sulphate of iron will add strength and vigor to beans. Good results should be obtained by using it in forcing beans. Roses respond readily, and a remarkable vigor and strength of growth is produced by using a solution of sulphate of iron. A few drops of chloride of iron, used for palms and plants whose foliage has lost its bright green color, will generally be beneficial. Of course, plants in sour soil, or having decayed roots, will not be so revived.

Rutland, Vt.—Sidney A. Baker is planning to increase his glass area, as his present houses are becoming too crowded. His stock for Easter was excellent and sold well.

 Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.30 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1913, to December 31, 1913, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders .....	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders.. ..	113.20
Net value of orders.....	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.30.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising. It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

The Market.

All hope of a clean-up of the cut flower market at some price was blasted by a two days' rain storm, which continued during Saturday and Sunday, so that the entire week proved a most unprofitable one, and there was no limit to the surplus on hand as the present week began. Midsummer prices prevailed, and the outlook was, by universal consent, called gloomy.

Enormous shipments of roses of all varieties arrive daily. Beauties fell to half their former prices. So, too, did the novelties, and boxes of all other varieties, assorted, including from No. 2's to specials, sold as low as $10 per thousand. It was another harvest time for the department stores.

In large quantities, the best carnations were selling as low as $10 per thousand. Only the novelties brought above this figure. Great quantities of the ordinary grade were cleared at 50 cents per hundred and under. Gardenias have not risen from last week's low quotations, and lilies are quite as abundant as, and even lower in price than, our last abnormal record. Every wholesaler is loaded with them.

Valley is still firm and not overabundant, good prices being maintained. There are more than enough orchids to meet all demands, and prices have not changed. Schœderæ is especially abundant. Violets and April go out together. Of spring flowers there is no limit. Bulbous stock, sweet peas, dafcorded.

A few of the leading retail houses report a fairly satisfactory week because of the April weddings. Apart from these, there has been little to encourage the trade generally.

Various Notes.

The next meeting of the New York
Florists' Club will be held Monday evening, May 11. Chairman Tuthill, of the essay committee, is arranging an interesting program.

Mothers' day, May 10, is already featured by judicious advertising and promises to be widely observed. All the white carnations that can possibly reach the New York market are already contracted for.

The bowlers meet every Monday evening at Coogan's alleys, on Twenty-sixth street. All members of the New York Florists' Club are welcome. A match is being arranged between New York and Astoria.

Oscar Lion, president of the ribbon house of Lion & Co., left Saturday, April 25, for an extended business tour through Germany, Switzerland, France and England.

M. A. Bowe has been busy lately with weddings and funeral work. At the opening of the baseball season he had the contract for a floral ball six feet in diameter, drawn by two floral lambs, the whole outfit requiring a truck to land it at the Polo grounds.
Many thousands of carnations were used in its construction. Arthur Merritt and Peter Downing were the artists.

The MacNiff Horticultural Co. is using considerable space in the Sunday editions of the city's big dailies.

J. T. Weier succeeds Walter G. Elliott as park commissioner of Queens.

Mr. Weier is a newspaper man. He begins his duties May 1. The salary is $5,000 per year. His residence is at Flushing, L. I., and he is well known as an amateur horticulturist and landscape gardener.

Immense importations of bulbs, trees, shrubs and plants continue to arrive. The principal houses to receive them last week were the Julius Roehrs Co., McHutchison & Co., MacNiff Horticultural Co., Elliott & Sons and Maltus & Ware.

The seed and bulb houses continue to enjoy an enormous trade, the long delayed advent of warm spring weather aiding materially in their work and advantageously delaying distribution. Otherwise it would have seemed impossible to overtake the volume of advance orders which all the seedsmen have received.

The auctions of plants, etc., draw big crowds of suburbanites twice weekly, and prices obtained are in advance of other seasons.

Paul and Henry Dailedouze are back from their European holiday. After the war with Mexico is over, they will probably begin their trip around the world.

John Young, secretary of the S. A. F., on his return from Boston last week spoke quite enthusiastically of the outlook for the August convention.

The Market.

Market conditions are unchanged from last week. The retailers can get roses at their own price. Carnations are equal to all demands and lilies and snapdragon are abundant. Iris is fine and sells on sight. Valley is scarce. This condition should prevail up to Mothers' day, with a gradual decrease

Club Meeting.

A special meeting of the Florists' Club was called April 27 by President Charles C. Russell, for the purpose of collecting the annual Mothers' day fund and to outline the advertising campaign for which the fund is to be used. The committee appointed to secure club rooms more centrally located than those now in use reported as having located excellent quarters at Hotel Hollenden, which is within two blocks of Public square. This location was accepted. A banquet was arranged, to be held May 1 at the new rooms. All are urged to attend.

The Mothers' day committee was appointed with power to collect the fund and promote advertising in various ways:

The Southwestern Market.

The flower trade last week was in a demoralized condition. The market was glutted, as all local consignors to this market are in full crop on everything that is seasonable. The consignments were more than could be handled in any one day. The big downtown retailers, who buy in large lots, made their own prices and all had bargain sales at low figures. The bulk of the stock consisted of sweet peas. These were so plentiful that the majority of lower grades were left unsold. Carnations and roses came in such abundance daily that the prices suffered greatly. Good stock in carnations went as low as $10 per thousand, with extra fancies not over $20. Fancy roses could be had as low as $5 per hundred and there was hardly any sale on short-stemmed stock. The warm days caused them to arrive soft and wide open. Easter lilies and callas are as low as $8 per hundred. Extra fancy lilac sells well, with double white in the lead. Other flowers, such as valley, daisies, mignonette, jonquils, tulips and snapdragons, were not looked after by the trade. Fancy cut gladioli sell well. Greens are plentiful.

Various Notes.

The Retail Florists' Association held a meeting at Washington hotel, April 20, with a good attendance. In the absence of President H. Young, Vice-president Theo. Miller presided over the meeting. The principal business was to effect an affiliation with other retail florists' associations. After transacting other important business, the meeting adjourned to the dining room, where a fine lunch was spread.

Wm. C. Smith and Dave Geddis spent a day at Springfield, Ill., last week, looking over the growing establishments there.

Since Easter the store of the Ellison Floral Co. has been closed. The firm has been declared bankrupt. Arthur Ellison, who has been running the place since the first of the year, is now in the employ of Fred Foster, at Delmar boulevard and King's highway.

The A. Brix Floral Co., which has a large retail store on St. Louis avenue, is out with a fine new auto delivery car, white with gold trimmings. Mr. Brix reports a busy spring in all lines.

Joe Hauser, of Webster Groves, is cutting a fine lot of lilac this week, which is handled by the Windler Wholesale Floral Co.

The Ladies' Home Circle will meet May 13, at the home of Mrs. E. E. Windler, 4245 Virginia avenue. This will be the first meeting of the circle south end florists, have plenty of orders ahead. F. H. Meinhardt and the Koenig Floral Co., whose places are opposite the two big cemeteries in the north end, will start this week. The fine, summerlike weather has brought them plenty of work.

A good number of suburban florists visited the wholesale district last week. Among them were noticed Ed. Denker, P. Schneider, Wm. Winter, W. J. Pilcher, H. Emunds, Hugo Werner, F. W. The Market.

There was a falling off in trade last week, and business has been rather dull, compared with previous weeks. Only a moderate amount of funeral work has been done and transient trade has been just fair. Garden and flower seeds are beginning to sell, as are trees, shrubs, rose bushes, etc. The weather is still cold, which is a great drawback to outdoor work. The ice in the lake is the cause of our cold, backward spring, and as soon as the ice disappears, the weather will begin to warm up.

Cut flowers in general are plentiful and in good condition. A heavy crop of roses in all varieties is now being disposed of. Sunburst is unusually good. Beauties are excellent but varied in length of stem, and prices are moderate. Snapdragons are great favorites just now and bring fancy prices. Valley is somewhat small; there is a shortage in the supply of valley, as there was a general clean-up just after Easter. Pansies, marguerites, mignonette, yellow daisies, swainsonas, calendulas and myosotis are seen in all the stores. Sweet peas are finer than ever, and the stems are getting longer. The effect of the sunlight on the carnations is perceptible by the strong fragrance and size of flowers. Harrisii lilies are scarce.

Club Meeting.

The monthly meeting of the Buffalo Florists' Club was held April 21 at Kasting's hall. Joseph Streit, chairman of the bowling committee, reported that the florists who bowled in the Business House League had won second prize at a match game last week. He also spoke in behalf of the bowling club and of their confidence in retaining the Lord & Burnham trophy next year.

A letter from the Rochester Florists' Association expressing the members' thanks and appreciation for the good time shown them at the banquet in March, was read. R. O. King invited the club to visit the plant of the King Construction Co., at North Tonawanda. He offered to charter a special car to take the club to the plant, and refreshments will be served. The club accepted the invitation, and a date will be set for early in May.

Harry E. Bates and Geo. B. Hart, both of Rochester, have joined the Buffalo Florists' Club. The applications of nine new members were approved and accepted. The committee on membership, as appointed by the president, consists of Edward Walther, W. A. Adams and Charles Sandiford.

John Dunbar, assistant superintendent of parks of Rochester, gave an illustrated lecture on "Pruning." He began his lecture by referring to the advance that horticulture has made during the last few years in its various phases. "The underlying principles of pruning have remained practically the same during the last few years," Mr. Dunbar said, "but tree surgery has made rapid strides during the last decade, and everything is being done to save shade and fruit trees by pruning operations and preservative measures or all kinds." The pruning and dis-budding of evergreens was especially interesting. A large number of slides were shown of street and park trees of Rochester and vicinity, especially the collection of coniferous evergreens at Highland park. W. McClure will give a lecture next month on "Landscape Architecture." Refreshments were served and all had a most enjoyable time.

Various Notes.

It is expected that a large number of Buffalo florists will go to Rochester to see the lilacs the second Sunday in May.

Big preparations are being made for Mothers' day, May 10, by advertising, window displays, suggestions, etc.

William Ehman, of Corfu, N. Y., has an enormous marguerite plant on exhibition in S. A. Anderson's Main street store. It stands almost five feet high, is about ten feet in circumference, perfectly round and is a mass of bloom. It calls forth a great deal of admiration from the flower buying public.

Felix Alberts had an elaborate wedding decoration in his display window last week. It consisted of an aisle post marking the aisle, a prie-dieu, bride's bouquet, bridesmaids' bouquets, baskets for flower girls, etc.

Business at Stroh's Flower Shop has been good, and Ed. Stroh says he has all he can do at present. E. C. A.

Seed Trade News.*AMERICAN SEED TRADE ASSOCIATION.President, C. C. Massie, Minneapolis; Secretary-Treasurer, O. E. Kendel, Cleveland, O.
Thirty-second annual convention, Washington, D. C., June 23 to 25, 1914.

THIS has been an excellent season, both for onion seeds and onion sets, according to Schilder Bros., of Chillicothe, Ohio.

CHARLES N. PAGE, president of the Iowa Seed Co., Des Moines, is spending a few weeks camping in the Ozarks in the hope of improving his health.

APPARENTLY there is "something doing" in French Romans. One report is that large sizes will be scarce and another that conditions are normal, while a large exporter considers it advisable to cable his agents in this country to stop selling.

MRS. H. B. FULLERTON, Medford, L. I., is chairman of the committee which is arranging for a women's agricultural conference at the Pennsylvania School of Horticulture for Women, Ambler, Pa. The date is to be May 16. One of the speakers is to be Mrs. Francis King, for whom the gladiolus was named.

THE U. S. Civil Service Commission will hold an examination at Chicago, and a large number of other places throughout the country, June 3 to secure eligibles for appointments as laboratory aids in seed testing in the Bureau of Plant Industry, Department of Agriculture, at Washington at $720 a year salary.

It is estimated that the Southern Pacific will need 5,000 cars to move the west coast cantaloupe crop to eastern and southern markets. The Southern Pacific expects this season to carry to the east from southern California alone close to 72,000,000 cantaloupes. The first trainload of cantaloupes will move east about May 20.

CHANGING from an association to a corporation, S. W. Flower &amp; Co., of Toledo, O., is now the S. W. Flower Co. Its capitalization is $100,000. The incorporators are Charles S. Burge, John A. Smith, Richard Sheldon, R. G. Burge and L. M. Burlingame. The last two were taken into the company in reward for their services of the last twelve years with the seed concern.

THE seed trade is interested in what is happening to the insecticide manufacturers. Everybody recognizes that the aims of the leading houses are above suspicion, but the factory hands fall down when it comes to getting into the package the things the label says should be found there. Then the boss is pilloried. What, then, would be the fate of a seedsman who stood between a strict law and a "to err is human" force of assistants? Modern business conditions do not permit employing high priced, skilled labor in handling cheap commodities.

First Come First Served

When the writer was a boy 5:30 a. m. was time to get up. The pancakes were hot about that time but a half-hour later what were left were cold—and there wasn't a second crop either. It was first come first served. Now it's the same in lily bulbs—early orders are necessary for good deliveries for large sizes and scarce varieties. Those who let it go until late, must get what is left if anything—now do you want "what is left" or do you want the "choice stock"?

MR. WILSON IS BUSY.

Apparently the President is busy; either that or he is applying his policy of watchful waiting to the matter of the postage on seeds and plants. At any rate no word had come April 28 with regard to the signing of the act of Congress which will restore the seed trade's old flat rate of 1 cent for each two ounces on parcels weighing not over eight ounces. The President may have his pen in hand at the moment, but the seed and plant trades still are using up postage stamps at the rate of a cent for each ounce up to four, and paying pound rates on anything above that.

The inquiry division of the Chicago postoffice reports daily inquiries from seedsmen who want to know if the new rates have yet gone into effect.

IT IS TO LAUGH.

When the bill to reduce the postage on light parcels of seeds and plants was up in the House, April 20, the following was part of the debate, according to the Congressional Record:

"Mr. Payne. Seedsmen have taken their orders this year for ninety per cent of the seeds and bulbs that go out, relying on the lower rate of postage. When Congress, without notice to them, adopted this amendment of the Senate to the postoffice appropriation bill, these men found themselves in this position: If they fulfill their contracts on these small weights, they have to pay double, and in some cases four times, the postage they would have paid under the former rate, and if they do not get relief by this bill they lose a great deal of money. The course of business will be interrupted. Of course everybody realizes how important it is that these seeds and bulbs be sent out to the farmers throughout the country at a low rate of postage. I think for this season especially it is important that this low rate be adopted, and then the postoffice committee, when it comes to study the question in regard to the future, can amend it and the gentleman's idea about pound-postage rates, and so forth, can be adopted; but just now it is important that the low rate be established on these low weights of seeds and packages of that kind, ninety per cent the whole trade of which is in these lower-weight packages.

"Mr. Stafford. Mr. Speaker, until the gentleman stated that the spring seed had not been sent out, and that ninety per cent was withheld, I was under the impression that the spring distribution had taken place.

"Mr. Allen. No; it has not.

"Mr. Stafford. And being under that impression, I was inclined to ask unanimous consent to have this bill go over for two weeks, but in view of the fact that the seed houses are withholding ninety per cent of the spring seeding, I would not wish to levy that great burden upon them."

No wonder the bill passed!

BARRING THE UNFIT SEEDS.

Government Issues Regulations.

To take effect June 1, 1914, the following regulations have been promulgated for the enforcement of "the act to regulate foreign commerce by prohibiting the admission into the United States of certain adulterated grain and seeds unfit for seeding purposes," approved August 24, 1912, to be known and referred to as "the seed importation act of August 24, 1912":

Regulation 1 is the paragraph above quoted, and Regulation 2 consists of definitions, particularly of 105 plants that shall be considered as weeds.

REGULATION 3—SAMPLING: UPON SPECIFIC REQUEST OF THE SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE.

The collector of customs shall draw and forward for examination, when so requested by the secretary of agriculture or his representative, samples of all seeds enumerated in the act when offered for import into the United States.

REGULATION 4—SAMPLING: WITHOUT SPECIFIC REQUEST OF THE SECRETARY OF AGRICULTURE.

The collector of customs shall draw and forward for examination, without specific request from the secretary of agriculture, samples of all seeds of alfalfa, Canadian blue grass, Kentucky blue grass, awnless brome grass, clover, meadow fescue, millet, orchard grass, rape, redtop, timothy, or mixtures of seeds containing any of such seeds as one of the principal component parts, from non-contiguous territory, entered on pro forma invoices. Similar action should be taken with respect to seeds of the same kinds from contiguous territory, whether or not a consular invoice is presented on the entry thereof.

REGULATION 5—DRAWING SAMPLES.

When a shipment is made up of several lots differing in quality or price, sample of each lot shall be submitted as though each lot were a separate shipment. The sample of each lot or shipment submitted to the seed laboratories, in accordance with Regulation 6, shall be drawn as follows: When a lot consists of five sacks or less, each sack shall be sampled, and when consisting of more than five sacks, every fifth sack, but not less than five sacks, shall be sampled.

REGULATION 6—SAMPLES, WHERE SENT.

All samples drawn under the act by customs officers shall be forwarded to the respective seed laboratories under which the ports are grouped in the following list of seed-laboratory districts unless otherwise specifically requested by the secretary of agriculture or his representative.

1. Seed Laboratory, United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.—All ports in the states of Maine, Vermont, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware, Virginia, Ohio, West Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia, and Port Huron and Detroit, Mich.

2. Seed Laboratory, Purdue University, La Fayette, Ind.—All ports in the states of Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Wisconsin and Minnesota, and all ports in Michigan except Port Huron and Detroit.

3. Seed Laboratory, Agricultural Experiment Station, Columbia, Mo.—All ports in the states of Missouri, Iowa, Arkansas, North Dakota, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma and Colorado.

4. Seed Laboratory, Agricultural Experiment Station, Baton Rouge, La.—All ports in the states of Alabama, Mississippi, Florida, Louisiana, Texas and New Mexico.

5. Seed Laboratory, Agricultural College, Corvallis, Ore.—All ports in the states of Montana, Wyoming, Idaho, Oregon and Washington.

6. Seed Laboratory, Agricultural Experiment Station, Berkeley, Cal.—All ports in the states of California, Nevada, Arizona and Utah.

REGULATION 7—NOTICE TO CONSIGNEE.

The collector of customs shall immediately notify the consignee that samples have been drawn and that the remainder of the shipment must be held intact, pending a decision of the secretary of agriculture in the matter.

REGULATION 8—EXAMINATION OF SEEDS—DELIVERY IN BOND.

Seeds offered for importation into the United States from any foreign country, of which samples are taken for examination by the secretary of agriculture, shall be admitted only after the samples have been examined and pronounced to be neither adulterated nor unfit for seeding purposes within the meaning of the seed importation act, August 24, 1912; provided, however, that the collector of customs may deliver to the consignee shipments which have been sampled on the execution of a bond in a penal sum equal to the invoice value of the seeds, together with the duty thereon, if any, conditioned upon the redelivery thereof to the collector when demanded by him for any reason within thirty days from the date of entry. Form Cat. No. 3393 may be slightly modified and used for this bond, and should be drawn to cover also any recleaning that may become necessary.

THE GREATEST CANNA NOVELTY OF THE DECADE QUEEN HELEN

3½-inch pot plants, $3.00 each; per dozen, $30.00

½ dozen at same rate as per dozen. Plants ready now; can be shipped immediately

QUEEN HELEN is a green-leaved sport of King Humbert, retaining all the good qualities that have made Humbert the best Canna heretofore introduced—and Queen Helen has several points of superiority over Humbert. Same orchid-like flowers, golden yellow color, evenly spotted with red; stronger grower, producing more than twice as many shoots per plant; flower clusters larger; green-leaved, foliage large and glossy. Queen Helen is a variety that in years to come will be grown more generally than any other one canna. One large canna grower says it is the best novelty ever produced.

This Canna originated at our place in the year 1910 and the first time it was mentioned in The Florists' Review was June 15, 1911, under the St. Louis items, where I had shown a plant at one of our club meetings.

Deer Park, Ala., Oct. 12, 1913.
HENRY EMUNDS—Dear Sir: We note your picture of Queen Helen Canna in The Review and would like to have you write us fully regarding it. *** According to the picture, this Canna must have special merits, and we would be glad to assist you in its introduction, etc.

Yours truly, L. H. READ & Co.

Deer Park, Ala., Oct. 25, 1913.
HENRY EMUNDS—Dear Sir: Your box of Queen Helen duly received, and I should have written you sooner. *** There is no question but you have one of the greatest novelties ever produced, and we should like to know all the particulars regarding same. We have the largest and most complete collection of Cannas in America, consisting of 170 choice named varieties, etc. We remain,
Yours truly,

L. H. READ & Co.

PACIFIC COAST DEPARTMENT

View in the Retail Store of the Los Angeles Flower Market, with the Proprietors, Messrs. Morton and Sperry, in the Foreground.

SPIRÆAS FLOWERED POORLY.

Here, in southern California, spiræas need but little forcing for Easter. My spiræa roots were potted on arrival and placed on the ground in a lath house. They were extremely slow in starting. In the latter part of March the foliage had a good color and the plants were in fine shape for Easter, except that they did not bloom as freely as they should. I have never had this trouble before. What is the cause? A. B. C.

The reason lies in the clumps not being properly prepared for flowering. A. B. C. does not say whether he used newly imported or left-over clumps, but, as they did not flower well, probably the latter were used. These are seldom satisfactory and it pays to purchase new ones annually, as the price is really lower than they can be locally grown for. H. R. R.

SAN DIEGO, CAL.

All the retailers unite in saying the Easter business was considerably ahead of expectations. There was plenty of stock in almost all lines, both locally and from Los Angeles. Cut flowers and plants sold about equally well.

Boyle & Darnaud report their Easter business about sixty per cent above that of last year. This firm grew practically all its own Easter lilies, valley and orchids, all of the stock coming in perfect shape.

The seventh annual flower show was opened April 16 at the Buxton Arcade and continued April 17 and 18. Owing to the excellent management of the committee, the exhibits were all staged on time and everything was in readiness when the doors were opened. Among the best of the florists' displays was that of Boyle & Darnaud, this firm being especially successful. Out of nine entries they took seven first prizes and two specials. These were principally in rose classes, but an exceedingly attractive table decoration, put up by Mrs. Hurlbert of this firm, was also a winner. The exhibits submitted by school children were a prominent feature, and everyone connected with the show is to be congratulated on the excellent outcome.

Lanier Bros. report business much better than last year. H. R. R.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Trade is dull, much more so than is usual at this time of year, and growers are somewhat discouraged. In the retail stores the low prices at which stock can be purchased help to soothe the feelings, especially when some good funeral work appears, but business all around is on the quiet side and the florists' business as much so as any. The stock on hand is about the same as last noted, except that some nice gladioli have appeared. The great heat of a few days ago practically finished the tulips and also burned up much of the Spanish iris.

Various Notes.

Walter Garbett, manager of Darling's Flower Shop, secured the work at the Merritt-Polk wedding, one of the best here for many months. The wedding was at St. John's church, and all the decorations were carried out in Delft colors. The bride's bouquet was of lily of the valley, orchids, forget-me-nots and Cecile Brunner roses, tied with imported spun glass ribbon and shadow lace. The other bouquets were of similar color, but smaller. The amount paid for bouquets alone was over $400. Mr. Garbett is, of course, in full charge of all business matters connected with this busy store.

C. C. Wooden, formerly bookkeeper for W. Armacost & Co. and more recently for the H. N. Gage Co., has left Los Angeles for Baltimore and his place at the Gage store has been filled by A. J. Burchett. The gladioli handled here are especially good.

Wolfskill's & Morris Goldenson furnished the pall for the O'Neil funeral, using over 1,000 lily of the valley and a large number of orchids.

James O'Reilly, until recently with J. W. Wolters and previously at Wright's Flower Shop, was married April 14 to Miss Florence Becker. They will make their home at San Fernando.

Fred Sperry has again been on the sick list.

Robert Shenk is no longer with the Los Angeles Flower Market.

The annual spring show of the Santa Monica Women's Club was held April 21 and was a great success. Columbia hall was filled with a choice gathering of flowers of all kinds, well arranged and of good quality. The group of roses, rhododendrons and other flowers put up by W. Armacost & Co. was excellent in every particular. I never saw American Beauty roses more artistically displayed than they were by this firm's capable decorator on the side of the stage. The judges were C. Morton, W. Felgate and H. R. Richards, all of whom later in the day had an enjoyable visit to the Armacost greenhouses at Sawtelle.

Following the distribution of their catalogue, immense numbers of young roses are being shipped from the Dieterich & Turner range, at Montebello, and according to H. Turner this will be a record season along this line.

SPIRÆAS FLOWERED POORLY.

Here, in southern California, spiræas need but little forcing for Easter. My spiræa roots were potted on arrival and placed on the ground in a lath house. They were extremely slow in starting. In the latter part of March the foliage had a good color and the plants were in fine shape for Easter, except that they did not bloom as freely as they should. I have never had this trouble before. What is the cause? A. B. C.

The reason lies in the clumps not being properly prepared for flowering. A. B. C. does not say whether he used newly imported or left-over clumps, but, as they did not flower well, probably the latter were used. These are seldom satisfactory and it pays to purchase new ones annually, as the price is really lower than they can be locally grown for. H. R. R.

SAN DIEGO, CAL.

All the retailers unite in saying the Easter business was considerably ahead of expectations. There was plenty of stock in almost all lines, both locally and from Los Angeles. Cut flowers and plants sold about equally well.

Boyle & Darnaud report their Easter business about sixty per cent above that of last year. This firm grew practically all its own Easter lilies, valley and orchids, all of the stock coming in perfect shape.

The seventh annual flower show was opened April 16 at the Buxton Arcade and continued April 17 and 18. Owing to the excellent management of the committee, the exhibits were all staged on time and everything was in readiness when the doors were opened. Among the best of the florists' displays was that of Boyle & Darnaud, this firm being especially successful. Out of nine entries they took seven first prizes and two specials. These were principally in rose classes, but an exceedingly attractive table decoration, put up by Mrs. Hurlbert of this firm, was also a winner. The exhibits submitted by school children were a prominent feature, and everyone connected with the show is to be congratulated on the excellent outcome.

Lanier Bros. report business much better than last year. H. R. R.

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Trade is dull, much more so than is usual at this time of year, and growers are somewhat discouraged. In the retail stores the low prices at which stock can be purchased help to soothe the feelings, especially when some good funeral work appears, but business all around is on the quiet side and the florists' business as much so as any. The stock on hand is about the same as last noted, except that some nice gladioli have appeared. The great heat of a few days ago practically finished the tulips and also burned up much of the Spanish iris.

Various Notes.

Walter Garbett, manager of Darling's Flower Shop, secured the work at the Merritt Polk wedding, one of the best here for many months. The wedding was at St. John's church, and all the decorations were carried out in Delft colors. The bride's bouquet was of lily of the valley, orchids, forget-me-nots and Cecile Brunner roses, tied with imported spun glass ribbon and shadow lace. The other bouquets were of similar color, but smaller. The amount paid for bouquets alone was over $400. Mr. Garbett is, of course, in full charge of all business matters connected with this busy store.

C. C. Wooden, formerly bookkeeper for W. Armacost & Co. and more recently for the H. N. Gage Co., has left Los Angeles for Baltimore and his place at the Gage store has been filled by A. J. Burchett. The gladioli handled here are especially good.

Wolfskill's & Morris Goldenson furnished the pall for the O'Neil funeral, using over 1,000 lily of the valley and a large number of orchids.

James O'Reilly, until recently with J. W. Wolters and previously at Wright's Flower Shop, was married April 14 to Miss Florence Becker. They will make their home at San Fernando.

Fred Sperry has again been on the sick list.

Robert Shenk is no longer with the Los Angeles Flower Market.

The annual spring show of the Santa Monica Women's Club was held April 21 and was a great success. Columbia hall was filled with a choice gathering of flowers of all kinds, well arranged and of good quality. The group of roses, rhododendrons and other flowers put up by W. Armacost & Co. was excellent in every particular. I never saw American Beauty roses more artistically displayed than they were by this firm's capable decorator on the side of the stage. The judges were C. Morton, W. Felgate and H. R. Richards, all of whom later in the day had an enjoyable visit to the Armacost greenhouses at Sawtelle.

Following the distribution of their catalogue, immense numbers of young roses are being shipped from the Dieterich & Turner range, at Montebello, and according to H. Turner this will be a record season along this line.

Frank Wilhelm reports unusually large sales of chrysanthemum cuttings. Mr. Box, until recently foreman at

SANTA MONICA, CAL.

Landscape Work on the Bluffs.

The bluffs at Santa Monica, looking out over the Pacific, have for years been planted with eucalyptus and a few common date palms, but absolutely nothing has been done to give any brightness or life to the planting and a somber, dull appearance at all times of the year is the result. Recently the mayor and park commissioners under took a scheme of landscaping here, opening up vistas of the ocean by removing a few old, scrubby eucalyptus trees and cleaning up the palms preparatory to putting in lawns, flower beds and other aids to life and brightness.

This has apparently brought down the wrath of the usual faultfinders, who deplore the loss of these weatherworn, unsightly gums, which never ought to have been planted in the first place. Farther down, on what until a few weeks ago was a sandy waste, a pergola has been built and pines and shrubbery have been planted, in addition to which a lawn has been put in and is already making good headway.

The proposition is a difficult one, but those in charge are doing their utmost, by selecting hardy kinds and suitably grouping them, to take away the bare appearance and give beauty and life in its place. There is therefore all the less reason for caviling and faultfinding and it is to be hoped that now, when the plantings are beginning to take shape and the woebegone looks of these fine cliffs is being removed, these carpings will cease.

Howard & Smith, the well-known nurserymen of Los Angeles, are supplying much of the shrubbery and advising as to the carrying out of the work.

H. R. Richards.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

With the advancement of the season, stock is becoming more plentiful. While there is a steady call for funeral and decorative work, the store trade has been rather slow, which is the usual condition after Easter. Roses are gradually increasing in quantity and there is also a decided improvement in the quality. Beauties are still scarce. Maid and Killarney are in fine form. The first cut of Kaiserin was sent in last week and was exceptionally choice. Carnations are plentiful. The standard prices are maintained by the better class of stores. Darwin tulips are coming in well, with good prices prevailing. Fancy lilac, snapdragon and iris are the novelties of the week. The first outside roses to bloom were seen last week, these being the premature buds.

Various Notes.

S. Lubliner will move to a new location, in the Portland hotel, about May 1. This is an ideal location, being nearer to the business center and on a prominent street.

John Gower, of Newberg, Ore., was in the city for a few days last week.

The Market.

After a busy week following Easter, business has been none too promising. Stock is in excellent condition; there is no great surplus of any one thing, although carnations are in oversupply. Sweet peas are selling well, as are roses also. The last violets of this season have made their exit.

Many of the growers have thrown out their carnations, which are to be followed by vegetables. This will have a tendency to keep up the prices for those holding their plants over.

The recent heavy frosts have checked the early planting, which had fairly begun. Bedding stock is in excellent condition and there seems to be a good supply of this, with the exception of geraniums. Some growers report a shortage on these plants.

Various Notes.

The next regular Florists' Club meeting will be held May 7.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

THE death of J. M. Vandervort, of J. M. Vandervort & Son, proprietors of the New Antioch Nurseries, at New Antioch, O., is recorded in this week's obituary column.

THE county horticultural commissioner announces that 62,000 fruit trees, mostly Bartlett pears, have been planted in Nevada county, California, this spring. Large areas of timber land are being cleared and planted in expectation of making that section a commercial fruit region.

BIG NURSERY SEASON.

Reports to the traffic officials of the Alton lines indicate that the C. & A. R. R. has recently finished handling one of the biggest nursery season's business in history. Bloomington and Normal, in Illinois, and Louisiana, in Missouri, are all big shipping points for nursery products by the C. & A. and they have handled an enormous amount of these products this year.

CAN SOME READER ANSWER?

After much searching, a friend of mine, who was formerly in the nursery business, found an old recipe for destroying vermin and parasites on fruit and shade trees. He claims that this recipe is especially recommended for borers in peach trees, also for coating horse-bitten trees and heavy wounds. He does not remember whether this formula was cooked, nor in what proportions, except the nicotine, the chemicals were used. Can you give this information?

The ingredients are as follows:

Twenty per cent of forty per cent nicotine.

Arsenate of lead.

Copper sulphate.

Boiled linseed oil.

Tar and distillate oils.

What kind of distillate oils are used in this formula? Is copper sulphate also known as bluestone? [Yes.—Ed.]
L. S., Jr.

LAW AND THE NURSERYMAN.

Power of Regulation.

To prevent the spread of tree diseases, it has become an established principle of law in this country that the legislature of a state may adopt any reasonable regulation which has a legitimate tendency in that direction. For example, in upholding the validity of a law providing for the inspection of nurseries selling their product in South Dakota, the Supreme Court of that state said, in the case of Ex-parte Hawley, 115 Northwestern Reporter 93:

We have always found The Review a top notcher as to results received from wholesale advertising of nursery stock.—Atlantic Nursery Co., per D. W. Babcock, Mgr., Berlin, Md., January 16, 1914.

Reason for Regulation.

"It is a matter of common knowledge of which the court may take judicial notice that trees and other forms of plant life are subject to destructive communicable diseases. Diseases in plants have existed as long as plants themselves—ages before the advent of man. In the earliest historical records, as well as in the early Greek and Roman times, some of the more destructive diseases of plants, such as rust and mildew, or blight of cereals, were widely known and discussed, and though, formerly, unreliable theories on the subject may have received more or less general recognition, the recent exhaustive researches of distinguished specialists have placed the pathology of plants on a foundation scarcely less scientific and satisfactory than that occupied by the pathology of animals. * * * This being so, the power to prescribe regulations calculated to prevent the spread of diseases among plants cannot be less ample than the power to prescribe regulations to prevent the spread of diseases among domestic animals. * * * Therefore, the provision of the statute under discussion, requiring a certificate from a competent entomologist, being manifestly intended and calculated to prevent the sale and distribution of diseased nursery stock, applicable alike to resident and non-resident dealers, and one which does not go beyond the necessities of the case or unreasonably burden the exercise of privileges secured by the state or federal constitutions, such provision conflicts with no principle of constitutional law, and its validity must be sustained."

As sustaining this decision, the South Dakota court cites the case of State vs. Mann, 37 Atlantic Reporter 80, wherein the Connecticut Supreme Court of Errors upheld a law requiring the destruction of peach trees found to be affected with yellows. In the latter case, the court said:

An Exercise of Police Power.

"Such a disease it was proper for the general assembly, in the exercise of its police power, to endeavor to suppress, even by the destruction of the trees affected by it, if there was a reasonable apprehension of substantial danger from allowing them to live, to those who might eat their fruit, or to other peach orchards. Unless the courts can see that there could by no possibility be such danger, the propriety of such legislation as that now in question is to be determined solely by the discretion of the legislative department. The description of this disease given in the standard works and government publications, and the legislation in regard to it to be found in the statute books of Delaware, Maryland, Michigan, New York, Pennsylvania, Virginia and the Province of Ontario, are amply sufficient to establish, as a matter of judicial notice, the possibility, if not the probability, that it is a contagious disease." The court concludes that the destruction of a tree affected by a disease of that character, without compensation to the owner and against his will, is as fully within the police power of a state as the destruction of a house threatened by a spreading conflagration, or of the clothes of a person who has fallen a victim to smallpox. It is decided, however, that a finding on the part of public authorities that a tree is infected with a contagious disease is not conclusive—that the owner can excuse non-compliance with an order that he destroy a tree by showing that, in fact, it is not infected.

Speaking of the power to regulate nurseries, the South Dakota Supreme Court, in the case above cited, said:

Unreasonable Interference.

"The establishment of a nursery involves labor rather than the expenditure of money. Usually it is begun in a small way by a man of moderate means. One who has invested his toil in the production of sound trees cannot be denied the right to sell them without being deprived of his property without due process of law. * * * The legislature may regulate, but it may not prohibit, the sale or introduction into the state of any legitimate articles of commerce. * * * Certainly it cannot confer upon the board of agricul-

PROVIDENCE, R. I.

The Market.

Stores and growers are now preparing for the Memorial day trade. With business in a normal condition, there is a full supply of everything, the influx of carnations and roses exceeding the demand, causing a decided drop in the market. Outdoor work is commencing in earnest and most of the landscape men have plenty of work booked for the immediate future.

Various Notes.

Cornelius Sullivan, who recently left T. O'Connor after sixteen years, has engaged with Joseph Koppelman in the latter's greenhouses at Oaklawn.

Earl H. Williams is building four greenhouses and a boiler house for the J. A. Budlong & Sons Co., on Pontiac avenue, Auburn. The greenhouses are each 22x610 feet. The boiler house will be 20x40 feet, of brick, sixteen feet high.

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Hess, of Newport, have returned from their honeymoon trip, in New York and vicinity.

Mrs. H. H. Pepper, wife of H. Howard Pepper, of the Melrose Rose Gardens, reached home last week after a seven months' trip to visit her mother in India. W. H. M.

BOSTON.

The Market.

Not for a long time has the flower market been in a weaker or more thoroughly demoralized condition. Prices ruled lower than in the previous week and there was no stability to anything. Roses and carnations usually lose favor as the season advances and at present few of them are seen in window decorations, which consist mainly of snapdragons, Spanish iris, sweet peas, calendulas, English primroses, yellow marguerites, cornflowers and orchids. Roses are druggy; $5 per thousand is all that many of the short-stemmed flowers bring. Special flowers only reach $5 to $6 per hundred. American Beauties are low, the best specials going at $15 to $20 per hundred, some even lower. Carnations in extreme cases climb to $2 or $2.50 per hundred, but only fancy flowers reach these figures. Many go slowly at even $1 per hundred.

Double violets still arrive, but they are small and cut little figure. Sweet peas sell as well as anything on the list, especially Spencers. The best of these make $1.50 per hundred. Dutch bulbous flowers grown indoors hold out well, thanks to the continued cold weather, but they are nearing the end. Spanish iris is abundant. Ixias and ranunculi are of good quality. Lilies and callas are selling at low prices; even lily of the valley has failed to attract buyers. Antirrhinums remain hard to sell. A few flowers, such as ixias, iris, yellow marguerites, Spencer sweet peas and cornflowers, are in pretty good demand. Long-stemmed gardenias sell slowly at $3 per dozen. Cattleya Mossiae and Schrodere make

Various Notes.

William Sim is marketing 15,000 to 25,000 sweet peas of splendid quality daily, mostly Spencers. Another season he will grow nothing but Spencers. He will have some large houses in heavy crop for Memorial day.

William H. Carr is handling the finest long-stemmed ixias I have seen this season. They were grown by John W.

Davie, of Dedham. He also has fine Spanish iris in a variety of colors, grown in benches, from Herman Waldecker, of Braintree.

Thomas Roland continues to send in some superb specimen plants of Tausendschon roses. He has a heavy cut of roses from his Revere establishment.

W. J. Cain, of Newtonville, is sending in bunches of nasturtiums in several colors, in addition to fine sweet peas.

McAlpine & McDonald are getting magnificent Spencer peas. Those named Pink Beauty, from Gustave Olson, of Woburn, are grand. Their cut of long-stemmed roses is large. Among miscellaneous flowers here I noticed mignonne and Spanish iris in quantity.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. is doing a good business in boxes of assorted roses; twenty-five flowers for 50 cents. Their general business is good.

The Central Greenhouses, of West Roxbury, have this season made specialties of callas and carnations, both of which have done extremely well.

A special meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club will be held before the next regular meeting to discuss S. A. F. and other matters. One suggestion made is that the club make an extensive display from its members, both commercial and private, in the convention garden. Mid-August, however, is a poor time for displays from private estates, unless they be of indoor plants, which would need protection from the elements. With a spring convention it would be otherwise, as a wealth of material would be at command.

bulbous flowers. They are still sending in large lots of narcissi, in addition to callas and carnations.

In one of Carbone's windows April 25 I noted a charming arrangement of yellow laburnums and yellow and orange Azalea mollis, not packed close together, but loosely arranged so as to show each plant's individuality. In another window was a fine bowl of hardy blue larkspurs, in addition to Spanish iris, ixias and pink snapdragons.

H. M. Robinson & Co. report trade as good, with long-stemmed Beauties in special demand. They now have their extensive Memorial day stock arranged attractively.

In the list of awards made at the last club meeting one or two errors appeared in last week's report. Charles Sander showed a plant of Cyrtopodium Aliciae, an orchid but rarely seen, carrying an immense branched spike of flowers. W. N. Craig secured a report of superior merit for antirrhinums, and a report of merit for Narcissus Olympia, a large trumpet variety.

E. J. Ahern, of Wellesley, is one of the heaviest shippers of English primroses to the wholesale markets this season; he also specializes in calendulas.

A. E. Walsh is getting excellent lily of the valley and Spanish iris from W. Jurgens, while mignonette and snapdragons from the Halifax Garden Co. are good.

F. J. Dolansky is now cutting some good Cattleya gigas, in addition to Mossiae and Schroederae. His gardenias are of grand quality. Mr. Dolansky is

A great suffrage demonstration and street parade in Boston May 2 promises to stimulate the cut flower business. The anti-suffragists have announced their intention of wearing red roses and donating them to all who are willing to wear them. Now, if the suffragists will select white or pink ones, the rose men will feel much happier than they did April 25.

Welch Bros. were doing a first-class business April 25. Flowers were overabundant, but their shipping trade was using large numbers and the firm was optimistic as to the future.

Paine Bros., of Randolph, in addition to their extensive line of bulbous flowers, have fine lavender and white sweet peas.

Tirrell, C. Orsett and Hanover Greenhouses.

April 25 Penn had one window entirely devoted to pink snapdragons, charmingly arranged. In another window pink sweet peas, Spiraea Queen Alexandra and Tausendschon roses made a pretty effect.

A call at the seed stores April 25 showed all of them to be rushed to the limit. In addition to the handling of farm and garden seeds, a heavy business is being done in grass seed, trees and shrubs, gladioli, pansies and forget-me-nots. Box and bay trees are also in demand.

W. H. Ward, of Montvale, has had a successful season with carnations, Mrs. Ward having no trouble in disposing of all at good prices. Callas still are being cut in quantity.

At Galvin's Tremont street store I noted a nice lot of Dendrobium thyrsiflorum. Yellow marguerites, sweet peas and pink snapdragons are the favorite cut flowers for window decoration here at present.

Mothers' day will this year be made more of than ever before in Boston. Both wholesalers and retailers now look upon this as an important flower day and are preparing to meet the increasing demand. All are of the opinion that no special flower should be recommended. In past years carnations have boomed and other flowers slumped. A wider range of flowers will be used this year. W. N. Craig.

Brattleboro, Vt.—Leon Mixer is building a greenhouse to handle his growing trade in tomato plants and lettuce, which is now larger than can be taken care of by his hotbeds.

Waltham, Mass.—James T. Silman and Matthew F. Ruane both were the victims of a check swindler recently and each lost $8 on the same day. A man pretending to represent a local patriotic organization asked to have a piece sent to a member's funeral and tendered a $15 check in payment of the bill of $7, receiving $8 in cash. Investigation later proved that no one had been delegated to buy flowers for the organization.

New Rose, Killarney Brilliant

THE MOST VALUABLE ROSE INTRODUCED IN MANY YEARS.

We consider this new rose—a sport from the original pink Killarney—the most valuable rose that has been introduced in many years. It is well named Killarney Brilliant, on account of its brilliant color.

It is a great improvement on the original pink Killarney; first, because of its much more brilliant color, it being almost crimson in bright weather, while in midwinter—in dull, cloudy and foggy weather,—when the original pink Killarney loses its brilliancy and becomes badly faded, Killarney Brilliant is as bright and deep a pink as the original variety at its best. In addition to its great superiority in color, the flower is almost twice as large, having from twenty-five to forty full-sized petals.

It has the same desirable color that Killarney Queen possesses, but has double the number of petals, making it a very double and a fuller flower; and it is also very much more productive, having the same habit of growth and the same freedom of bloom as its parent.

We have watched Killarney Brilliant growing during the past winter, planted in the same house with the original and the double pink Killarney, and when those varieties faded so as to be almost unmarketable, Killarney Brilliant was superb. We are thoroughly convinced that it will immediately supplant the original Killarney as the standard market variety, and that every up-to-date grower will be compelled to plant it, on account of its great superiority. A prominent rose grower, who has seen it growing, says it is the only rose he has ever seen that needs no advertising; it sells itself.

COLUMBUS, O.

The Market.

Trade has been quite heavy here since the Easter rush, with a good supply of stock. Roses are coming in well and are about equal to the demand. The quality of most of them is extra fine. Killarney, White Killarney, Sunburst, Ward, Richmond and Reid make up the greater part of the supply. Carnations are quite plentiful, as a rule. The crops are heavier now than they have been for some time past. There is still a great number of splits, which can hardly be accounted for. The quality of the others is all that could be desired. Lilies are still quite plentiful, and they are good sellers, as they come in finely for funeral work, which has been quite heavy at times. Bulb stock from inside is practically all gone, but some is to be had from out-doors.

Some irises are coming in now and help to fill in the want column. Snapdragons are still good and are ready sellers. They seem to fill a long-felt want, as they last about as well as anything the customer can buy, and the public is beginning to find it out. The sale of pot plants is quite heavy, and it begins to look like spring, with the geraniums in the stores all in full bloom. The weather at present is springlike and everybody is getting the notion of planting out spring stock. We have to turn them down for the time being, but we can all see the big rush only a few days off. J. M.

Beloit, Wis.—William Stuart will open a store soon in the Emerson building, on State street. He will receive daily shipments from Chicago.

Richmond, Ind.—The most interesting sight at the plant of the E. G. Hill Co. is the new rose, Ophelia, which, from all reports, is meeting with favor wherever seen. Both E. G. Hill and Miss Sarah Hill have been on the sick list.

JOY!

This is a Carnation that did not get a reputation over night. We have been handling it for a little over two years and ought to know something about it.

IT'S A REAL RED

It is the kind of Carnation that proves the florist's friend. Shipped over a distance, it will look as good on arrival as when sent. This feature appeals to us because we know what it means to the man who is depending on us.

JOY has been described by Mr. E. H. Blameuser, of Niles Center, Ill.—the man who raised it—as “a strong grower, early, very free and continuous bloomer, with strong calyx and good stem.” That should be good enough for anybody.

STARTING A SMILAX BED.

Please give directions for mixing the soil and starting a smilax bench to last three years. B. A. R.

A good loam soil, mixed with one-fifth to one-fourth of stable manure, is the most satisfactory for growing smilax. Either cow manure, or cow and horse manure together, will make a good fertilizer for this purpose. A solid bed, containing a depth of six inches of soil, will be required. After the first crop has been cut, the bed will require mulching with manure from time to time in order to keep up the fertility. Many growers prefer to replant smilax each year rather than to grow it in the same bed for three years, but with some care and proper feeding such a bed may be kept in condition for the longer period. W. H. T.

FERTILIZER FOR GLADIOLI.

I intend to plant a large number of gladioli this season and should like to know whether it would be advisable to use a good commercial fertilizer, and how much per acre. E. W. P.

A good, complete commercial fertilizer is excellent to use. Do not use any barnyard manure unless it is old. Make the soil loose and friable; you can hardly pulverize it too thoroughly. Make furrows five to six inches deep for the corms. If planted more shallow they will not stand up so well in wet and windy weather. Use 1,000 pounds of the fertilizer per acre for best results. C. W.

CALLAS IN SOLID BEDS.

Last summer we planted some callas in solid beds. Can they be left as they are, and for how long? They have done well this season. A. S. R.

Leave the plants where they are until the foliage is a little more matured; then dig up the roots and pack close together in boxes of loam. When the foliage all dies away they can be kept perfectly dry until planting time comes around again in August. Meantime the space they are now occupying could be profitably used for bedding plants or other stock. C. W.

ROUND THE WORLD EACH WEEK.

The hero of Jules Verne, who went "Round the World in Eighty Days," is sadly out of date. And Nellie Bly's feat is almost forgotten. The sight of an American paper in the South Seas was once a matter of wonder. Now The Review covers every quarter of the globe each week, going wherever there are members of the trade. See how far it goes:

We have just received a letter from a firm of horticulturists in Lower Hutt, New Zealand, requesting quotations on our products and stating that they had seen our ad in The Florists' Review. We have to congratulate you on your far-reaching circulation.—John S. Carter, president Nicotine Mfg. Co., St. Louis, Mo., March 29, 1914.

Before coming to an end, I must tell my friends of the DOUBLE BLUE CORNFLOWER. It is a lovely flower—the young and old man's, lady's and child's coat friend. O how happy they are, the wearers of these beautiful blue flowers, when seen strolling the streets of the great cities. We are well supplied for the season and offer large 3-inch pots at only $5.00 per 100. Plant them outdoors and they will bloom constantly for you until the frost kills them.

IPOMOEA NOCTIFLORA, purest white Moonvine, for which I have a world-wide reputation. I have made a specialty of it for the past 16 years and am known as the Moonvine Grower of America. In 2½-in. pots, $5.00 per 100; 25 at 100 rate. Now ready.

ON EDITING.

Editing is hard work, and no editor edits for fun. The following from the recently published autobiography of S. S. McClure, recognized as one of the greatest of living editors, is commended to those budding Stevensons who write for the trade:

"I read Robert Louis Stevenson's story," writes Mr. McClure, "and told him that I would take it if he would let me omit the first five chapters. He readily consented to this. Like all writers of the first rank, he was perfectly amiable about changes and condensations, and was not handicapped by the superstition that his copy was divine revelation and that his words were sacrosanct. I never knew a really great writer who cherished his phrases or was afraid of losing a few of them. First-rate men always have plenty more."

And farther on: "When Stevenson began to send in his 'Letters from the South Seas,' he told me to use my own judgment about editing them, and to cut wherever I thought it would be advantageous. After the series was well started in the syndicate, he wrote and asked me why I was not cutting the stuff down more. I have mentioned this willingness to be edited before, and I have said that all of the really first-class writers I have known have been similarly open-minded. I must mention it again, because, somehow, young writers often have the idea that they are lowering their flag if they consent to any changes in their manuscript—that there is a mystic power in a certain order of words. My experience has been—and I think all other editors have had the same experience—that only writers of inferior talent and meager equipment feel in that way. A man of large creative powers has no feeling that, because he has set a thing down one way once, it must stand so forever. He can say the same thing in fifty different ways. If his story is loose and runs thin, he is glad to tighten it. If it is congested, and he has tried to bring out too many points, he will cut. He can afford to spare a few ideas; he has plenty. He has no feeling that he cannot cut out this sentence because he will never be able to say that particular thing so well again; he knows he'll say it better. I mention Stevenson particularly, because he is acknowledged to have been an artist in words and to have achieved a more finished style than most men, and had a very particular regard for style in its high sense."

LA FAYETTE, IND.

The star attraction at the plant of F. Dorner & Sons Co. is the new rose, Hoosier Beauty. A host of admirers predict a big future for this acquisition to the family of hybrid teas; its vigor, richness of color and fragrance would indicate a trace of the perpetual. Although cut back closely for wood, there is an abundance of sturdy stems, averaging four feet in length. It proves satisfactory grown either on own roots or grafted. Shipments of carnation cuttings have passed the 400,000 mark. Various improvements have been made in the plant, the most important being the centralization of the boilers. The new store, opened in January, is handsome and capacious, in keeping with the business.

PANSIES.

PANSY PARK PERFECTION is the most thoroughbred strain of giant show and fancy pansies, the flowers of largest size and most perfect form. I have made growing of pansy seeds and plants a specialty for 40 years and it is the result of many years of breeding and selection. It also contains every variety introduced by foreign growers to date. Hardy, field-grown plants from seed sown in August, broadcast, so that each plant has plenty of room to grow stocky. Good stock to transplant which will come in bloom during last half of May. Over 75 varieties mixed, the reds, bronzes and best fancy sorts in large proportion, $4.00 per 1000. Cash with order. L. W. Greenhouse Heating.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

TRACTION ENGINE BOILERS.

I am expecting to build a greenhouse. Several steam engines have been offered to me at low prices and I am told that they can be used for heating purposes. They are old traction engines of which the boiler and grates are still in good condition, but through careless handling the working parts are worn out. These, of course, could be stripped off, so as to use the boiler only. One of the engines is rated at twenty-five horsepower and another at twenty horsepower, but I do not know the measurement of the grates or the length of the boilers. Would these boilers be suitable for a heating plant and, if so, what would be their rating? E. W.

So far as the actual rating of the boilers is concerned, no data are furnished which would lead us to think that it differs from that claimed by their owners.

In the case of large boilers it is customary to estimate that they will heat about 500 square feet of glass for each horse-power, but in the case of small traction engine boilers this estimate should be reduced one-half, and for economy in attention perhaps as much as two-thirds, although this will depend upon the amount of grate surface. These figures are for a temperature of 60 degrees inside when the mercury is at zero outside.

THE FUEL MARKET.

According to one of the leading authorities on the subject, there has been little or no improvement in the condition of the coal market since last report. The coal trade, it is said, "is in the doldrums, a fact which can be explained by the depths to which general business has fallen." With few exceptions, the prices are not 5 cents per ton higher on any grade of coal than they were April 1. Only in New York and New England is there any encouragement for the coal men; in that district considerable quantities of anthracite are being purchased at full circular prices, partly for immediate

WHEN YOU BUY—GET A KROESCHELL—THE BOILER OF GENUINE EFFICIENCY

Do you want true heating values for your money? Many florists, to their sorrow, have made the mistake of buying cast iron boilers, which, because of their ratings, appeared to be cheaper than the Kroeschell boiler.

The extravagant ratings of cast iron boilers are misleading, and have been the cause of much disappointment and serious trouble to many growers. The fuel waste is enormous when cast iron boilers are used for commercial purposes, such as greenhouse heating.

Do not make a mistake when selecting your new boiler; get a Kroeschell and you will never be disappointed.

Expressions From Men Who Know Boilers

Range of Alexander A. Laub, New Hamburg, N. Y., heated by No. 6 Kroeschell Boiler.

We do not have to fire our boiler as often as our brother florists who are using different makes. The Kroeschell has replaced three cast iron sectional boilers, and it certainly has given entire satisfaction.

It only takes a few words to express the good quality of your boilers and they are as follows: "Of all firms handling boilers and advertising them truthfully, the party buying a boiler would have to get the Kroeschell, as you are certainly advertising nothing but facts."

(Signed) ALEXANDER A. LAUB.

Range of A. B. Knowlton, No. Grafton, Mass.—devoted to the growing of high grade carnations. No. 13 Kroeschell heats entire plant.

Enclosed find photo showing partial view of my range which you are at liberty to use in connection with any advertisement you see fit. In regard to the No. 13 Kroeschell Boiler, we are now using it for the fifth season. The longer we use it the better we like it. It has taken the place of four cast iron boilers at a big saving of coal and labor. No matter what the weather is outside we have no trouble whatever in keeping the temperature just where we want it.

Range of H. M. Totman, Randolph, Vt.—the largest cut flower establishment in Vermont. No. 7 Kroeschell heats the entire plant.

Your No. 7 Kroeschell Boiler rated at 15,000 sq. ft. of glass is carrying my entire range of 17,000 sq. ft. of glass—it might heat more. We maintain a temperature of 50° and have no trouble to keep the proper temperatures in the coldest weather. During the cold snap of 1912 we fired every three hours during the night; I find it a saving in fuel to fire often. I have the Kroeschell Boiler six years and the only expense is one set of grates. No other but a plate boiler for me.

"RICHARDSON" Greenhouse Boilers

FOR HOT WATER AND STEAM

Round—Side Feed—End Feed—60 Sizes and Styles

¶ We have been building boilers for many years—nothing new or experimental about the "Richardson."

¶ The "Richardson" is built as well as we know how to build it, in the light of our three-quarters of a century of experience.

¶ The "Richardson" places the maximum amount of heating surface in direct contact with the fire—long fire travel, narrow waterways. It gets all the heat—it saves coal.

¶ The "Richardson" is not a "cheap" boiler, but it is sold at low prices in spite of the fact that we purchase nothing but the highest grade iron, coke and other material.

¶ Our catalogue gives much valuable data on greenhouse heating. Sent on request.

care of about all of the coal that is coming, because shipments are light. Now and then some coal gets into Chicago unsold and up to demurrage and has to be sacrificed in order to move it. The bottom price on such coal last week was $1 a ton, mine run. The average of this demurrage coal, however, was sold at $1.10. The larger companies have not disposed of a pound of coal for less than circular price of $1.25."

CORNING, N. Y.

A profit of $5.60 on vegetable plants grown in a hotbed in a corner of his garden six years ago started W. E. Johnson, proprietor of Johnson's North-side Greenhouses, in this line. A lean-to built that year and a small greenhouse erected the following year have been followed by the erection of a house, 16 x 110, each of the last three years, and there are plans being made for another addition this summer, for carnations. Now a full line of cut flowers and bedding and pot plants are grown. Able assistance is given in the greenhouses by Mrs. Johnson and a daughter. The constant enlargement of the business has made necessary the purchase of more land, and recently an automobile was added to the equipment.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The Market.

The market during the last week has held up well, and business still shows little of the depression which is usually felt directly after a holiday. Roses continue to be plentiful, and the stock is in fine shape. Sales are quite heavy in this stock and little trouble is being experienced in keeping the market cleaned up. Carnations are not so plentiful as they have been for some time past, but the stock is good and is bringing good prices. The demand is big and the supply is hardly adequate.

Violets are getting poorer every day and it will not be a great while until they will be out of the market entirely. Sweet peas are still in large supply and the stock is fine. The Butterfly type is selling exceptionally well and is bringing prices that are better than the average.

Bulbous stock in general is arriving in good shape and the supply of most varieties is being easily disposed of. Easter lilies and callas are a drug on the market just now, but it is anticipated that this condition will not last, as the Easter stock is just about past. Freesia is still coming in, but the stock is poor and the sale is small.

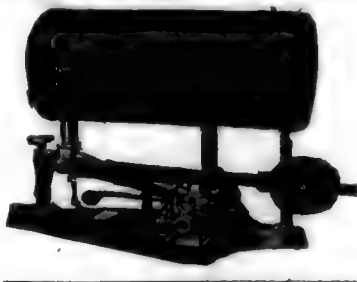

There have been a number of spring openings lately that have used up a great deal of stock. They have helped the sale of cheap roses especially, although carnations and other stock have played a prominent part in the decorations.

Various Notes.

Holton & Hunkel Co. reports that Mrs. Charles Russell, the new red rose, is making a hit with the company's trade. It is seldom that a customer praises stock he receives, but a number of most gratifying letters on the quality of this rose have been received. The company is cutting a large crop of Killarney and White Killarney, which are in fine shape. An auto truck is being tried out at the plant at Brown Deer, Wis., and so far it seems quite satisfactory.

W. C. Zimmermann, the enterprising florist at Fifth street and Grand avenue, has just purchased a new Reo pleasure car. He has had a delivery truck for a long time.

The G. H. Hunkel Co. reports that business has come with a rush, and the force is busy trying to keep up with busy tearing out old stock in some houses and planting young stock. The three new rose houses are well under way and they will greatly increase this firm's facilities for growing fine crops. The supply department has been exceptionally busy of late and is doing a good business.

A large flock of geese came to earth near the Pollworth greenhouses the other day, and Mr. Pollworth, who is one of our city's most enthusiastic sportsmen, nearly had heart failure. Of course, it was out of season, and it was impossible for him to follow his inclination and go for his gun. We are sorry it was not open season, as we would have liked to have a chance to help Mr. Pollworth dispose of the geese in the same way the deer was disposed of some time ago.

Put It to Yourself This Way—

SHALL I deliberately put my money into a wrought iron boiler that is going to cost me a lot to be retubed in a few years, or shall I buy a cast iron boiler that will last at least a quarter of a century?

Shall I put my money into a wrought iron boiler, twice the size I need now, or shall I buy a Hitchings cast iron one the right size, and add more sections to it when I add more houses?

Shall I buy one big wrought iron boiler and be compelled to run all that big grate—no matter what the weather—or shall I buy a battery of Hitchings boilers and use one boiler when I need only one, and two only when I need two?

In short, shall I listen to clever sales talk or shall I let my common sense decide it?

When shall we ship the Hitchings?

The Gateway to the South.

There is an oversupply of every seasonable flower. Throughout last week the supply increased each day, so rapidly that the market could not begin to take care of all receipts. Low prices naturally followed and local buyers were able to purchase their stock at extremely reasonable figures. Shipping business is fair.

The worst glut is in lilies. Low prices do not cause them to clean up. Roses, too, are in oversupply. Carnations are faring best of all. The supply is rather limited and they sell up fairly well. The weather is getting the best of the sweet peas and many of them are blighted. There is a fair call for orchids and valley. Snapdragon, though fine, sells slowly. Greens, with the exception of smilax, are in good supply.

Various Notes.

The nurseries of hedge plants, shrubs and evergreens on the Pierson place look highly promising and many more of the same kinds of plants have been started in the hotbeds. Many thousands of Asparagus plumosus and Sprengeri seeds have been planted and will produce a crop ready for the market as seedlings in six or eight weeks. P.

ONE INSERTION DID IT.

When an offer happens to hit a popular demand the results from a Classified ad in The Review sometimes are remarkable. For instance, an advertiser in the "Show Me" state offered vegetable plants. The ad occupied six lines and cost 60 cents for one insertion. The following letter tells the result:

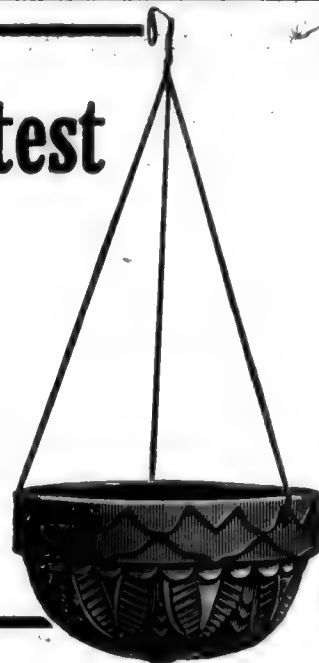

Please do not insert our ad again, as we cleaned out our entire stock of over 200,000 plants on one insertion of the ad. Hold the balance of the money sent you until you hear from us again. Edris Floral Co., Nevada, Mo., April 18, 1914.

A POOR CROP OF LETTUCE.

Will you kindly tell me what is the trouble with my lettuce? This is the third crop and it all seems to be stunted, some of it having rust spots and most of it decaying around the bottom, mostly in the stem. There are a good many lice on it and I have been fumigating with tobacco stems twice a week. Do you think this would cause it? Does the ground need fertilizer, or would heavy watering cause this trouble? I am losing about one-third of my crop and am at a loss what to do. My greenhouses are five years old and the soil has never been changed, but all my previous lettuce crops have consisted of nice, big bunches. S. & K.

There are several probable reasons for your lettuce doing poorly. In the first place, if you have never changed your soil and you are using it each year for lettuce culture, it is somewhat surprising that it has given you good returns until now. About all the large lettuce specialists now sterilize their soil each year. If you use steam and will do likewise, you will have vastly better crops. Then, while you do not say anything about manuring your soil, it is probable that the soil lacks plant food. Horse manure, with all coarse straw removed, and not too fresh, should be spread two to three inches thick over your beds and well mixed with the soil. Lettuce requires considerable nitrogen and good horse manure is better for it than commercial fertilizer.

Fumigation with tobacco stems is liable to scorch the foliage; tobacco papers and liquids are safer. Many of the best growers now use hydrocyanic acid gas. You cannot get good lettuce where aphids is allowed to breed. Lettuce, if it is well watered when planted and if the soil is stirred between the plants, needs practically no watering in winter. Excessive watering is harmful and would only aggravate such trouble as you have. The night temperature for the winter and early spring months should run from 45 to 50 degrees, certainly not over the higher figure. C. W.

BLACK HAMBURG GRAPES.

We have grapes, mostly Black Hamburg, in 12-inch pots, in a greenhouse with a night temperature of 50 degrees. Could they be grown outdoors just as well, in this Ohio climate? A. S. R.

Black Hamburg and other varieties of European grapes, including all the Muscats, Black Alicante, Gros Colman, Golden Queen and others, would not do so well outdoors in your climate. They would not prove hardy, for one thing, and, while plants might be stood outdoors and ripen a crop, the fruit would be much inferior to such as would be produced under glass.

FRENCH HYDRANGEAS IN FIELD.

Can 2½-inch plants of the new French hydrangeas be grown on in the field as can the old variety, Otaksa? How should they be treated when in the greenhouse? J. P. M.

Yes, the new French hydrangeas can be planted out in the field when danger from frost has passed, and they should be treated in just the same way as the old H. Otaksa. Their greenhouse treatment does not differ in any essentials from that of H. Otaksa. These new hydrangeas do not have quite so much substance in their foliage as H. Otaksa. They are, however, far more floriferous, the smallest shoots flowering. They require a good soil, firm potting, an abundance of water and liberal feeding when once the flower heads are formed. These are the essentials to successful culture. C. W.

REPLANTING SPRENGERI.

I have a lot of Asparagus Sprengeri which has been in the bench for one year. Would it do well if replanted? If so, should it be dried off a little? J. C. C.

Asparagus Sprengeri may be replanted after having been grown in a bench for one year, and in case this method is adopted it would be best to dry it off to some extent before moving it to the new soil. However, most growers prefer to plant young stock rather than to replant the old plants; the young plants start away more freely and give a better crop of medium-sized sprays. W. H. T.

AMERICAN ROSE SOCIETY.

At the last meeting of the executive committee of the American Rose Society there was referred to the committee on new roses application for registration for the following, and which have been now submitted for the purpose of publicity. If there are no objections to the names as received they will be formally entered upon the list of registered roses:

George Burton, Wyndmoor, Pa., presents for registration Rose Thorn, a sport of My Maryland; a fragrant, double, free-flowering, fairly deep salmon pink, and a strong grower.

Edward Kress, Baltimore, Md., offers for registration Rose Deiance, a cross between Gruss an Teplitz and Etoile de France; flowers fragrant, dark velvet red, perfectly double, and five to six inches across; dark green foliage, hardy and free ever-bloomer; introducer has never seen it mildew.

Benj. Hammond, Sec'y.

South Lyon, Mich.—A hanging basket in the greenhouse of Walter E. Hastings was chosen as a nesting site by a couple of song sparrows this spring, and six eggs give promise of a good song sparrow family.

MANUFACTURER OF
GREENHOUSE SHADING

No. 6 High Street, MORRISTOWN, N. J.

AFTER twenty-five years' experience in Greenhouse work, with Lord & Burnham Company, in the glazing and painting department, I am convinced that what is most needed in this line is a good shading, and I am pleased to advise you that I have the real thing, which I am sure you will find to be just what you are looking for.

This shading is beneficial to the painted wood, as it does not contain any gasoline or naphtha which would destroy the paint. In addition, it is beneficial to the glass also, for you will find that when the shading is removed the glass retains its former brilliancy.

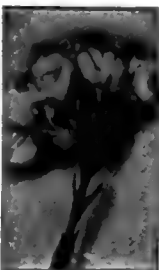

As to its application, this is a very easy matter. It can be either sprayed on or put on with a soft brush. For real good work, however, I would recommend the use of a soft brush.

Another advantage of this shading is that when it is no longer needed, it can be removed without any difficulty, leaving the glass, as before stated, with its original brilliancy.

I am making this up in gallon cans, in three shades—light green, light blue and pure white. When ordering, kindly mention the color desired.

I trust that you will kindly favor me with a trial order to prove its worth, after which I have no doubt whatever but that you will continue its use.

W. N. Craig writes in Florists' Review (March 5, 1914): "Scale on greenhouse plants is not easy to get rid of, as does which are sufficiently strong to kill the scale will usually disfigure the plants at the same time. I have found APHINE a first-class remedy for scale, and if you will apply it according to directions you will kill and loosen the scales, although they will not fall off, as will some other pests."

...NEWS NOTES...

Brooklyn, N. Y.—An early morning fire in the store of the Le Grand Floral Co., at 575 Grand street, April 4, caused a loss of about $1,500.

Frankfort, Ky.—L. H. Wilkinson and Ed. Pierce, proprietors of the Park Floral Co., have leased the greenhouses of Mrs. E. C. Henry for five years and are conducting a florists' and nursery business.

Beloit, Wis.—The heavy wind April 18 blew down the 25-foot smokestack at the McMasters greenhouses, on West Grand avenue. It crashed through the roof of the houses, breaking many panes of glass.

Terre Haute, Ind.—The April meeting of the Terre Haute Florists' Association was held in the Chamber of Commerce building April 3. The election of officers resulted in the naming of those of last year for another term. They are: President, Fred Heintz; vice-president, Henry Graham; secretary, N. B. Stover, and treasurer, Fred Walker.

Lynchburg, Va.—Miss Julia C. McCarron believes the more the public sees of florists' stock, the more trade increases. The opening up of five additional florists' stores here since hers was started, eight years ago, has, she says, greatly increased her business. At her greenhouses Miss McCarron grows carnations, sweet peas and a general line of flowers and pot plants.

St. Louis, Mo.—Steve Beer, whose place of business is at 3804 Lincoln avenue, has devised an improvement over the ordinary iron rake. Taking a new rake, he puts the left side in the fire until the outside tooth is red hot. The tooth then is straightened out, hammered flat and filed in the shape of the ordinary weed cutter, for which purpose the flattened tooth is used in the lawn raking.

Indianapolis, Ind.—Baur & Steinkamp have three top-notchers growing in their houses. One is the scarlet carnation, Radiance, most appropriately named, a candidate for highest honors in color, earliness and productiveness; another, a clear pink antirrhinum, a selected seedling, entirely distinct. The third is a selection of the pink Augusta gladiolus, which is far superior to the regular type.

Kokomo, Ind.—W. W. Coles says that Double White Killarney this season has proved as free as the single varieties, with fewer bull-heads, although the stems may not be quite as long. He has a fine prospective crop of Maryland and Kaiserin for Memorial day. Grafted stock of Killarney Brilliant will occupy part of a house. He has given up growing Beauties, finding his son, who grows nothing else and has big success, can supply his local requirements. The space has been taken up with Mrs. Russell.

United Phone.

Bird-in-Hand, Pa., March 28, 1914.

F. W. Rochelle & Sons,
Chester, N. J.

Gentlemen: In reply to your query would state that I planted seedling stock plants and snapdragon cuttings in the first lot of bands that I received from you early in January.

We took some of these out and planted them where they are to remain about the 15th of February. They made a GOOD GROWTH while in the bands, and transplanted AS THOUGH they had never been moved at all.

I have now about 14,000 carnation plants started in 2-in. bands which are making a RAPID GROWTH, scarcely losing a plant in transplanting from the sand.

I also have about 20,000 aster plants transplanted in 2-in. bands which can stay there till time to plant out of doors WITHOUT FEAR OF BECOMING ROOT BOUND, as would be the case if I used 2-in. pots.

Plants SELDOM BECOME ROOT BOUND enough to injure them IN THE DIRT BANDS, and DO NOT REQUIRE NEAR THE AMOUNT OF ATTENTION that a pot plant does, in watering, shifting, transplanting, etc.

I make my bands and set them in flats, as I make them up, each flat holding 117.

When we get crowded indoors it takes but a short time to move the flats to a cold frame, where we harden them off before setting them in the field.

One man can set MORE THAN ANOTHER TIME AS MANY (twice as many) plants in the field from these bands and flats than he can from pots, and after he is through DOES NOT HAVE THE BOTHER OF GATHERING UP, CLEANING, AND STORING AWAY A LOT OF POTS.

I believe anyone using these bands ONCE WILL BECOME A REGULAR CUSTOMER.

Yours truly,

H. B. Weaver.

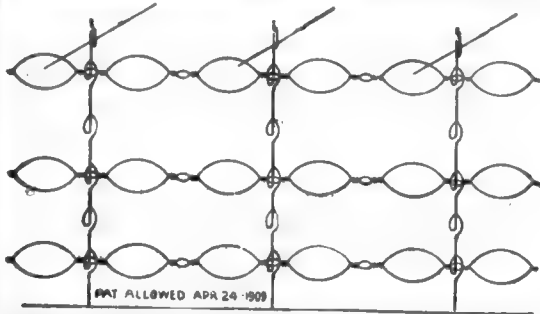

Mr. Weaver ordered 5000 Dirt Bands in December, 40,000 in January, and 20,000 in March.

Samples, postage paid. Prompt shipment.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

We have spring weather and there is plenty of stock of all kinds, but no glut. Everything seems to go, even if prices are not much. General business might be called fair and, in the face of the awful weather we have had, it is wonderful. With a few more good days the growers will get their fields in condition and their planting done.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club is arranging to hold a banquet in May at the Fort Pitt hotel. There will be other doings in connection with it and a good time is anticipated. At the last meeting, the matter of affiliation with the S. A. F. was brought up by the vice-president for western Pennsylvania, but it was hard to get anyone enthused.

Geo. W. Marshall, who opened a wholesale house on Sandusky street just before Easter, has joined his forces with the McCallum Co. Mr. Marshall will have charge of the cut flower end of the business.

John Wyland, of Allison Park, has the sincere sympathy of his host of friends in the loss of his wife. Mrs. Wyland was 71 years of age. The funeral took place April 29. This is the third death in the family in a short time. Mr. Wyland buried his son, George, just three weeks ago, and shortly before the holidays lost a daughter.

Mrs. Fred Burki left April 20 for Tucson, Ariz. She will probably bring back her son, Frederick, who went there some time ago for his health.

Ray Page, auditor for the Pittsburgh Cut Flower Co., is on the sick list.

Wm. Lowe, better known as "Billy Flowers" to almost everyone in the trade, celebrated his fiftieth birthday anniversary last week and tried hard to impress on everyone that he is getting younger every day.

The usual great scarcity of smilax is felt in this market. Every spring finds us in this condition. Why don't some of the smilax growers arrange for a spring crop? It will earn more money than at any other time in the year.

There was less southern stock sent into this market this season than for several years.

Karl Klinke, of the McCallum Co., sailed April 23 on the steamer Amerika for his old home in Germany to spend a portion of the summer. Clarke.

Toronto, Ont.—A. Gilchrist has sold all his property for building purposes and retired from the greenhouse business. He has moved to Guelph, Ont.

That part of your greenhouse which in other constructions is the weakest becomes the strongest. Not this alone, it is ice-clearing and carries all the water of condensation from the inside, and it is so constructed that almost the entire end of the bar is exposed to the air, thereby preventing decay. Only one screw, about two inches from the end, is all that is necessary to secure the bars. For side stationary glass, wood headers are absolutely unnecessary, thereby causing no shade. # TEXAS FLORISTS GET TOGETHER

MEET AT WACO AND ORGANIZE STATE ASSOCIATION

ONE STAR florists to the number of seventy-five were present at Waco May 4 and 5, when a state organization was perfected. It was the largest gathering ever held by members of the trade in Texas and, in addition to starting a movement for the general good, was the means of extending personal acquaintance and stimulating the spirit of co-operation and general helpfulness that is at present sweeping through the craft in all parts of the country.

The meeting was called at the instance of the Houston Florists' Club and a committee on organization for the state, composed of the following: Robert C. Kerr, state chairman, Houston; T. J. Wolfe, Waco; J. B. Baker, Ft. Worth; Henry Greve, Dallas; C. H. Steding, Galveston; Chris Hauser, San Antonio; Chas. Alff, Jr., Austin; H. O. Hannah, Sherman; I. M. Johnson, Geo. M. Cosh and Henry Kuhlmann, Jr., Houston. The business sessions were in the Elks' Club, which had been handsomely decorated, as had the headquarters at the State House hotel, by Wolfe the Florist, Inc., of Waco.

The Objects.

Aside from the formation of a permanent organization, the committee had planned a number of subjects for discussion and special action at this time. The most important things that it was planned to accomplish may be briefly summarized as follows:

To institute an annual flower show, which will be the largest of the kind ever held in the south, every florist in the state having a part in same.

To start a movement to have the state legislature appropriate $50,000 for experimenting on the problems that confront commercial growers of cut flowers.

To organize a statewide advertising campaign to increase the demand for flowers and plants.

To discuss and outline a plan by which local florists can co-operate and work together for their own good.

OFFICERS ELECTED

President

Robert C. Kerr, - Houston

Vice-president

W. J. Baker, - Fort Worth

Secretary-Treasurer

To appoint a committee to look after the trade's interests in freight and express rates.

An elaborate and detailed program had been prepared, which was followed with exemplary fidelity.

Formal Organization.

The formal organization of the gathering into a permanent body to be known as the Texas State Florists' Association occurred on the afternoon of Monday, May 4, when a constitution and by-laws were adopted and Robert C. Kerr, of Houston, who had been the prime mover in the affair, was chosen as the first president. Other officers named at that time were:

Later in the day Fort Worth was named as the place for holding the meeting in 1915 and W. J. Baker, of that city, then was elected vice-president, it having been agreed that the office should go to the city that got the convention.

Houston was selected as the best city in the state in which to try the experiment of a big flower show.

The dates for the convention and for the state flower show were left to the board of directors, to be determined as the association's best interests indicate.

T. J. Wolfe was elected as an honorary vice-president in recognition of his work prior to the convention and his hospitalities extended when the members visited the Wolfe establishment, one of the largest in Texas, May 5. W. W. Seley, John C. Ray and Mrs. Walter L. Reese, of Waco, were made honorary members of the state association.

It was voted that the Texas State Florists' Association affiliate and co-operate with the Texas State Nurserymen's Association.

Standing Committees.

Before adjournment President Kerr named the following standing and special committees:

FLORIST.....

ADVERTISING DID IT.

It is five years next October since the Jones-Russell Co., of Cleveland, opened its doors to the public, preceded only by modest announcements in the two local papers. Today the concern is an exceedingly lusty 5-year-old, and owes its robustness to a complete change in its advertising policy. Using newspaper space at first only for an occasional formal announcement, the company gradually became a regular advertiser, and now its use of bill-board, street-car and newspaper space marks it as one of the leading advertisers of the city, and keeps its name and wares constantly before the people. Few in that town have not heard, in one way or another, about the Jones-Russell special dollar basket. The high-class trade is as strongly solicited by "quality" advertisements and direct methods.

The concern is young only in years; the members of the firm are old hands at the business, having all been associated with the J. M. Gasser Co. before starting the present business. Charles E. Russell, president of the company, is well known through his long connection with the Cleveland retail trade and recent flower shows. Harry B. Jones, secretary and treasurer, started in this trade with the Robert Craig Co., in Philadelphia, but for eighteen years has been connected with the Cleveland trade. Albert B. Barber, vice-president, has given his attention largely to the growing end and is well qualified as a buyer for the house. The special field of G. P. Shearer is the designing and production of decorative baskets, and the finishing touches put on in the Jones-Russell studios add much to the attractiveness of both novelties and staples. A part of the stock of baskets in the workrooms under the store may be seen in one of the illustrations.

The store itself, as may be seen in the view of it given herewith, is furnished with an appearance of lavishness that is quite attractive. The location, in the retail shopping center, at the junction of Euclid avenue and Huron road, has proved an advantageous one.

The latest addition to the equipment is a White automobile truck, fully in keeping with the advertising policy. It was designed with a view to its being ornamental as well as useful. Along the top of either side of the car, well concealed, is a row of electric lights that shine down upon the name on the side of the body, giving it a decided publicity value on dark nights.

LARKIN ADVERTISES STORE.

A page in the Kansas City Post of Sunday, May 3, carried sixteen illustrations, showing the purchases of "Katherine Kellar," a fictitious June bride, from Abilene, Kan., in Kansas City stores. One of the places shown in this not novel but, nevertheless, effective advertisement was the new store of Patrick Larkin, at Twelfth street and Grand avenue. Mr. Larkin is, in the illustration, in the act of selling the "bride" a bride's bouquet. The new store, which opened May 1, is an exceedingly good-looking shop, and larger and brighter than the old one, an improvement all around.

URBANA STUDENTS' EXHIBIT.

The students in floriculture and landscape gardening at the University of Illinois made a joint exhibition in the new Floriculture building Sunday, April 26. This was the second exhibition of its kind held by the department, and an attendance of over 2,550 was recorded during the afternoon.

Fifty-five pieces, including bouquets, table decorations, box and vase arrangements, baskets, funeral pieces, etc., were shown by the class in floral arrangement, comprising four members, assisted by Miss Emily Dorner, of La Fayette, Ind. Bouquets, baskets and funeral pieces formed the greater part of this display.

The senior and junior students in landscape gardening exhibited plans, sketches and models. A golf course, a city park, home grounds and school grounds, as well as formal gardens, were included in the plans. The models were of a formal garden and small city home grounds. A number of excellent photographs of gardens and plantings were also shown.

CARPET BEDDING ON GRAVES

TWO years ago The Review undertook to give its readers some suggestions on carpet bedding in cemeteries and published two articles on the subject, illustrated with reproductions of photographs taken at Rosehill cemetery, Chicago. The articles aroused an unexpected degree of interest, as was proved by the strong expressions of appreciation that reached The Review from time to time. Hence this additional article is offered, with five new illustrations procured from the same source as the former ones. All of the beds shown in the pictures, both now and two years ago, were designed and planted by John Fruetz, in charge of that department of the work at Rosehill.

It is hoped that the present article will be timely for a large proportion of the readers. Though carpet bedding is not carried on to any great extent at Rosehill until June, the season begins at various earlier dates, of course, in some other latitudes. If any carpet bedding is done at Rosehill during May, it is done at the customer's risk, while the planting done in June is guaranteed. If is hardly necessary to state that alternantheras, the plants most largely used in carpet bedding, are easily injured by a chilly atmosphere. However, they are not delicate in other respects or particularly finical or fussy about the treatment they receive, but are easily grown. They need only a fairly nourishing soil. If the soil is too rich and the weather is warm and rainy, they may grow so fast that it will be difficult to keep them within proper bounds and the beautiful markings of the leaves may not show to the best advantage.

Is Carpet Bedding Too Artificial?

As to the question whether carpet bedding in general, as compared with other styles of planting, is in good or bad taste, is gracefully artistic or grotesquely artificial, the practical florist does not need to concern himself seriously with that discussion. The commercial florist, though he may be, and should be, an educator and reformer, is a florist first and a reformer afterward. He is in the trade primarily with the view of making a living, plus as many of life's comforts as possible, and not for the express purpose of reforming other people's tastes by sacrificing his own profits. It is not the aim of his life to be a martyr.

Besides, that carpet bedding is in at least tolerably good taste is indicated by the fact that many people of even the most eminently respectable and refined appearance, when visiting the public parks, are prone to linger long beside the carpet beds and view them admiringly. Carpet bedding still has a good hold on life, though many self-appointed judges have pronounced its death sentence by saying that it is unnatural as well as expensive.

Moreover, for the comparatively small spaces that are usually to be covered with plants in cemeteries, carpet bedding is particularly suitable, since the plants used are tiny, tidy and trim, and also endure such pinching and shearing as are necessary to keep them within the narrow limits allowed them.

Is It Too Expensive?

Of course, carpet bedding is expensive, as it requires the use of an especially large number of plants, but that is no reason why such work should not be undertaken when a good opportunity occurs; nor is it any reason why at least a fair profit should not be realized. Indeed, since the work is admittedly costly and necessitates the outlay of a little more of the florist's capital than is needed in other forms of bedding, the profit ought to be proportionately greater, and the large profit derived from a high-class, high-priced job may be less discernible or annoying to the customer than the small profit from a cheaper job. No doubt, the risk also is greater in handling the higher-priced contract; indeed, the greater risk is one of the sound, just reasons for the greater profit, but the shrewd, wide-awake florist makes provisions against the risks and minimizes them. That is where the brainy, energetic florist has the advantage over the other sort of florist.

Carpet bedding may be too expensive for customers of scanty means, but if the people in a florist's neighborhood are fairly prosperous, if they are neither poor nor penurious, there is no good reason why carpet bedding should not be popular and profitable in such a community. Let the florist do the planting in such a manner as will increase his reputation and increase the demand for the work, and let him charge such prices as will insure him a satisfactory profit. Many of his patrons are so constituted that they will pay the money more willingly if the prices are high enough to prevent Tom, Dick and Harry, the poor neighbors, from presuming to indulge in the same luxury.

The Plants Used.

One of the most noticeable and pleasing characteristics of the grave planting at Rosehill is the small number of varieties of plants that are used. The stock of materials for the Rosehill carpet bedding consists principally of alternantheras in two colors, santolinas and echeverias; the last named plants are frequently known as hen and chickens. The bulk of the work, of course, is done with alternantheras. The santolinas and echeverias, with their whitish or neutral colors, are used mostly in the form of borders or edgings or tracings, graceful little lines of boundary or demarcation. In no other part of the work, perhaps, is there greater opportunity for effective display of skill than in the use of these slender, grayish white, silvery green or bluish green lines of santolinas or echeverias, which enliven and enrich harmonious colors and separate discordant colors to keep them from quarreling and screaming.

In the majority of the Rosehill beds only two colors of alternantheras are used, red and yellow. Besides the red and yellow sorts, two other varieties,

Alternanthera rosea and A. versicolor, occasionally appear in the planting, but the occasions are rare. The favorite red alternantheras at Rosehill have usually been A. paronychioides major and A. brilliantissima. The so-called yellow ones are A. aurea nana, the color of which, as most of the readers know, really shows varying proportions of yellow and green, according to the season of the year and the amount of sunshine. In the Rosehill beds the large echeverias—the hens, let us say—are usually E. metallica. The small ones—or chickens—are E. secunda glauca.

Blanket Design, for Two Graves.

Describing the beds in the order in which they occur in the illustrations, the first one is what is termed a blanket design, for two graves. It is supposed to represent a green groundwork, with a reddish colored blanket thrown over it. Hence the triangular spaces in the four corners, outside the lines of echeverias, are filled with greenish yellow plants, Alternanthera aurea nana, while the main part of the bed is filled with red alternantheras. In the middle of the large space, however, is a design in the shape of a four-leaved clover, filled principally with Echeveria secunda glauca, though it has an E. metallica in the center and one E. De Smetiana or E. Peacockii in each of the four leaves or lobes. The bed, as a whole, is enclosed by a triple border—echeverias on the outside, next red alternantheras and then santolinas.

At the farther side of this carpet bed is a round bed planted with cannas and two varieties of geraniums. On the outside are Mme. Salleri geraniums, next are S. A. Nutt geraniums, and in the center are King Humbert cannas.

Diamond Design, for One Grave.

The second bed to be described is so simple in design that it scarcely needs description. It is what Mr. Fruetz calls a diamond design for one grave. The diamond in the center of the bed is edged with santolinas and filled with red alternantheras, surrounding the single Echeveria metallica. The half diamonds or triangular spaces at each end of the bed are also filled with red alternantheras. The other four triangles, with the santolinas on one side and the echeverias on the other, are filled with yellow alternantheras. Perhaps it should be admitted here, since it is too evident to be denied, that the santolinas bordering the diamond were sadly in need of trimming. But The Review's photographer wanted pictures of certain beds, whether—to use a vulgar metaphor—they had recently had their hair cut or not.

A Maltese Cross.

The bed shown in the third illustration is in the form of a Maltese cross and is similar in outline and general appearance to one of the beds pictured in The Review two years ago, but is planted in a less intricate manner. In the present instance the four arms of the cross are filled with red alternantheras and edged all around, both at the ends and sides, with the so-called yellow alternantheras. In other words, the whole body of the cross itself is outlined with greenish yellow and filled with red. The entire bed is surrounded by a double border, consisting of a row of Echeveria secunda glauca on the outside, and then a row of red alternantheras between the echeverias and the greenish yellow edging of the cross. The spaces between the arms of the cross are planted with yellow alternantheras. These spaces, at the wider part, are in the shape of little oval mounds, but contract into narrow lines at the four corners of the bed, in each of which is planted an Echeveria metallica. In the center of the bed is a larger E. metallica.

For Single Grave, with Border.

The bed that is next in order is noticeable for the fact that, though it is intended to cover only one grave, it has a border which extends about eight inches beyond the edge of the mound on each side. This border, which consists of an outer row of echeverias and an inner row of red alternantheras, is separated from the bed itself by a narrow strip of sod. On the inner side of the strip of sod is a row of echeverias and within these are two half diamonds, edged with santolinas and filled with yellow alternantheras. The triangular spaces at each end of the bed are filled with Alternanthera rosea. The slanting space in the middle of the bed, between the two half diamonds, is filled with red alternantheras, with an Echeveria metallica in the center.

A Scroll Design.

The fifth and last, and apparently most complicated, piece of planting illustrated here, is the one which Mr. Fruetz calls a scroll design. It would not look so intricate if it were not for the fact that the plants needed trimming at the time the photograph was taken, and the foliage had grown so rank as to obliterate, to some extent, the lines of the scroll. However, if the reader will look sharply, he will be able to trace part of a winding line of echeverias which approaches close to the edge of the bed at the four corners, but curves inward as it leaves the corners. In each of the four loops of the scroll, near the corners of the bed, is a large echeveria, E. Californica. The irregular border outside of the echeveria scroll consists of Alternanthera rosea. On the inner side of the echeveria scroll are, first, a row of red alternantheras, then a row of the greenish yellow alternantheras, A. aurea nana, and then a number of Alternanthera versicolor, filling the rest of the space, except a small area in the center, where are two little oval spaces with the Echeveria metallica between them. The two ovals are filled with yellow alternantheras.

WHO MERITS TRADE PRICES?

It is the policy of The Review to decline with thanks subscriptions tendered by those not in the trade. The reason is that nearly all the advertisers in The Review refuse to sell the stock as advertised except to those in the trade. It is not the business of The Review to say who is and who is not entitled to trade prices; that is up to each individual advertiser. It is a perfectly simple thing to decline orders not to the seller's liking, and The Review believes it to be the duty of wholesalers to protect the retail trade.

But the question of who is and who is not entitled to buy at wholesale is one not easily determined. When it comes to actual practice there is no sharply defined line separating the sheep and the goats. Thousands of men are florists and nurserymen and yet derive their principal income from some other occupation or business. The United States government in 1910 included in the census of floriculture and the nursery trade 6,282 who reported an income of less than $250 each, for the year 1909, from the sale of flowers or plants. In making the census of 1900 those were counted as florists or nurserymen who derived twenty per cent of their income from these lines. No such test is possible to the wholesaler seeking to protect his customers who retail. A man apparently in the machinery business was questioned to see if his subscription was wanted by The Review. He showed a bill from a leading gladiolus grower for $180 worth of bulbs at trade prices and said a hobby had developed into quite a business. Another who wrote on the stationery of a steam shovel works proved to be a book-keeper with a greenhouse that he said turned a profit in excess of his salary. Nearly everyone knows that one of the country's largest textile manufacturers also is one of Boston's important growers of cut orchids for market. A pickle manufacturer is one of the largest growers of cut gladioli for the Chicago market.

Whether or not a would-be buyer is entitled to trade prices is a matter that can not be decided by rule. The circumstances of every case must be considered. The difficulty lies, not with those who grow purely for pleasure, but with those who are, like Centaur, half one thing and half another.

WHEN TO PLANT OUT.

How much frost will geraniums and vincas stand? How soon can they go out along Lake Erie? S. & S.

Geraniums in spring are seriously injured if the temperature falls to 30 to 32 degrees. In fall they will withstand more cold. A great deal depends on how succulent the plants are and whether the ground at the time is dry or moist. Sometimes 6 or 8 degrees of frost will do no apparent harm, while at other times a temperature of 28 degrees will blacken the foliage. Vincas are somewhat hardier; 10 degrees below freezing may not harm them in the fall. I should say it will not be safe to plant geraniums out before May 28 to 30 in your latitude. C. W.

HUSTLERS IN MISSOURI.

Four months after the announcement of the organization and plans of the State Fair Floral Co., at Sedalia, Mo., in The Review last June, the range, comprising 24,000 feet of glass, had been erected and planted. The four houses, each 30x200 feet, were ready for business, the office, workrooms and large storage cellar completed, and the two big low-pressure steam boilers already eating up coal. Indeed, plans had even then been made for more glass, and now material for two additional houses has been ordered from the John C. Moninger Co., of Chicago, which furnished that for the greenhouses first built. The range, shown in the accompanying illustration, is located just outside the city limits, near the state fair grounds; hence the name. The downtown store, opened last Thanksgiving, is doing its share to swell the business of the concern.

The rapid erection of the range, however, is not the sole indication of the speed displayed by this concern. It has not waited for business to come to it, but has gone out after it hot-foot. It has made liberal use of advertising space in the local newspapers and has put a little life into the advertisements by catchy phrases—witness the last sentence and the couplet in the advertisement reproduced herewith. The couplet has been used in a number of advertisements, with success.

Newspaper space, however, is not the only means of advertising employed. The company proposes a plan to customers whereby it will deliver ferns, aquaria or house plants and exchange them each week, or, at least, once in two weeks, making no charge except for the delivery. This is certainly a saving to the customer, and just as certainly a good advertisement for the company, as well as a means of educating the public to the greater use of flowers and plants.

The man with the money behind the State Fair Floral Co. is Dr. J. E. Cannaday, who has made a name for himself in that town as an eczema specialist, temperance worker, councilman from the Fourth ward and a close second in the last mayoral election. The superintendent and grower is Carl A. Claeson, formerly foreman for the Archias Floral Co., of the same town. The company boasts of the variety of nationalities represented on its force, which includes Mr. Claeson, the Swedish grower; Miss Marie Zorn, the German designer; Mosuo Akagi, the Japanese delivery boy, and Mr. Flores, the Mexican book-keeper.

"POWER OF THE PRESS."

If anyone wants a demonstration of the power of the press to influence the action of a large body of men, let the evidence be found in the almost universal use of the Mothers' day phrase originated and suggested by The Review:

For Mothers living, blossoms bright,
For Mother's memory, flowers white.

The words are varied in many cases, sometimes making an improvement over the original and sometimes half losing the idea through thoughtless misquotation, but there is scarcely a Mothers' day advertisement being printed anywhere in the United States this week that does not carry, in one form or another, evidence that the big Mothers' day business is the result of the exploitation of the opportunity by The Review.

The Review will especially appreciate the courtesy of its friends if they will send samples of their Mothers' day advertisements, photographs of window decorations, or letters telling what they did to give publicity to the event—and how it worked.

side and the echeverias on the other, are filled with yellow alternantheras. Perhaps it should be admitted here, since it is too evident to be denied, that the santolinas bordering the diamond were sadly in need of trimming. But The Review's photographer wanted pictures of certain beds, whether—to use a vulgar metaphor—they had recently had their hair cut or not.

A Maltese Cross.

The bed shown in the third illustration is in the form of a Maltese cross and is similar in outline and general appearance to one of the beds pictured in The Review two years ago, but is planted in a less intricate manner. In the present instance the four arms of the cross are filled with red alternantheras and edged all around, both at the ends and sides, with the so-called yellow alternantheras. In other words, the whole body of the cross itself is outlined with greenish yellow and filled with red. The entire bed is surrounded by a double border, consisting of a row of Echeveria secunda glauca on the outside, and then a row of red alternantheras between the echeverias and the greenish yellow edging of the cross. The spaces between the arms of the cross are planted with yellow alternantheras. These spaces, at the wider part, are in the shape of little oval mounds, but contract into narrow lines at the four corners of the bed, in each of which is planted an Echeveria metallica. In the center of the bed is a larger E. metallica.

Geraniums

GERANIUM STOCK PLANTS.

Is it practical to grow geranium stock plants through the summer in 4-inch pots in the greenhouse, if they are plunged? S. & S.

Geranium stock plants can be carried over summer under glass as suggested, but 4-inch pots will be somewhat small for them. However, they could be allowed to root through and in this way might develop into good plants. Geraniums can, of course, be planted out in raised benches containing not over five inches of soil, and will give you a fine crop of cuttings if treated thus. C. W.

LENGTH OF GERANIUM STEMS.

Will you kindly tell me what causes the stems of the flowers on geraniums to grow long, while some of them are short? C. E.

Some varieties of geraniums are of a dwarfer habit than others and the flower stalks are, of course, correspondingly dwarf. Plants kept a considerable distance from the glass become drawn and have longer flower stems. Those grown close to the light will naturally be more stocky. Strong feeding will lengthen the stems; plants starved at the roots cannot make other than short stems. I would advise moderate feeding with fine bone as a top-dressing, or with some other good fertilizer, for any plants needing a stimulant. C. W.

MAY BE A NEW GERANIUM.

To what variety of geranium does the enclosed flower belong? I think it is a sport of some kind. S. E. M.

This is a fine dark geranium. It is so similar, however, to some existing sorts that I should hesitate about calling it a new variety. If it is a seedling, there is undoubtedly some little difference. I would suggest growing a batch of it alongside of others of similar color; you would then get a fair comparison. C. W.

GERANIUMS AS STANDARDS.

Will you be so kind as to give directions for growing geraniums as standards and state which are the best varieties for growing in that way? M. D.

These are of easy culture and are easily prepared. Select strong cuttings and keep them potted along. Never pinch the tops out until they have reached the desired height, which may be anywhere from eighteen to forty-two inches. Personally, I prefer plants with clear stems twenty-four inches long. All you have to do is to remove all side shoots, avoid pinching the leading shoot and keep the plants securely staked. It takes twelve to eighteen months to grow standards with good heads. Once secured, they can be kept for years. Some good varieties are: Double—Nutt, Ricard, Castellane, La Favorite. Single—Dryden, Ian Mac-laren, Scaramouche, Paul Crampel. As a rule the single-flowered ones make the best standards. C. W.

SPOTS ON GERANIUM FOLIAGE.

I am enclosing two geranium leaves and should like to know what is the trouble with them and what to do for it. I used a potful of bone dust to a wheelbarrow load of soil. The temperature of my house is 50 degrees at night and 60 to 65 degrees in the daytime. J. D. P.

Your plants need feeding; they are suffering from starvation at the roots. A weak dose of nitrate of soda, a teaspoonful to a 12-quart can, will soon improve them. Follow this with a top-dressing of fine bone or some good fertilizer. Your temperature is all right. You do not state what size of pot you used when adding the bone. If it was a 4-inch pot, that would be all right, but some well-decomposed and screened cow manure or spent hotbed manure would also have been a benefit to the plants. Discontinue feeding before the plants make a too rank and soft growth. C. W.

GERANIUM FOLIAGE DISEASED.

I am enclosing some geranium leaves. Please tell me what the trouble is with them and what I can use as a remedy. T. F. C.

The foliage sent was badly blighted. It would be well to throw away the plants most affected. Keep the others picked over carefully and spray with a good fungicide, such as Bordeaux mixture. Give a second spraying four or five days later, and a third if necessary. Be sure the foliage is dry when the spraying is done. If you spray at the prescribed strength, you need not be afraid of injuring the foliage. Keep the atmosphere on the dry side; do not spray your plants over at all when watering. Give them plenty of fresh air and let them have the fullest sunshine. Be sure to keep all rubbish away from below the benches. If dirt is allowed to accumulate there, nothing will more surely assist in the spread of fungoid diseases. C. W.

SEASONABLE SUGGESTIONS

Fancy-leaved Caladiums.

Tubers of fancy-leaved caladiums will now be making growth, and, if they have not already been potted, no time should be lost in doing so. These plants are easily chilled and care must be taken to have the compost in which they are to be potted well warmed; also, not to carry the plants into any shed where they will get cold draughts. A somewhat coarse compost suits caladiums well. They will do equally well in rough peat or fibrous loam if to it is added some well decayed manure, sand and fine charcoal. Be careful not to overpot the plants. Give them a warm, moist house where they will be shaded from the direct rays of the sun. These caladiums are useful decorative plants during the hot summer months, when good flowering plants are scarce.

Achimenes.

Not much grown commercially, achimenes are, nevertheless, beautiful plants for summer blooming. They are obtainable in a large variety of colors. The plants are of easy culture and are useful in pots, pans or baskets. They will not stand the direct rays of the sun, but succeed well treated similarly to tuberous begonias and gloxinias. A dozen corms in a 6-inch pot or pan, with each flower stalk neatly staked, make a nice, salable plant. For compost use one-half fibrous loam, one-fourth leaf-mold and one-fourth rotted manure, with some sharp sand added. The best plan is to start the corms in flats of clear sand and pot or basket them before the growths are more than two inches long.

Tuberous-rooted Begonias.

Tuberous-rooted begonias are the most persistent-flowering of all the summer-flowering bulbs adaptable to pot culture. By starting successional batches, plants may be had in flower from April until the end of October. For bedding purposes tuberous begonias do well at seaside resorts in the northern states. They do quite well where they can have shade from buildings and branches, particularly in the morning. If in such locations they are set out dormant, or nearly so, rather than well started in pots, they will do all the better. In pots they like a light, moderately rich soil, but containing plenty of sand. Tubers of these also do better if started in flats and potted off before growths get too much started. Avoid wetting the foliage of tuberous begonias over, in a clear house. Some scalding is sure to take place sooner or later.

Gloxinias.

An early batch of gloxinias which will flower for Memorial day will be found extremely useful. While the flowers are a little fragile, they will be found serviceable to use in the choicer bouquets, and really choice flowers are not at all abundant in late May. Keep the plants shaded from strong sun, as the foliage is tender, and be careful not to play the hose on it. Seedlings which are in flats must be potted off before the leaves crowd. Use a light compost containing plenty of leaf-mold, some pulverized rotten manure and sand, and grow on in a warm, shady house. To secure really fine bulbs for flowering a year hence, the best plan is to plant the seedlings in coldframes early in June in light but rich soil. Keep the sashes tilted at top and bottom, and shaded. Give the soil an occasional stirring up and weeding. Fumigate once in ten days to keep thrips in check. A sash 3x6 feet will cover not more than thirty plants, as they make wonderful growth and carry flowers double the size of those produced on pot plants.

Shading.

The sun is now steadily increasing in power and where shade has not been given to certain plants they are sure to suffer. All palms and ferns should have been shaded before now; so should the general line of foliage plants carrying ornamental leaves. Orchids all need protection from the direct rays of the sun now, but cattleyas do better if the covering is lighter than for cypripediums. Carnations will hold their color better and be less subject to attacks of red spider where some shading is afforded, to say nothing of the saving in watering. Flowering plants of nearly all kinds should have full sun until the blooming stage is reached; exceptions to this rule are calceolarias, begonias of the tuberous section, gloxinias and one or two other varieties. Antirrhinums, which are in full crop, need some shade, but make it light; clear glass will soon take the color out of the pink varieties. A good shade is made of kerosene and white lead. This sticks well, but is easily washed off when desired. Do not use lime wash on any consideration. For a temporary shading it is easy to syringe on some water in which clay has been stirred, or ordinary whiting.

Primulas.

The early sowings of Primula Sinensis and obconica should now be pricked off into flats. A house kept at 50 degrees at night, and lightly shaded, suits them to a nicety. Pot off singly before they crowd one another in the flats, and grow them close to the glass. It is not yet too late to make a sowing of these primulas, and, from seed sown at once, nice plants in 5-inch pots may be had for Thanksgiving or Christmas. It is too soon yet to sow Primula malacoides, a beautiful variety which has grown wonderfully in popularity and which seems likely to give P. obconica a close run for favor. The first week in June is sufficiently early to sow P. malacoides.

FUCHSIA AND BEGONIA STOCK.

What is the proper summer care for fuchsia and begonia stock plants?

S. & S.

Fuchsias could be summered under glass, but do much better if kept outdoors, either planted out or plunged in partial shade. I do not know what begonias you have in mind. Lorraine and Cincinnati are of no value kept over summer. Any propagating of these must be done not later than early June. Such sorts as Vernon, Erfordii and Gloire de Chatelaine can be planted out and succeed equally well in sunshine or shade.

THE MEN YOU MEET

M. HENRY LYNCH.

M. HENRY LYNCH, vice-president of the Dingee & Conard Co., was born and raised in West Grove, Pa. He has been connected with the company for thirty years, having entered the greenhouses when a lad. He may fairly claim to have advanced from boy to vice-president up the steps of the ladder of preferment. Today the two brothers, P. Joseph and M. Henry, control the destinies of the oldest rose growing establishment in America. As the former has other responsibilities in the west, the immediate supervision falls on M. Henry Lynch. The place, under his care, is better equipped today than ever to supply rose plants of every good sort, new and old, and many other varieties of plants as well. Mr. Lynch was married in 1901 to Miss Carey, of New York. They live on a comfortable farm close by the greenhouses. Their home is brightened by their little daughter, Marie.

NEW YORK.

The Market.

There seems to be a rift in the clouds. May was ushered in with sunshine and other evidences of spring. The market, in a seriously weak condition, showed evidences of convalescence Saturday, and a fairly good day gave hope, for the present week, of encouraging improvement. Surely the depths have been sounded. It should be midsummer before the level of prices of the last four weeks is reached again.

Mothers' day is expected to clear the market of every white carnation, and when these are gone the other colors may be appropriately worn. Many of the large daily papers are giving the observance of the day encouraging publicity.

There are still plenty of roses, but the unreasonable sacrificing of complete boxes at ruinous prices is, it is hoped, over. The quotations of last week for roses need no special changes. There is no certainty that the slight uplift of Saturday will be maintained. Carnation prices have not improved. Many were sold at and under $10 per thousand. The finest of the novelties, even in small quantities, seldom sold above $2 per hundred.

Lilies, some days last week, sold as low as $10 per thousand, an unheard of quotation hitherto; $3 per hundred was the top, but few found it. Valley fell to $2 and under. Gardenias are on their way to the street and downward. There has been no advance in orchids and most of them are selling at half their value. Callas are as little appreciated and are selling fifty per cent below the values of other years.

Southern lilac is here in large supply. Bulbous stock is abundant. Gladioli, iris and sweet peas are more than enough for any possible demand. Pansies, stocks and forsythia are in every window. Violets have said their "au revoir."

The spurt that usually comes at the close of the week cleaned up the market in good shape, so that the situation was much improved at the opening of the present week. Prices were firmer, especially on carnations.

An attraction May 1 and 2 at his Bloomingdale Bros. store was the ladies' orchestra.

The "House of Flowers," an adjunct of the Abraham & Strauss store in Brooklyn, was opened Saturday, May 2. The front is already handsomely decorated with boxes of ivy and blooming plants. The color scheme is blue and white. It is a unique departure from the beaten track and Manager Abrams is much elated. Assistant Manager Michel will be in charge of the building.

James Coulon is the latest addition to the ranks of Brooklyn retail florists. Mr. Coulon has been for twenty-seven years the right-hand man of Mallon's. His store is at 46 Smith street, an excellent location. Mr. Coulon's two sons are associated with him.

J. Austin Shaw.

A COMMON RARITY.

"Did you ever see anything like it?" was the query that accompanied a double calla that reached the office of The Review from C. A. Hancock & Son, of Oelwein, Ia. In the same mail was a photograph, reproduced herewith, of a double calla that came as a surprise at the Independence Greenhouses, at Independence, Kan. A double, or even a triple spathe, is a not uncommon occurrence in callas, although its appearance is sufficiently infrequent so that it always creates a great deal of interest and comment.

The bloom received at the office of The Review was composed of a small, perfect spathe, completely encircled by one of much larger proportions. Referring to the bloom shown in the illustration, Robert Bunyar, proprietor of the Independence Greenhouses, wrote, "The smaller lily was as large as the ordinary calla and the larger one was about twice as large as the smaller one."

CINCINNATI.

The Gateway to the South.

There is a good call for stock, but the supply has been so large that, at the best, only fair prices are realized. Shipping business is good. A large number of orders for carnations for Mothers' day have come in and more are being filed each day. The May festival this week is also using its share of blooms for corsages.

American Beauty receipts continue large and sufficient for present needs. Choice blooms may be had in all sizes. Other roses continue in good supply. The carnation cut is about the same as it was a week ago. Owing to the weather conditions prevailing locally, many Enchantress are quite pale.

Easter lilies continue to glut the market but are not as overplentiful now as they were at the last writing. Calla receipts, too, are heavier than requirements. Outdoor bulbous stock receipts are large and include some fine parrot tulips. Outdoor lilacs have been coming in strong, but the end of this week will probably see the last of them. Valley from outdoors has been added to the list of flowers and, with forced valley, is enjoying a good call. Orchids are sell-able. Sweet pea receipts are limited. There is a strong call for greens of all kinds.

Various Notes.

The Florists' Club's regular meeting will be held next Monday, at the club rooms in the Flower Market, at 8 p. m.

Lawrence Davenport.

Lawrence Davenport, for a quarter of a century in the trade at 71 Warren street, Lawrence, Mass., died at his home at 58 Butler street April 25, following an accident three weeks ago, when he fainted while descending a staircase in his home and fell to the ground.

He was born in Chorley, England, December 28, 1836. After a number of years in the printing trade in England, he came to this country April 1, 1864, with his wife, Sarah Walsh Davenport, whom he married October 31, 1857. For seventeen years he worked at wool-sorting, in the Pacific mill, but his declining health forced him to take up other work. He started in the florists' trade in a small way, at 71 Warren street, and continued for a quarter of a century, selling out to L. Burnham several years ago.

Mr. Davenport was a charter member of Friendship lodge, 151, Sons of St. George, and grand treasurer of the Grand lodge for twenty-two years. He was an attendant at St. John's Episcopal church.

He is survived by his wife, three daughters, Mrs. John A. Abercrombie, of Lawrence; Mrs. Harry A. Wood, of North Brookfield, and Mrs. George T. Bradley, of Pawtucket, R. I.; eleven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. The funeral was held April 28, and burial was at Bellevue cemetery.

Clement Wocker.

Funeral services were held Sunday, April 26, and interment was in Evergreen cemetery, Colorado Springs.

Peter Ross.

He was born in Balmagown, Scotland, and five years before going to Flushing resided at Great Neck. He was one of the founders of the Broadway Congregational church and a deacon and trustee since it was organized. He leaves his wife, two daughters, Mrs. Mary Hamilton, wife of the Rev. R. A. Hamilton, formerly pastor of the Broadway Congregational

BALTIMORE.

The Market.

The local wholesale houses continue to be filled with all kinds of cut flowers, which, though offered at low prices, sell only in small quantities. The retail stores are all at sea in regard to buying for future sales, as one day business is fair and the next day decidedly poor. Taken as a whole, the market is unusually freakish. Roses and carnations continue of good quality, with low prices prevailing. Lilies are slow movers at any price. Large quantities of outdoor tulips and narcissi are being moved at fair prices. The outdoor planting season has commenced in earnest. In a good many retail stores, displays of pansies, geraniums and other bedding stock have taken the place of vases of cut flowers and the dealers are profiting by the change. The weather has been mild, with the exception of one or two cool nights, on which the mercury closely approached the freezing point.

Various Notes.

Philip B. Welsh, of Glen Morris, will erect during the coming summer a house 42x170, for growing asparagus.

Erdman & Ulrich, on Belair road, expect to make extensive improvements at their range of glass. Fourteen small houses will be torn down and the entire space will be covered with five houses of modern construction.

The demand for window boxes is large this season and many dealers report having already sold more of these than were sold all last season. This form of decoration has at last become popular and it is to be hoped that the time will come when every firm and home will use this means of embellishment as extensively as it is used in some of the foreign cities, where streets for squares in length appear as a solid wall of growing plants and vines.

The flower mart which is to be held at Mount Vernon place, May 12, promises to be quite a successful affair, according to the interest shown among the local trade.

Work on the new house for Lehr Bros. is progressing and they hope to have it finished and planted by June 1.

The new store for Pierce & Co., at 2118 Madison street, will be open for business about May 15, after extensive improvements are completed.

Mothers' day has been well advertised by the local florists and a large increase of business is looked for, not only in white carnations, which are bound to fall short of the demand, but in all kinds of cut flowers. W. F. E.

Van Horne, Ia.—There was heavy hail May 3 but, as there was little wind, no serious losses are reported. George Hammer lost about half the glass in his greenhouse and most of that in his hotbeds, but the stock suffered little damage.

Bluffton, Ind.—Myers & Co. report that the bedding plant trade looks like a record-breaker this year. The florists here are trying to persuade the public to use other flowers besides carnations for Mothers' day, but the people do not seem to understand the true conditions. Dillon Myers thinks the florists' associations might take up the matter with churches and get at the public in that way.

ton; secretary, John Young, 53 W. 28th St., New RESULTS.

We give them. You get them.
We both have them.

It is well to be ready to adjust complaints, but how much better it is to do business so carefully that there is little to need adjustment!

SERVICE is what the florist sells, as much as flowers. Good service counts for more than low prices. A hostess will forgive a stiff price, but never discredit-able flowers.

It is worth while noting that the condition of oversupply of cut flowers has been general, all over the country, since Easter. Reports from the big city markets have been more than usually similar.

WHAT we all want to see is a wider sale for flowers, but an injury is done the entire trade when a man without responsibility is given stock on credit and the opportunity to undersell established florists.

SOME of the houses best worth dealing with take the position that a man is not a florist unless he has business stationery—yet many florists, beginning in a small way, mistakenly believe they can save the couple of dollars printing costs.

ONE of the best things that ever hap-pened in the flower business is the pres-ent tendency to restrict credits. Too much money on the books, slow collec-tions and large losses have kept many a wholesaler from reaping the just re-ward of hard work.

OUT of Mothers' day, as much as out of Christmas or Easter, the trade is en-titled to make what it can. The trade made comparatively little out of Mothers' day until it pushed it along the lines of "For Mothers at home, flowers bright; in Mother's memory, a flower white," as suggested by The Review. Any attempt to institute "days" for the rest of the family only detracts from the interest in a day that can be made a big thing now that the people are getting away from the white carnation.

GOOD FOR THE CLEVELANDERS.

In the Cleveland news-letter on an-other page of this issue it is stated that eighty-two out of eighty-four florists doing business in Cleveland have con-tributed to the fund for the coöperative advertising for Mothers' day. Is there any other city in the United States that can show such unanimous action on any proposition for the general good?

Think what it would mean to flower selling in New York or Chicago if ninety-eight per cent of the florists joined in any movement for the ad-vancement of the trade. Think of what it would mean in St. Louis, or in any of a dozen good sized cities one might name.

The Clevelanders needed about $300 for their purpose. With eighty-two con-tributors the average donation was only $3.50. But think what wonderful Mothers' day publicity could be had in New York or Chicago if each florist there contributed $3.50!

The Cleveland florists are entitled to credit for their ability to lay aside busi-ness rivalries and work together for the general good.

CHICAGO.

The Great Central Market.

The narrative of last week's market is merely a repetition of the story of the week before. Beginning with a heavy oversupply, conditions grew worse in the middle of the week, with the usual improvement Friday and Satur-day, when the return of unseasonably cold weather was a factor in an excel-lent clean-up. At no time was there any scarcity of stock; even carnations were equal to all the needs of buyers who are able to pay fair prices. Roses were the heaviest burden, fine stock ac-cumulating heavily during the inactive portion of the week and holding prices to a low level during the days that brought a fair demand. Some of the Beauties were of distinctly low grade, not equal to the requirements of the better class of stores, so that there was considerable difference in the prices, the best quality realizing what should be considered fair money under the exist-ing conditions. The pink roses were of excellent quality, the weather condi-tions giving good color and fine foliage. The demand for red is subsiding; it has persisted better than usual this season. One of the notable features has been the increased supply of Mrs. Ward. It was impossible to meet the demand for this rose earlier in the season, but in the last fortnight every grower seems to have had his Wards in fine crop. It still sells well, being, next to sweet peas, the most popular corsage flower. The flowers are fine and the color the best of the season. Sunburst also sells well, but is scarcely a competitor of Ward.

Sweet peas continued in extremely large supply, but there has been great difference in the quality. Some of the Spencers have been extremely fine, but many crops have been running out and the flowers have been so short-stemmed that they were considered well sold at a few pennies per bunch. There has thus far been no special demand for valley. Violets, while still offered, are difficult to sell. Nor is there any special demand for cattleyas; a few more might possi-bly be sold without breaking the price, but ordinarily so short a supply as at present would mean higher prices than have prevailed. There has been a sharp reduction in the supply of indoor bulbous stock. Southern stock also is less abundant, possibly because returns to shippers have been low. The glut of Easter lilies and callas continued unabated through last week.

One of the frequently commented on features of the market was the extremely poor sale of snapdragon. In other years such good stock as now is offered, especially of pink, has sold excellently. The retailers who put price tickets on their stock last week made special displays of good pink snapdragon with cards reading "50c. per doz." Spanish iris is another item that has not sold so well as usual. Yellow daisies also have been overplentiful. In previous seasons they have sold extremely well after Lent and it seems that the production this year is much heavier than usual. Wholesalers have found it impossible to force the sale of yellow daisies; if a retailer wants them for an order he will pay the regular price, but he will not speculate on them if offered a quantity at a concession.

The present week opened with the market far stronger than a week before; it might almost be said the market had again turned one of its celebrated flipflops. The supply in all lines was so small that a brisk demand would result in a shortage of stock. Sweet peas, relatively speaking, are the most plentiful flowers. Roses are no longer a glut and the lilies no longer afford concern. Carnations are so scarce that wholesalers are wondering what in the world they will do with the Mothers' day orders that are pouring in, all calling for carnations. There is a belief that the insistence on carnations for Mothers' day is on the part of the trade and that the public will buy any good flowers offered at reasonable prices.

The arrival of snowbirds did not have appreciable effect on the fern market. While the spring pick is of pretty fair quality, the buyers in many cases have been willing to pay the difference for the cold storage stock, which generally is in better condition than usual for May. Smilax has been and is extremely scarce. It seems to be the case at this time every year and the wonder is that some grower does not bring a crop in to take advantage of the best prices of the year.

Amlingtown.

From Maywood, sometimes known as Sweetpeaville, comes word that Albert F. Amling, Mrs. Amling and Clarence Amling will sail, June 16, from New York, on the world's largest and newest steamship, the Vaterland, for a visit of three months with relatives at Hamburg, Germany.

The Albert F. Amling Co. has just finished planting 8,000 Killarney Brilliant, 5,000 Hadley, 5,000 Mrs. Chas. Russell and quite a large number of Mrs. Aaron Ward, making close to $5,000 invested in grafted rose plants. Besides this, about 30,000 American Beauties, propagated on the place, have been planted.

The latest addition to the automobile list is Wm. Wichtendahl, who has just invested in a new five-passenger Ford car, bringing the total of automobiles to seven among the growers in Amlingtown, besides one White truck which makes daily trips to Chicago wholesale houses.

Wm. H. Amling's three new houses, 27x200, are nearing completion and he expects to have them all planted by the middle of this month, to White Killarney and Bulgarie.

Retailers' Association.

The monthly meeting of the Retail Florists' Association was held Monday evening, May 4, at 170 West Jackson boulevard. Nearly fifty members were present and several wholesalers were represented by displays of various articles of interest to florists at this season. As each member entered he was presented with a ticket which entitled him to a chance to win one of the four prizes. The winners were as follows: Geo. Walther carried off the hamper donated by the A. L. Randall Co.; A. F. Keenan won a box of candy presented by his neighbor, J. H. McNeilly; Fred Kral won a ribbon case donated by Wertheimer Bros., and W. L. Palinsky won the hamper given by the Raedlein Basket Co. H. R. Hughes showed his Mothers' day box. A buffet lunch was served. The meeting was addressed by L. G. Reese and H. Swenson, of the Mc-Neff-Swenson Co., who advocated that the club appropriate a sum to be expended in the Chicago newspapers in advertising the use of all flowers for Mothers' day.

Poehlmannville Notes.

"The average grower would not be willing to plant that batch," said Guy French, pointing to a lot of mums in 2½-inch pots that had been topped and on which the wood had ripened and hardened, "but nevertheless those plants will make our best flowers this autumn." The varieties were Chrysolora and October Frost, both earlies. "No, if they were late varieties, Bonaffon, for instance, I would as soon let the bench stand empty," continued Mr. French, "but with these two sorts this ripened up young stock is excellent, the best on the place and not for sale."

An advocate of early planting for roses, Adolph Poehlmann thinks this season's results prove that in late planted houses it is good business to set two plants together—in some of his benches of Bulgarie he has last season's plants set three together, as it does not make much of a bush. All his benches of Richmond have two plants set together in the second row from the north edge.

"Alderman" Dick Salm is known as the Beauty grower who does not heed black spot. In the eight years he has been in charge of the Beauties he has had, all told, less black spot than any other man had every year, and at the same time he appears to disregard all rules against late syringing, etc., the observance of which is supposed to be necessary to avoid the dreaded disease.

The plant department is anxiously waiting for a carload of big kentias to complete their voyage. G. C. Anderson says the call for decorative sizes, especially for use in hotels, etc., has increased greatly in the last few years.

Various Notes.

The trade has followed with keen enjoyment the efforts to compel Peter Reinberg and a majority of the school board to recognize four members ousted by the mayor. May 4 the president and his supporters were sentenced to thirty days in jail for contempt of court. Mr. Reinberg's chief concern on being incarcerated, in the judge's chambers, is said to have been "Who's got a cigar?" It was agreed that Mr. Reinberg should recognize the four men at a meeting May 13, and the fight was over.

Many old friends of George M. Garland will learn with sincere regret that the tubercular trouble with which he has suffered for some years has developed to the point where he is confined Hadley is being planted at the Rogers Park establishment of Wietor Bros. this week, the plants having arrived May 4. Most of the rose plants are on the benches and 75,000 carnation plants had gone into the field May 4.

That this market never saw so large an accumulation of stock cleaned up in so short a time as was the case May 1 and 2 is the belief of Charles Erne, who adds that May 2 was the first time since Easter that Erne & Klingel had their icebox empty at closing time.

The planting of Beauties has been completed by the Batavia Greenhouse Co., according to the report of O. Johnson.

With the idea of combining a little business with pleasure, A. Miller, of Henderson & Co., left May 5 for a visit Probably the oldest men in the market will agree with John Michelsen, who says he never saw carnations selling as high May 4 as was the case this year. The supply certainly is much lighter than in any recent May.

The policy of the Schiller stores will be to sell carnations at cost this Mothers' day, according to George Asmus, who says he fears high prices will do the holiday much harm.

The first peonies of the season arrived May 4, from Carbondale, Ill., consigned to the A. L. Randall Co. Mr. Randall reports that Frank Johnson is building a garage on his property in Rogers Park. Mr. Randall and Mr. Johnson are not only associated in business but they built homes on adjoining lots. The automobile also is a partnership undertaking.

Henry Tesco, one of the oldest employees at the George Reinberg establishment, died May 2. Mr. Tesco had been ill since the first part of the year. He had been in the employ of Mr. Reinberg for the last sixteen years, having built most of the greenhouses. He is survived by a wife and two children, who live in Germany.

In commenting on the changes in the market John Zech, who started in the business in 1891, says there has been no more striking development than in the case of the sweet pea. For many years of little consequence, the sweet pea now is one of the most important

It sometimes is said that the working man has no chance—but he has: Mons Olson is the proof. Everybody in the market knew Olson ten years ago; he worked for E. H. Hunt, J. A. Budlong, Bassett & Washburn and others. He saved his money and invested it in real estate. For a while he ran a small retail store, but some good trades put him in possession of a twelve-flat building at the corner of Woodlawn avenue and Fifty-fourth street that enables him to live comfortably off the net income.

PITTSBURGH.

The Market.

Pittsburgh is hoping for more seasonable weather, as we have had a week of dry weather, with white frosts April 30, May 1 and 2. The peaches and cherries are in full bloom. The growers have spent a busy week getting carnations planted. In the flower market there is an oversupply of stock, and what is going out is scarcely missed. Southern lilac came in the last of the week, but in such poor condition that it is doubtful if it realized express charges. Snapdragon, which was in great demand only a short time ago, is now a glut and cannot be moved at any price; even the cheaper trade does not want it. Lilies, which were short of demand, are now offered at buyers' terms. Roses are overplentiful, and carnations clean up nicely if not too much is asked for them. Buyers' market, on everything, is the best explanation one can give. The retail stores all seem to have a good many plants, and, with the abundance of cheap, showy flowers, have displays that should attract buyers, but one does not hear many complain of any great rush.

Various Notes.

Randolph & McClements had April 30 what was probably the largest and finest wedding decoration that ever was put up in this city. As the house was not large enough, they built a marquee out over the lawn. This was about 50x150 feet, taking in the side porch and making it seem part of the house.

Inside, the house was covered with white muslin and then with wild smilax, and huckleberry and spring blossoms were laid out in a garden effect. Large stone urns filled with pink hydrangeas outlined the path to the end of the garden, which led to a slight elevation, where the wedding took place. Bands of pink ribbon between the stone urns also marked the path. It required an artist to put just the right touch on such a decoration and overdo no part of it. Mr. McClements filled that requirement, for there was not a plant, flower or vine that looked out of place, even to the eye of a critic. The decoration of the bride's table was done by Ed. Weaver. The fine Killarney roses and the great number of candles in the center, with bows of wide blue ribbon worked in on the cloth, and the little, old-fashioned, illuminated ladies at each plate made a beautiful effect. The maids and flower girls, of whom there things, which causes great annoyance to the wholesalers. The express companies have taken off a number of runs, and the railroads refuse to take boxes of flowers, marked "Funeral Supplies," as baggage, notifying shippers that they can only take undertakers' supplies. This makes it hard to reach out-of-town people with rush orders. Clarke.

PHILADELPHIA.

The Eastern Market.

May day brought an improvement in the cut flower market that was welcome; not such an extraordinary improvement, for conditions were bad the closing week of April, but there was more life to business, making average prices better. Some said it was better demand, some gave credit to the weather, while others thought the high tide of supply had passed. Perhaps all combined produced the effect. Prices are low, extremely low, with much poor stock that brings little or nothing, for nobody wants low grade stock when he can have better stock for a trifle.

The first peonies have arrived from the south: Festiva maxima and a pink, nice flowers but a little short in stem as yet. Spanish iris continues in demand, with the stock rather limited. Gladioli, greenhouse grown, are arriving in larger numbers, many of them of excellent quality. Cattleyas are quite plentiful, Mossiæ commanding a better market and a better price than Schroeders. Beauties are in heavy supply, with prices moderate. The heavy crops of white roses are going off. Pink roses are plentiful. Red roses are not much in demand. The best carnations are sought at low figures, but many are not equal to the market's requirements. The carnation crops appear lighter than usual at this season. Sweet peas are on the down track, but some frame-grown stock adds tone to the quality. Violets are over. Daffodils seem unseasonable. Lilies still are overdone, although less so than recently. Many of the odds and ends in cut flowers are disappearing.

Briefly stated, the retailers, while disclaiming any extreme, or, as one of the ablest of their number put it, I. W. W., methods, thought it was unfair for the growers to establish a market for their surplus stock on City Hall plaza, thus competing with their natural customers, the retailers, for business. This view meets with unanimous retail support.

The growers' reply is that they are willing, and would much prefer, to sell their entire output at Easter and, for that matter, at all times, to the retailers. This, they say, is impossible. They instance this and that prominent member of the retailers' organization who bought not a single plant from any of them. Others bought so little that it scarce counted, paying perhaps the salary of one employee for one week. How, they ask, are our places to be run on such meager support? Other outlets for the stock must be found: Out-of-town orders, the department stores, the corner grocery, and what not. The surplus went to City Hall plaza, most of it, after business hours on Holy Saturday. By that time the retailers were so busy with their delivery and their cut flower orders that they could not handle any more plants even if they wanted to. The growers think that the plants sold on City Hall pavement did no harm, saved a loss and made new flower buyers who will be educated up to come into the retail stores in the future should they prosper. Few of them would think of entering a retail florist's shop now.

This, then, is the growers' side. They want to be fair; they want to meet the retailers half way; nay, more than half way, in a spirit of friendliness, and they want most of all to find a market for their products at living prices. What is the answer?

Various Notes.

H. H. Battles, Mrs. Battles and Miss Grace Battles are spending May and June abroad. How that last name recalled the past: A lovely pink carnation, the pride of Edwin Lonsdale's heart, named after the daughter of a much admired friend.

C. W. Baldwin, Scranton, Pa., and W. A. Murray, Atco, N. J., were recent visitors. This last name also recalls a memory: A greenhouse of doubtful growing ability, low and poorly ventilated, filled with wonderfully fine white carnations, Flora Hill, I think.

Sydney H. Bayersdorfer says that necessities, like clothes, for example, suffer from adverse business conditions before luxuries, like candy and flowers. Queer but true, he assures me. Paul Berkowitz adds that the molasses-vinegar saying applies here too, though it is not quite so obvious.

J. J. Habermehl's Sons display some exquisite floral basket ideas in their Bellevue-Stratford window.

Mrs. Fred Ehret is pleased with the Easter results she obtained. Last year's orders for plants were duplicated and Easter lilies hold their own, as do also valley and gladioli. Miniature gladioli are coming in heavily and these bid fair to crowd the market by the end of the week. does get among the trade, according to his daily mail.

Paddy Patton, of the Smith Wholesale Floral Co., says the reason he gives advice so freely is he is anxious to get rid of it. They sure had Paddy on the hump last week in the midst of the largest consignments of the season.

May 3 was a busy day for the local florists, making designs for the funeral of John H. Holmes, grand keeper of records and seals of the state of Missouri. Pythian hall was filled with floral designs of all kinds.

once, with a promising outlook. The cut flower trade seems to fluctuate, being largely regulated by the demand for funeral work. The prospects for Mothers' day are good, as the florists have already booked some good orders for this occasion, which brings an increasing demand for flowers each year. Carnations are looking fine and are plentiful; the same is true of roses, while there is a greater supply of lilies than the demand calls for. Asparagus Sprengeri and plumosus are abundant and good and help out finely, now that ferns are becoming high-priced and in many cases poor in quality.

Various Notes.

Horace Frank, George Bartholomew, J. W. Rodgers and E. E. Schaefer, as a committee to represent the Dayton florists, held a meeting last week with the Greater Dayton Association relative to the filling of window boxes in the downtown district. The Greater Dayton Association has already solicited orders for several thousand feet of window boxes in the business section of this city. The florists had previously met and agreed on one price to fill them for. The Dayton Florists' Club held its annual banquet at the Beckel House April 30. The affair was well attended by the local florists and their wives, and proved to be, socially speaking, one of the best banquets the club has ever held. The tables were profusely decorated with baskets of mixed flowers, the work being done by Forest Mittman. Horace M. Frank acted as toastmaster. George Bartholomew read a paper on "The Varieties of Lilies and Their Cul-

The Market.

Three weeks have made a great change here. From freezing weather we have come to real summer and there has been a rush on bedding plants, etc. Everyone wants plants at once and those who cater to this trade have been working almost day and night. Prices are averaging a little better for plants than heretofore, or rather, the demand is for a higher grade of plant.

The peony crop will be short again this season, as the last freeze got most of the early varieties. Even iris is not blooming well in some localities. Iris sells well here, though not at high prices. Spanish iris sells unusually well.

The supply of the usual cut flowers is about as it was when last reported, save that the quality of carnations is not nearly so good and violets are about gone. There is still an abundant supply of Easter lilies, and spiraea seems to be another item that failed to hit Easter. I have seen no good lilacs on the market this year, either forced or outdoor grown. There was every promise of a good crop till three weeks ago.

Various Notes.

I visited J. F. Corbitt's place last week and found him almost cleaned out of plants. He has a few salvias left, but not much else.

Frank Cornell's wagons have been doing the best business this spring that they have ever done. Mr. Cornell's place looks much like mother's cupboard after the boys have made a raid on it.

McIntyre Bros. grew a good supply of extra fancy, large bedding plants this season, and they are having no trouble to dispose of it at about double the price of the common stock. I saw one of the prettiest snapdragons at their place last week that I have ever seen. It is an odd blending of old gold, bronze and pink. The spikes are longer than

BRAMPTON, ONT.

At the Dale Estate.

Business continues brisk at the Dale Estate, and prospects for Mothers' day are particularly bright, as the day will be observed practically throughout the Dominion. There will be a serious shortage of carnations for this event, but there is every indication of large quantities of roses, etc., to fill the needs of the occasion.

The American Beauties, which were cut back and mulched shortly after Christmas, have responded gratefully to the treatment. Dale's is going in extensively for the new roses during the coming season. Geo. Shawyer, Ophelia, Mrs. Russell and Killarney Brilliant are among the varieties to be grown. Gladioli and iris will be ready to cut in about three weeks.

A. A. Elliott, who has had charge of the sweet pea section for the last two years, left last month and his place is filled by H. Swain, an experienced grower from England.

J. Liske, who has had control of the wire department during the last five years, left for England at the beginning of this month. His departure, rendered necessary through domestic reasons, is much regretted by the management and the employees of the estate.

T. Cowell has gone to Minneapolis.

Miss Ethel Dale, the youngest daughter of the late Henry Dale, was married April 29 to Dr. W. H. Brydon, at the Dale residence here. Miss Dale attained her majority last month, and the estate, which has been managed by T. W. Dugan since the death of Henry Dale in 1900, is now about to be wound up. It is hardly likely that there will be any serious changes in the management of this well conducted concern, but whatever adjustments are to be made will take some little time, and nothing will be definitely settled before the end of the present financial year, June 30.

Superintendent E. Dale attended the annual spring show of the Toronto Gardeners' and Florists' Association. He states that the stock shown was considerably better than in any previous year and that the attendance was also encouraging.

Various Notes.

R. Jennings, W. Calvert and M. Henderson are all going in for the same class of stock as in previous years, and Mr. McIntyre is hurrying on the construction of his new greenhouses, which will be planted with mums, carnations and violets for the first season.

Spring is unusually late. Although the grass is gradually showing up, the cool weather is retarding outdoor growth considerably.

W. G. P.

Carson City, Mich.—Mrs. A. R. Allsop has purchased a piece of real estate on Division street, which she will use to meet the demands of her growing greenhouse business.

All these firms are advertising for Telegraph and out-of-town orders for Mothers' Day, and surely the exchange of orders for Mothers' Day ought to be greater than last year.

Compare dues from $1.00 to $5.00 annually with other methods of obtaining results. Can you afford not to receive orders from the above members whose Telegraph business is estimated over $500,000 annually? Guarantee orders to your customers. It will bring results.

PAGES OF RETAILERS' CARDS

THIS department for the cards of Leading Retail Florists—those florists who have the facilities for filling the orders sent them by other florists—has made possible the recent rapid development of this branch of the business, a branch of the trade now established for all time and so helpful that its volume will keep on increasing for many years.

Are you sending and receiving your share of these orders? You can send your share (and make 20 per cent profit without effort) if you let your customers know you can perform this service for them. To receive your share—well, The Review's department for Retailers' cards remains the one way of getting prompt action on the order in hand.

To be represented costs only 70 cents per week on a yearly order. This is for one-inch space. Other spaces in proportion.

Why not send your order today—now—before you forget it?

 Gentlemen:

During the past year I paid you $18.30 for a half inch advertisement in the Retail Florists Department of The Review. I received through this small advertisement, from January 1, 1913, to December 31, 1913, orders to the amount of $566.00. They came by mail and telegraph from New York to San Francisco and from New Orleans to Minneapolis. Since I allowed the senders 20%, the record is as follows:

Total value of orders .....	$566.00
Less 20% allowed senders.. ..	113.20
Net value of orders.....	452.80

Here is an addition of $452.80 in business which could not otherwise have been obtained and at an expense of only $18.30.

Since my advertisement appeared only in The Review it goes to show what the retail florists through the country lose if they do not use this medium of advertising. It also goes to show that The Review is not only there with a big "R" but that it has three more big "R's" - Readers - Reliability - Results!

Yours respectfully,

The Market.

Local florists have not experienced the usual dullness that is characteristic of the after-Easter season; business has been keeping up in a surprising manner, running far ahead of that in other lines, dealers in which are complaining somewhat this spring. Funeral work has been heavy, filling in what ordinarily would have been a lull in trade. There has been a steady call for funeral and decorative work, while the transient store trade fell off, as is usually the case after Easter. Cut flower stock has, in many varieties, been quite plentiful, yet the demand has just about kept even with the supply. Sweet peas are now quite abundant, but no grower hereabouts has any reason to fear a surplus, as there are several live retailers here who have a knack of selling them in large quantities. Carnations are fairly plentiful, but will be scarce by Mothers' day. Prices have in some instances already advanced to $6 per hundred for the white variety. Snapdragons are of good quality and come in handy for funeral work, as do lilies, of which there is a good supply at the present time. Daffodils are about played out. Roses are in full crop, and the quality is excellent. If the demand for Mothers' day can be diverted to roses, all will be well.

in front of Max Spanner's attractive Summit street shop, when some brides' bouquets made of artificial flowers caught fire and threatened to destroy the place. The cause of the entire display, according to Mr. Spanner, was an inoffensive cat, which is a great pet of Max's. Alongside the bouquets, Mr.
Spanner had burning candles, and the cat, in a playful mood, started playing with the streamers, with the result that it soon became too hot for Mr. Cat.
The fire was called to Mr. Spanner's attention by shoppers on the street outside, and with the valiant assistance of Emil Kuhnke, the local grower, the conflagration was extinguished before any material damage had been done. Mr.
Spanner reports that business on the whole has been satisfactory, especially the Easter trade. He has had some magnificent display windows of late, which have attracted the attention of pedestrians. Mr. Spanner is fortunate in having a good location, where there are a great many people passing.

Local florists are gradually beginning to awaken to a realization of the fact that just as the trade made Mothers' day what it is, just so the trade will have to work to keep this day up to the standard and on the increase as a flower day. The work accomplished in this line by the illuminating articles on this subject published from time to time in The Review is appreciated by local readers. Florists here are doing all in their power to increase the business of this day and at the same time divert the trade from the white carnation. All the announcements in the papers followed out the advice of The Review and did not mention carnations as essential.
All delivery cars are carrying pennants advertising Mothers' day, and posters in the display windows and in the interiors announce the same fact. It is a pity, however, that wholesalers raise the prices on carnations, as this will kill the day quicker than anything else. One local retailer here has announced that there will be no rise in price even if he is forced to sell his carnations at cost. The high prices only cause dissatisfied customers, and in the end nothing is gained. Some florists here cannot even at this late day and age see the value of advertising such a day as Mothers' day. One advanced the argument that there is no use advertising when not enough stock can be obtained, meaning, of course, not enough carnations. True enough, but that is just the reason why every florist should strive by might and main to divert the trade along more profitable lines, which has been done and can easily be done by a little intelligent coöperation and educational work. This truth has been demonstrated so often in business that it can no longer be denied.

The last meeting of the Toledo Florists' Club was held at Emil Kuhnke's and, though slimly attended, was a lively gathering. The meeting resolved itself into a spirited debate between the progressives and the reactionaries concerning the value of advertising. The next meeting will be held at Max Spanner's, on Summit street. A. C. K.

The Market.

The only complaint heard during the last week was that while there was plenty of business there was no money in it. Funeral work has been exceptionally heavy, but for some reason or other the customers are unwilling to spend much. Flowers of all varieties are overplentiful and cheap, but this does not make up for the loss of profit. It is incumbent upon the florists to make a good showing on all orders, no matter what is paid for them, and with a limited resale price there is little opportunity for making much profit. There are many weddings, too, but the decorators are restricted in expenditure. Collections are also slow and considerable complaint is being heard on this score.

Many of the growers find it hard to cut all the flowers now in bloom in their houses and to find a market for them after they have been cut. The retailer has it pretty well his own way, for he can buy stock in small quantities when and where he pleases, and, in many instances, he can set a price on what he wants.

Lilacs were never finer than at present, and dogwood and fruit blossoms have made their appearance, to take the place of roses and carnations; even snapdragon and lilies have been relegated to the shelves by their advent. Long-stemmed roses have been moving at $4 per hundred, although some particularly good stock brought up to $12 per hundred in small quantities. American Beauty roses averaged about $3 per dozen, but the short-stemmed stock went at considerably less.

Various Notes.

The horse show last week called for a decoration of the grounds on Eighteenth street, northwest, where more than 200 pots of rambler roses were used in the boxes above the stands. The field was parked with cedars and large quantities of rhododendrons, while the track was outlined with geraniums. This society event also called for the supply of corsage bouquets in large numbers.

A pair of monkeys in the display window of Leapley & Meyer, on G street, northwest, is creating considerable attention, for thousands of people stop daily in front of the window to watch the antics of these "near-men."

The police court during the last week has been filled with venders, who have been arrested and charged with violating the traffic regulations, with being unlicensed florists and other misdemeanors. In some few instances fines have been assessed, but in the majority of cases the men were allowed to go. However, it is said that this crusade has resulted in many of the venders leaving the city. Last Saturday F street was comparatively free of these men, much to the satisfaction of certain florists in the vicinity.

The constitutionality of the eight-hour law for women, now in effect in the District of Columbia, is being questioned by some of the merchants, who declare that the law operates directly against those whom it was intended to benefit. A number of merchants have stated that they will find it necessary to dispense with female labor entirely because of the law and of the fact that when it does become necessary to utilize the services of these employees during rush seasons they are unable to do so.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.

The Market.

The conditions of trade have not improved much during the last week. The weather has been cool, with a sparing amount of sunshine; consequently stock has not been so plentiful. Some of the downtown stores have been kept busy with a number of weddings, which included some substantial church decorations.

The cut flower market is not in a flourishing condition, but stock continues to arrive in fair quantities, and the quality in most cases is good. Roses probably have suffered as much as any other flower through lack of sunshine.

The buds, which are large, do not open as they should, and the poor outer petals make the flowers appear cheap and old. Carnations are not arriving in such heavy shipments as heretofore, but on the whole the quality and size of the blooms are satisfactory for the time of year. They retail at 60 cents to $1 per dozen. The end of the violet season is fast approaching and little is seen of them now. Sweet peas, however, will partly take their place in corsage work, for which there is a good demand. Some delicate shades of pink and lavender are seen. Daisies, snapdragons, jonquils, tulips and N. poeticus are all useful for basket work, for which the demand is increasing. Easter lilies and valley are abundant. Callas are not overplentiful, but sufficient for the demand.

Various Notes.

Miss Myrtle Bradstreet and her mother and sister have returned from Florida, where they spent the winter.

Miss Bossler, of the Lord & Burnham force, has been confined to her home by a severe cold, but is now back in the office again. Arthur Elder has been home for several days with a bad attack of tonsillitis, but at last report he was gaining fast.

I am sorry to report the serious illness of Mrs. Edwin P. Wilson. Following a hard attack of grip, another malady set in, which necessitated the services of a trained nurse. At the time of writing her condition is better, with a much lower temperature, and her speedy recovery is hoped for.

A special meeting of a committee composed of the exhibitors for the years 1912 and 1913 was held on Thursday, April 30, to discuss the advisability of a fall flower show. A good number of retailers and private growers were represented, but nothing definite was decided. Charles Vick, John Dunbar, Henry P. Neun and Ed Ogston were appointed as a committee to interview the different exhibitors, to get individual expressions of opinion regarding a flower show and to report at the next special meeting, May 8.

J. B. Keller Sons had an elaborate wedding decoration last week. The church decoration included a tasteful arrangement of palms and pink snapdragons. The bouquets were of valley and white orchids and roses.

The Love-Humphrey church wedding called for a large quantity of jonquils. The bride's bouquet was of valley and roses; the bridesmaids' bouquets were of jonquils and yellow daisies. H. E. Wilson supplied the flowers and decorations. A unique window decoration was seen at the Wilson store last week. A May pole gaily decorated with colored ribbons, with several prettily dressed dolls, each holding a ribbon and standing on a bed of natural moss, attracted much attention. The background was arranged with spiraeas and baskets of cut flowers.

W. P. Snyder, of the Edwards Folding Box Co., Philadelphia, called on the trade here last week.

James Vick's Sons are busy people these days. They are doing a large business in their retail store and are using extra help. This year they are planning a larger acreage of asters than ever before. Work on the farm is progressing favorably, but the unsettled weather has been a great hindrance.

Harry E. Bates, of the Lord & Burnham Co., and his office force are now comfortably located in larger offices in the same building as before. Business in this territory is good in their line of work. The company has received an order from Dunbar & Hopkins, of Ash-tabula, O., for two houses 75x450, one house 75x425, two houses 31x225 and a lean-to 10x78, all connected. The Market.

There has been an improvement in trade conditions since last week and business is just a little more brisk. There has been more funeral work, and counter trade has increased somewhat. On the whole, business is awakening from the lethargy which followed the Easter rush. The weather, also, is more promising and the stores are made attractive by banking ramblers, hydrangeas and spiræas outdoors in front of the display windows, which serves as a drawing card for flower buyers. Groups of box and bay trees also add a decorative feature to the downtown store fronts.

The supply of Harrisii lilies is quite meager at this writing, but the few available ones are excellent. Roses are good, but are somewhat small at present. Carnations continue to come into the market in large quantities. The majority of them are small and poor, however, and have to be sold at a low figure. Valley is decidedly scarce and not good. There still are quantities of snapdragons. Beauties are splendid. Sweet peas are increasing in demand. With the demand augmented, the increased supply keeps pace.

Ferns, Asparagus plumosus, smilax and all greens are scarce. Southern hardy ferns and asparagus sprays are arriving. Lilac sprays are available through the Philadelphia market. Hydrangeas, gloxinias and rhododendrons are about the only flowering plants to be had just now.

Various Notes.

participated in the unveiling of a life-sized portrait of Mr. Schoenhut in the business men's club rooms, on William street, April 23. The affair was a surprise for Mr. Schoenhut. A banquet followed the unveiling, and among the speakers were Mayor Louis P. Fuhrman, Postmaster William F. Kasting and many others. The occasion marked the forty-sixth birthday of Mr. Schoenhut, and a splendid tribute was paid to the guest of honor by several of the speakers. The portrait was set in a large gold frame and will adorn the walls of the club rooms.

At the South park conservatories the Easter display of lilies, azaleas, ramblers, spiraeas and hybrid tea roses has just passed its prime. The orchid collection is just beginning the blooming season. The permanent tropical plants and the cactus house are in excellent condition. The beds surrounding the conservatories are being prepared for outdoor planting, and as soon as the weather is favorable the plants will be set out.

Nearly all the downtown stores are planning special Mothers' day window displays for this week, and are advertising extensively.

H. Keitsch & Sons still have a supply of indoor daffodils and hyacinths to dispose of, while most dealers are entirely out of bulbous stock. They also are showing a few late azaleas. Business has been good right along with them.

George Kramer has left for an extended trip west, stopping at Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland.

Frank J. Mahoney spent Sunday in Rochester not long ago.

Outdoor daffodils, both single and double, are shown in large quantities at W. J. Palmer's lower store. Spanish iris, the first of the season, is also on sale here.

The opening of the Elmwood theater was marked by a most handsome decoration, consisting mostly of American Beauties and snapdragon, arranged in tall vases throughout the large auditorium. Some palms were used. There were also a large number of floral gifts to the management. S. A. Anderson did the decorating.

R. H. Connor's opening, April 27, called for quantities of baskets, vases of Beauties, roses, snapdragons, etc.

Mr. and Mrs. S. A. Anderson are on a fishing trip in Michigan and will remain two weeks.

Ed. Fancourt, of the S. S. Pennock-Meehan Co., Philadelphia, was in town last week. E. C. A.

Thirty-second annual convention, Washington, D. C., June 23 to 25, 1914.

RALPH M. WARD has started for Japan, taking his horseshoe along for luck.

THE season is reported backward in Japan; growth is several days later than normal.

ARTHUR T. BODDINGTON, New York, attended the meeting of Texas florists at Waco this week.

PROPOSALS will be received at Washington until May 15, by the General Supply Committee, for seeds for the independent government establishments for the year beginning July 1 next.

A. H. C. DALLEY, of Hubbard Woods, aspires to be the Illinois Groff. He has planted about 25,000 gladiolus bulbs, including many expensive European novelties, and purposes growing bulbs for the trade as well as raising novelties for dissemination by the highest bidder.

WHOLESALE seedsmen report an unusually good volume of fill-in orders for the opening of May. The general stores that handle seeds in the spring appear to have cleaned up their stocks in good shape and are ordering small lots frequently, to keep their lines complete, as there still is a good demand.

COUNTER trade in Philadelphia and New York seed stores has taken the down grade after a most successful season. In Boston the sales forces still have their hands full, in consequence of a backward season, while garden making in the lake cities has little more than begun. Crops are coming to market from the southwest before those in the north have gone into the ground.

APRIL was an unusually good month for most of the catalogue houses. The season gathered headway slowly, but has lost it less rapidly than usual since the peak was passed. Fears of a short season have proved groundless. It really is remarkable how well catalogues, some of them distributed as early as December, still are pulling. With one or two pronounced shortages, the general supply has proved adequate for what certainly will prove one of the most satisfactory seasons in the history of the seed trade.

THE POSTAGE ON SEEDS.

President Wilson attached his signature, April 24, to the act of Congress reducing the postage on seeds and plants when mailed in parcels weighing eight ounces or less. The postmaster-general signed an order April 27 putting the new rate into operation, and the order was published in the Department's Daily Bulletin for April 29. The rate went into effect, theoretically, when the President signed the bill, but practically not until the Daily Bulletin of

DO IT NOW

There are two kinds of people in the world—those who are getting ready to do something, and those who go ahead and do it. And knowing that all large and successful lily growers use Horse-shoe Brand Bulbs, some say they will use them, too. And some go ahead and use them. The latter are most successful. When you know a thing ought to be done—do it—those who wait never get there. Write now for prices.

April 29 reached postmasters in various parts of the country. At the information desk at the Chicago postoffice the existence of such an order was denied May 4, but May 5 the clerk was able to produce it, there having been, as he said, "so many kicks we had to dig it up."

The new order reads as follows:

Seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions and plants shall hereafter be embraced in and carried as fourth class matter and for the same rates of postage. Provided that all packages thereof containing eight ounces or less shall be charged for at the rate of 1 cent for two ounces or fraction thereof.

The rate of postage on parcels of seeds, cuttings, bulbs, roots, scions and plants, weighing eight ounces or less, is 1 cent for each two ounces or fraction thereof, regardless of distance; on parcels weighing more than eight ounces the pound rates shown in section 456 apply. These rates apply whether the articles are for planting or other purposes.

FRENCH BULBS.

Exporters at Ollioules who are looking for the orders of planters instead of jobbers quoted the following prices under date of April 19:

Romans, 11 to 12 cm.....	$16.00 per 1000
Romans, 11 to 13 cm.....	21.00 per 1000
Romans, 12 to 13 cm.....	22.00 per 1000
Romans, 12 to 15 cm.....	23.00 per 1000
Paper Whites, 13 cm. and up.....	5.00 per 1000
Paper Whites, 14 cm. and up.....	6.00 per 1000

These prices are f.o.b. Ollioules and indicate that the market must be in a strong position.

FREE SEEDS IN SENATE.

The action of the Senate committee on agriculture in eliminating the congressional free seed distribution from the agricultural appropriation bill this year will provoke debate in the Senate. When the item was reached during the consideration of the bill late last week Senator Smoot, of Utah, asked that it go over until all the undisputed and small items were passed. This was done.

SEEDSMEN WATCH RATES.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has directed the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad to refund $4 to C. C. Morse & Co., because of unreasonable rates on seeds shipped from San Francisco to Texas.

MAINE POTATOES QUARANTINED.

A quarantine against Maine potatoes, effective August 1, has been declared by the United States Department of Agriculture on account of the prevalence of powdery scab in that state, particularly in Aroostook county. After August 1 no common or Irish potatoes can be moved out of Maine except under regulations which the Department of Agriculture will publish shortly. Powdery scab has been prevalent for some time among Maine potatoes, but hitherto the state authorities have been responsible for preventing the spread of the disease. With the enforcement of the new quarantine, the federal government will take charge of the work. There will be, it is said, no radical change in the existing restrictions.

THE SEED IMPORTATION ACT.

Because of numerous requests for copies of the seed importation act of August 24, 1912, originally published in The Review of September 5, 1912, the law is herewith reprinted in full:

AN ACT To regulate foreign commerce by prohibiting the admission into the United States of certain adulterated grain and seeds unfit for selling purposes.

Sec. 2. That seed shall be considered adulterated within the meaning of this act—

LOS ANGELES.

The Market.

Business last week was decidedly better than that of the previous one and there has been a much better call for superior grades of stock. The weather has been dull for this season and this has shortened up the cut of roses under glass, thus preventing a glut. The quality has been good and the foliage clean, for fire heat has been necessary right along and this has kept mildew in check. Carnations are good just now, both from under glass and from cloth houses, but the plague of cutworms has worked havoc with a lot of the outdoor flowers and plants. Lily of the valley has been short in supply on several occasions, there being a more brisk demand than usual, both locally and from nearby towns. Orchids are plentiful and more of the dendrobium and phalaenopsis types are being used. Cattleya Mossiae is the leader, however, with here and there a few Gaskellianas and early gigas. All kinds of outdoor flowers are used in the store windows, even if they do not sell, a case in point being hybrid hippeastrums, or amaryllis. Probably no other city in the Union is so well supplied with this flower as is Los Angeles. Then the delphiniums and peonies are extra good right now, besides the many smaller flowers of the composite order.

Plants of the Catawbiense types of rhododendron are being shown in profusion in the best stores, but the demand is not great. Ferns and palms are in better demand than the flowering stock, and Bostonias still are scarce. Cut maidenhair and asparagus fronds are plentiful and cheap, and there also is plenty of all the field greens.

Various Notes.

Our genial friend, P. D. Barnhart, than whom no man has the horticulture of southern California more at heart, is leaving for an eastern trip May 2. His itinerary takes in all the principal cities and horticultural centers of the east and middle west, and he says that flowers are going to be more to him than skyscrapers during his visit. In this connection I may give eastern people a warning. If once P. D. gets his thumb in your buttonhole you may just as well dig down for the price of a ticket to Los Angeles. It will save time. [It isn't quite clear, but we take it we are to buy our own ticket to California, rather than one for our correspondent's friend.—Ed.]

J. H. Wallace, representing the Shenandoah Nurseries, Shenandoah, Ia., has been calling on the trade in this city.

Walter Garbett, manager of the Darling Flower Shop, reports good business. In a letter to him from London, Eng., H. Reeve Darling speaks highly of the work of the lady florists in the British metropolis, though he does not think the London shops, as a rule, come up to the American. The carnations seem to have made quite an impression on him.

Jacob Dieterich and Henry W. Turner, Dieterich & Turner, have dissolved partnership. Mr. Turner retains the large greenhouse plant and all the cut flower and inside plant business, Mr. Dieterich the nursery end. This he will continue in addition to his home nursery at Wall street. During the partnership the business has made wonderful strides and there is no fear that either end will suffer now, for each will be in capable hands.

At the Freeman-Lewis store good funeral work has been plentiful, according to C. Lewis.

E. W. McLellan, the well known grower and wholesaler of San Francisco and Burlingame, is here on a pleasure tour. He and Mrs. McLellan came down on the Yale from San Francisco and brought their automobile along, intending to use it during their stay. They are going to take things easy and see everything they can in a leisurely way, leaving here for San Diego by road and then driving from San Diego to San Francisco. Mr. McLellan says the demand for Cecile Brunner roses, both cut and in pots, is greatly on the increase and they ship both to the east, and the cut flowers as far as Kansas and Chicago, the plants to the Atlantic.

F. Borden, of the Redondo Floral Co., has been suffering from a poisoned hand, owing to a thorn. Business keeps up well at the store.

Frank Wilhelm says business is good in rooted cuttings and small plants and that it keeps him on the jump.

Polder & Groen report good business for the season and, had it not been for a partial failure of some few bulbs, the season would have been perfect. John Polder's parents are coming from Germany and will probably locate here.

Nursery shipments are falling off, but the season is holding out remarkably well.

Decorations at the California and Midwick clubs have kept the store force of J. W. Wolters busy, some pretty centerpieces being used at the former.

H. R. Richards.

SEATTLE, WASH.

The Market.

The supply of flowers never was better at this season and possibly it is no exaggeration to say that business never was worse. The stores are full of high-grade flowers and plants, and there is little demand. The Darwin and late-flowering tulips are this year especially fine and are meeting with a better demand than most other flowers. Roses are plentiful and of good quality. Though carnations are getting off color, some of them are still of good quality and they are in fair supply. Valley is scarce. Orchids are fairly plentiful. Hydrangeas are abundant this year and the older varieties are meeting with strong competition from the newer French sorts. Ferns are none too plentiful. Far more bedding stock is offered than usual and not so much planting is being done as in former years. The new market does not seem to be attracting the public extensively, and up around the Pike street market it is hard to put one's foot down without trampling on geraniums.

The planting season for nurserymen is about over, and while in some ways it has been fairly satisfactory, on the whole it has not been so good as last year.

Various Notes.

John Holze, George Rosaia, Lambert Pedersen and Andrew Matthiesen had a pleasant excursion in Mr. Matthiesen's automobile to White River Valley last week. They called first on Emil Banke, at Renton, and afterward on Jacob Sahli, at his new quarters in Kent. From here they journeyed to the Rosaia place, at Thomas, where the large display of late-flowering tulips was a treat in itself. They finished up with a visit to the Woodland Park Floral Co., at Sumner, where everything was found in the usual good condition.

Frank J. Bell, the Brighton carnation grower, has taken over the lease of a store at the corner of Third and Columbia streets.

The Whitney Nurseries Co. has acquired the greenhouse plant for some years occupied by George Murray, at the entrance to Mount Pleasant cemetery, and will carry a full line of shrubbery and general stock there.

Carl Melby, of Madison Park Greenhouses, is doing the landscape work for the Metropolitan Building Co. again this year. The new ground occupied by the fishery exhibit is giving him more scope for his artistic talents than in the old location. He was sporting around the country last week in a fine Ford automobile.

The Aabling-Ebright Seed Co. is doing a large and increasing business in seeds and plants. The firm is paying particular attention to the stocks of seeds and is importing and testing the best varieties procurable. Mr. Boyce was recently appointed secretary of the company. Though meeting with strong opposition in the adjoining market, their bedding plant sales are extensive.

The practice vulgarly known as "crape chasing" should receive the scorn and disdain of every florist. The trade in Seattle until lately has held itself above such methods, but recent reports from some quarters seem to indicate a danger of lowering the standard in this respect. It is hard to believe that any person with the least respect for himself can engage in this pursuit.

T. W.

PORTLAND, ORE.

The Market.

Market conditions are normal. The general depression is always felt first by the florists, yet we are able to keep the stock moving. Roses are having a heavy cut. Maids especially are choice. Kaisers, also, are in heavy crop. Carnations are about equal to the demand. There seems to be a general assortment of stock, such as sweet peas, valley, snapdragons, iris and tulips. There is a scarcity of small blooming plants. Rhododendrons and hydrangeas have moved well. Rambler roses have been the poorest selling stock of the season.

Various Notes.

A. Zittewitz has leased the range of W. T. Woods, at Lents, Ore., for five years. The range consists of about 20,000 feet of glass in good condition.

Max Smith had the misfortune of having his automobile stolen, but it was Instead of using bunting as formerly, window boxes and hanging baskets will be attached to the lamp posts in the various business streets. The florists will cooperate with the association and it will be a means of using the surplus stock.

SPOKANE, WASH.

The Market.

This is decidedly late for a report on Easter business, but a cheerful report may be welcome even now. Spokane florists are united in declaring this year's Easter business to have been the best to date. All lines of potted stock went well, with just about enough of everything to fill the demand. Of course, lily plants led, with hydrangeas, azaleas, ramblers, spiræas and bulbous stock following in about the order named. One peculiarity of the Easter business here, as viewed by a florist who has had long experience in the east, is the smallness of the Easter trade in cut flowers. Whereas in the east there is always a big demand for cut flowers at Easter, here there is almost no perceptible increase in the call for this stock. Few of the retailers felt the need of increasing their orders to any noticeable extent.

The opening of the new Culbertson-Grote-Rankin department store on the Friday before Easter moved a lot of stock. A considerable quantity was used in decorating the store, and some fine baskets and emblems were sent to the opening by the leading business houses, to express their good wishes for the new enterprise.

The two weeks of cold weather which followed Easter had a quieting effect on trade. The handling of bedding stock will constitute the main business from now until Memorial day, and all hands are preparing for a big rush in the next few weeks.

Various Notes.

A business change of interest to all Spokane florists, and especially to the retailers who buy in the open market, is the newly formed partnership between H. L. Olsson and Bernard Benson. Mr. Olsson for several years has conducted, under lease, one section of the range of Hoyt Bros. Co. The new firm will continue in the same place,

Both men have been on the coast for several years, but before coming west were well known in the middle states, Mr. Olsson having been with Hess & Swoboda, of Omaha, and Mr. Benson with the Thompson Carnation Co., of Joliet, Ill. Mr. Benson is succeeded at the Reimers houses by a Mr. Nelson, who comes from Martin & Forbes, of Portland, Ore.

F. L. Ziegler is receiving some fine Mrs. Perry roses from one of his growers.

A. J. Burt reports his landscape business to have been good thus far. His decorators have been busily occupied with wedding work; the principal order was for the wedding of Miss Coughlin, at St. Joseph's Catholic church.

The Hoyt Bros. Co. is displaying some excellent stock in the windows, particularly in large basket arrangements.

The Spokane Florist Co. is showing fine specimen hydrangea and rhododendron plants. This firm maintains a high standard in window displays and this week's window is no exception. They report an elaborate decoration at the Paulsen reception recently.

Henry Reimers disposed of between 1,000 and 1,500 lilies this spring, mainly through his store, though some were bought by other retailers. The quality was particularly fine.

One of the recent cold snaps caught the Spokane Greenhouses, Inc., unawares, and froze a batch of hydrangeas just ready for market, besides a number of ferns. L. B. H.

SHAW'S GARDEN ADDS COURSES.

The April bulletin of the Missouri Botanical Garden, at St. Louis, announces the addition of new courses in floriculture and allied work. Under the will of Henry Shaw, the founder of the Garden, instruction was to be a part of the work of the Garden, and fifty-five students have been enrolled in the twenty-four years since its beginning, twenty-five of whom have completed the prescribed course.

Now that the facilities for this work, practical as well as theoretical, have been largely increased, provision is being made for courses which shall give a complete preparation in necessary subjects to those who wish professional training in floriculture, landscape gardening and the like. A period of three years is prescribed for covering the work completely. An annual tuition fee of $50 is charged. A single course, covering one year, may be taken at a cost of $15 for tuition, and a three months' course for $5, by those who wish to cover only one subject.

Six annual scholarships, yielding each holder $350 annually, are provided for; these are to be awarded after a competitive examination of applicants, who must have the equivalent of a high school education. These scholarships are continuous throughout the three years on condition of the holders keeping up to a certain standard.

Twelve officers of administration and instruction, headed by George Thomas Moore, director of the Garden, make up the teaching staff and cover the field well. The course and the method of work is laid out with an eye upon its use for training those who wish to take up this line professionally, and the treatment of the subjects is well adapted to that end.

NEWS OF THE NURSERY TRADE

OPTIONS on land in the vicinity of Auburn, Cal., have been secured by E. S. Simmons, a berry specialist of that state, who plans to establish a large nursery there for the propagation of small fruits.

SENATOR JOHNSON, of Maine, has proposed an amendment to the agricultural appropriation bill increasing the appropriation for the enforcement of the plant quarantine act from $50,000 to $150,000.

CHARLES ISSELEE, formerly superintendent on the E. C. Schaefer estate at New Rochelle, N. Y., is preparing to start a nursery at Mt. Kisco, N. Y., specializing in perennials, roses and evergreens. His permanent address is 103 Park avenue, New York city.

THE season is proving unusually favorable for the nursery trade. The planting season, although late in opening in some sections, has been long and uninterrupted. It has enabled the trade to prosecute its work at a rate that has resulted in a splendid spring total.

FORM GULF COAST ASSOCIATION.

At a meeting of prominent nurserymen at the Bienville hotel, Mobile, Ala., April 21, the Gulf Coast Nurserymen's Association was organized for the purpose of developing the citrus growing industry along the gulf coast, including southern Alabama, Mississippi, west Florida and southwest Georgia. Those who have nursery certificates will be eligible as members and are urged to attend the next meeting, Tuesday, May 19, at 1 o'clock at the Bienville hotel.

The following officers were elected: President, Theodore Bechtel; vice-president, W. C. Griffing; secretary and treasurer, Charles C. Hand; directors, A. H. Davis, J. M. Kroener, R. L. Scott and Charles E. Pabst.

Among those present were: Theodore Bechtel, Ocean Springs, Miss.; W. C. Griffing, Grand Bay, Ala.; Chas. C. Hand, Bay Minette, Ala.; A. H. Davis, Irvington, Ala.; J. M. Kroener, Theodore, Ala.; R. L. Scott, Citronelle, Ala.; Chas. E. Pabst, Ocean Springs, Miss.; S. Imura, Mobile, Ala.; Dr. H. E. Scott, Battles, Ala.; A. M. Troyer, Fairhope, Ala.; F. B. Welch, Crichton, Ala.; T. Kiyono, Mobile, Ala., and J. M. Stover, Bay Minette, Ala.

BEST HEDGES FOR MINNESOTA.

On page 70 of the April 16 issue of The Review I notice a question as to the best hedge plants for Minnesota. The reply gives one of the privets as being satisfactory. Evidently the one who wrote the answer was not familiar with Minnesota conditions, as the privet is not our best plant for a clipped hedge by a long way. The buckthorn, Rhamnus cathartica, is the plant generally used for lawn hedges. The Alpine currant is satisfactory for a number of years, but as it gets older is apt to be somewhat rough looking. Cotoneaster acutifolia is sometimes used as an unclipped hedge plant. The common crataegus has proven satisfactory in some places. The most reliable of all of these is the buckthorn.

PESTS INTERCEPTED IN MARCH.

Recording the pests and diseases found on imported nursery stock by federal inspectors during the month of March, C. C. Marlatt, chairman of the federal horticultural board, in news-letter No. 8, draws especial attention to the following:

"Cuttings of euonymus and chestnut from China exhibited many crescent-like scars, which were found to harbor the eggs of a tree-hopper. The injury occasioned by these insects appears to be unlike that made by any of the tree-hoppers of the United States. One positive and one doubtful report of the finding of brown-tail moth nests on French seedlings have been received. No less than nine egg masses of the European tussock moth (Notolophus antiqua) have been collected, five of which came from France and four from Holland. An interesting and apparently dangerous bu-pestid larva has been detected in Japanese chestnut. As usual, many scale insects have been collected, some of which, if established, might prove to be serious enemies."

In the list of those discovered, the common as well as the scientific names of the pests and diseases will hereafter be given. The list for March only showed that there is at present no danger of an invasion of insects from foreign parts; the total number of the inspectors' discoveries of pests and diseases was only about 200, which, compared with the vast number of shipments coming, is insignificant indeed. There were only four states in which more than half a dozen cases were reported. Of these four, California and the District of Columbia were leaders with forty-six and thirty-six respectively; New Jersey had fifteen and Ohio only eight. The countries from which more than half a dozen cases came were four also. Of these, Japan and Holland led with fifty-three and fifty-one respectively; France had thirty-five and England ten. ## SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

The Market.

Business seems to remain about the same; bulbous stock is nearly gone, carnations are scarce, while roses and snapdragons are quite plentiful. Sales are held every Saturday on roses, at 50 cents per dozen. Pansy plants retail at 35 cents per dozen and sell readily.

The planting season is backward this spring, on account of the cold weather. Last week the ground was frozen quite hard on two mornings. The weather has been cloudy and rainy; nevertheless, some of the growers have put their carnations in the field.

Various Notes.

N. F. Higgins has sold his store at 150 State street to Sidney A. Saunders. Mr. Higgins will remain as manager and his greenhouses will continue to supply the store. F. J. C.

PAWTUCKET, R. I.

The Market.

After the rush of Easter business, local florists are preparing for Memorial day. The backward spring has had the effect of keeping most of the outdoor plants from blooming. It also has had the effect of keeping the landscape gardeners out of work, but the weather seems to be changing for the better. Pansies are plentiful, but they are small in size.

Cut flowers are retailing in the department stores at an exceptionally low price. Red roses are selling at from 2 to 3 cents each; sweet peas at 15 cents per bunch, and violets at 35 cents per large bunch.

Various Notes.

J. J. Kelley, of Valley Falls, has a large block of extra fine spiraea. He has booked a large number of orders for outside work.

W. Sword, of Valley Falls, has completed his campaign against the brown-tail moth. His army of twenty-five boys collected about 80,000 of them and were paid by the town at the rate of 25 cents per hundred.

J. Patterson, of Ashton, has a large bench of excellent Boston ferns. He also has a block of azaleas in full bloom.

The Shartenberg & Roberson Co., operating Pawtucket's largest store, has a large and beautiful display, consisting of roses, sweet peas and violets.

E. D. Tucker, of Central Falls, reports a busy week.

A. Vose, of Woonsocket, is successful in his new and larger store.

M. J. Leach & Sons have a beautiful window display of potted plants and cut flowers. They report business as excellent.

Neil Ward, of Lonsdale, has received settlement on his claim against the express company for plants frozen in transit.

Elmer King, of Attleboro, reports a busy week in both wholesale and retail departments.

The Market.

The steadily increasing demand for cut flowers and blooming plants affords much satisfaction to the trade. As to the market, but little is to be said. Business is ahead of the corresponding period last year, and the demand continues good. The supply is a trifle ahead of the demand, if anything, and prices are about normal.

The Market.

As compared with the previous week, the one which closed May 2 was much more encouraging to growers, retailers and wholesalers. The weather was cold and, in the main, sunless. This shortened up supplies materially and extra good calls for May day and for the great suffrage parade May 2 gave business a good fillip. Warmer weather now rules and supplies are increasing, but the markets are cleaning up quite well. American Beauties are selling well at the lower prices now prevailing. Short-stemmed roses, which went as low as $5 per thousand April 25, advanced to $3 per hundred May 2, red, dark pink and yellows being the favorites. The reds were worn by the antis and the yellows by the suffragists. Carnations have been something of a glut of late,

Various Notes.

W. Wells & Co., of Merstham, England, the European disseminators of Antirrhinum Nelrose, received an award of merit for that variety from the Royal Horticultural Society April 20. Mr. Wells states that his plants are now a mass of bloom and that he will stage a 100-foot group at the coming great Chelsea show, both plants and cut flowers, and is advertising the fact in fourteen British horticultural papers.

Edward Bingham, of Dedham, is just finishing picking a heavy crop of English primroses. He has a large quantity of Spencer sweet peas which will be in heavy crop for Memorial day.

Harry Quint says business at his store, 164 Tremont street, has been most satisfactory of late. He has hired a vacant store at 203 Tremont street, where he has ten men busy on Memorial day goods, for which good orders already are coming in.

Work on the convention garden in the Back Bay fens is well advanced and quite a few shipments of shrubs, perennials, etc., have arrived. A large number of applications are also to hand for space. The local board of management has established headquarters at 120 Boylston street and has regular meetings each Tuesday and Saturday.

Mothers' day is being well advertised this year, not only by individual retailers but on the cooperative basis. Retailers, wholesalers, salesmen and growers have contributed to a fund for special advertisements in the leading Boston dailies calling attention to the day, which should bring benefits to all. It looks now as if the volume of business will be fifty per cent greater than a year ago.

McAlpine & McDonald have had a busy week, with a remarkable run on roses. May 2 they were completely cleaned out.

Peirce Bros. are cutting a fine lot of Lilium Jamesii, which they find a satisfactory variety.

May 2 Boston saw a war of the roses, the occasion being the parade of 10,000 women suffragists whose emblems were yellow roses, daffodils and other yellow flowers. At the same time the anti-suffragists cleaned up the market of practically all red and deep pink roses. The

New Rose, Killarney Brilliant

THE MOST VALUABLE ROSE INTRODUCED IN MANY YEARS.

We consider this new rose—a sport from the original pink Killarney—the most valuable rose that has been introduced in many years. It is well named Killarney Brilliant, on account of its brilliant color.

It is a great improvement on the original pink Killarney; first, because of its much more brilliant color, it being almost crimson in bright weather, while in midwinter—in dull, cloudy and foggy weather,—when the original pink Killarney loses its brilliancy and becomes badly faded, Killarney Brilliant is as bright and deep a pink as the original variety at its best. In addition to its great superiority in color, the flower is almost twice as large, having from twenty-five to forty full-sized petals.

It has the same desirable color that Killarney Queen possesses, but has double the number of petals, making it a very double and a fuller flower; and it is also very much more productive, having the same habit of growth and the same freedom of bloom as its parent.

We have watched Killarney Brilliant growing during the past winter, planted in the same house with the original and the double pink Killarney, and when those varieties faded so as to be almost unmarketable, Killarney Brilliant was superb. We are thoroughly convinced that it will immediately supplant the original Killarney as the standard market variety, and that every up-to-date grower will be compelled to plant it, on account of its great superiority. A prominent rose grower, who has seen it growing, says it is the only rose he has ever seen that needs no advertising; it sells itself.

BEGONIAS

We desire to call the attention of prospective buyers of Begonia Gloire de Lorraine and Begonia Lonsdale. Begonias have been one of our specialties for years. This year we are growing more Begonias than ever before, being the largest Begonia growers in the world of the above varieties. This branch of our business has been built up on the quality of the goods we have delivered to our customers. We desire that each and every Begonia grower send us his order, or at least a share of it, for comparison sake. Don't delay. Orders booked now will be delivered in June. All plants to be twice shifted and shipped from 2 1/2-inch pots. All of the very highest quality.

BEGONIA LONSDALE

We have a large stock of this light sport at the same prices as quoted for Begonia Gloire de

Lorraine. This variety is considered far superior to the original type, making a finer shaped plant and holding the flowers much better. The color is a little lighter than the original Begonia Gloire de Lorraine.

BEGONIA GLOIRE DE LORRAINE

2 1/2-inch pots.....$15 per 100; $135 per 1,000
3 -inch pots.....$25 per 100
4 -inch pots.....$35 per 100

BEGONIA GLORY OF CINCINNATI

This variety is endorsed by all the leading retail florists. It will hold the flowers much better than the Begonia Gloire de Lorraine.

3 -inch.....$35 per 100

BEGONIA AURORA (New)

This is a wonderful new Begonia for Christmas. It has foliage of the deepest shade of green and bears flowers of a golden-reddish color, much the same combination of colorings as the new "Irish Fire Flame" rose. Our stock of the variety is limited.

2 1/2-inch pots.....$30 per 100

BEGONIA KONKURENT

A Greatly Improved Begonia Cincinnati

The above variety is a German introduction, and we have tried it for three years. It makes a much better shaped plant than Cincinnati, is freer flowering, more shapely and, next to Norwood, is the best keeping Begonia we have ever handled; the original flowers remaining on the plants for several months.

We offer strong plants, June delivery.

2 1/2-inch pots.....$30 per 100; $250 per 1,000

ROSES FOR SPRING

We have an unusually large stock of extra strong pot-grown plants in both the Hybrids and Climbers which is much better than field-grown plants for forcing. Place orders early. We will reserve and ship when you want them.

There is no variety of foliage plant as attractive as the highly colored Dracaena. The small and medium sizes can be used to great advantage in making up the popular Christmas baskets or for spring boxes, while the large specimens have always been in great demand for decorative purposes. We are now growing more Dracaenas, in greater variety, than any firm in this country.

ROBERT CRAIG COMPANY

BRANCH:

rose men would be glad to see more of these parades while roses are abundant.

H. M. Robinson & Co. report hardy ferns as scarce, but they are beginning to receive new supplies. H. M. Robinson left April 29 on an extended southern trip in the interest of his firm.

F. E. Emery, of Reading, has had remarkable success this season with Lilium Jamesii. Single stalks have carried as many as ten to thirteen buds. A feature of this lily is that it throws up a nice second crop, which immediately follows the first crop.

Not in twenty-five years has vegetation been so backward as it is in the first week in May this year. In the parkways and arboretum forsythias are just coming into flower; many have their buds winter killed, however. Cerasus, Cornus Mas and a few other shrubs are just opening, but ornamental pyrus, malus and such early lilacs as oblata and hyacinthiflora plena are not yet in flower at all. Only the earliest narcissi and tulips are open.

Robert Hutcheon, of Stoughton, is one of the earliest shippers of Peach Blossom gladioli; Wm. Jurgens, of Newport, also is shipping the same variety.

R. D. Kimball, of Waban, is sending in bunches of crimson clover, which meets with quite a ready sale.

The Boston Cut Flower Co. is advertising considerably for Mothers' day and anticipates a largely increased trade. They have a staff of men busy on Memorial day goods at their roomy storehouse on Province street.

A fine exhibition of plants, flowers and early vegetables will be seen at the exhibition in Horticultural hall May 16 and 17. Late tulips will be made a special feature.

Galvin had one of his windows at the Tremont street store arranged with yellow for the suffrage parade May 2. English primroses, narcissi, tulips, roses and Dendrobium thyrsiflorum were the specialties.

F. H. Houghton states that business since Easter has been fully double that of a year ago. He has received orders for some large June decorations.

FICUS CHAUVIERII

This is an old variety taken up again by us. We believe we have the only stock of this variety in the country. It is in a class with the old Ficus Elastica, being very hardy and doing equally well for both inside and outside decoration. This plant has already given great satisfaction.
6-inch pots, 18 inches and 36 inches high,
$6, $9 and $12 per doz.
Large plants.....$1.50 and $2 each

FICUS UTILIS

A species that came to us through the Botanical Gardens at Washington, D. C., which promises to be a valuable addition as a decorative house plant. The leaves are thick and leathery and are from 18 inches to 24 inches long, one-half as wide, of a rich, holly-green color, with midrib and veins of an ivory white which stand out prominently.
6-inch pots, 24 inches tall.....$3 each

FICUS CRAIGII

This variety is a greatly improved Ficus Elastica and is bound to prove a universal favorite. It is close-jointed and the midrib stands out prominently, being ivory-white in color.

May 2 Welch Bros. Co. was extremely busy, the rose business in particular being booming. They anticipate a largely increased trade for Mothers' day.

At the next meeting of the Gardeners' and Florists' Club, May 19, Prof. F. W. Rane, state forester of Massachusetts, will give a stereopticon lecture on forestry conditions here and abroad.

J. Newman & Son had a good business May 2. They took the lead in the movement for coöperative advertising for Mothers' day, which is going to help business a great deal.

Evergreens, in spite of the severe winter, have come through almost unscathed, thanks to abundant moisture in the ground. On the other hand, such plants as Clematis paniculata and Bigonia radicans have been killed outright, both at the Blue Hill Nurseries and at R. & J. Farquhar's Dedham nurseries.

Flower day was held at Salem, Mass., May 2. On the streets 30,000 carnations were disposed of and the sum of $3,000 was realized for a tuberculosis fund.

April gave us a rainfall of 5.96 inches, nearly two inches over normal. On one day the shade temperature rose to 87 degrees, but the mean temperature for the month was, with one exception, the lowest in the history of the weather bureau.

NEWPORT, R. I.

The feature of the recent meeting of the Newport Horticultural Society, in its new quarters in Music hall, was the exhibit of antirrhinum made by John B. Urquhart, gardener for State Senator R. Livingston Beeckman, for which a silver medal, the highest award of the society, was given. A large vase stood in the center of the hall, with spikes over six feet in height and some over seven feet, with more than fifty flowers on each, the colors varying from pure white to dark crimson. It was announced that the premium list for the June exhibition of the society, in connection with the Newport Garden Asso-

The will of Paul Volquardson was proved in the Probate court here a few days ago, and his wife, Augusta, was appointed administratrix, with bond of $12,000. All the property goes to the widow during her life and is at her death to be divided equally between the two children.

As a reward for faithful services as head gardener for the late Mrs. John Carter Brown, the latter's daughter has pensioned John T. Martin for life, beginning May 1. Mr. Martin had been in the same position for twenty-six years and was one of the best known private gardeners in New England.

HARTFORD, CONN.

The Market.

Business during the last week has been quiet. Flowers of all kinds are abundant. Business since Easter has consisted mostly of funeral work. The spring season is late and has delayed the carnation growers from planting their stock in the fields.

Various Notes.

Thos. Dryden, of Wethersfield, has a fine assortment of bedding plants.

Geo. J. McClunie reports having been quite busy with funeral work.

At the plant of A. N. Pierson, Inc., at Cromwell, rose planting is well under way; 60,000 roses will be planted within the next week. This firm is now laying out a display garden south of the greenhouses, on Main street. The new addition is now under way; it will consist of seven houses, 32x300, of ridge and furrow type, and one house, 40x400. With the exception of the large house they will all be planted to roses. Evans ventilators will be used throughout.

Fort Worth, Tex.—A committee of the Fort Worth Florists' Association consisting of L. J. Tackett and C. E. Papworth, respectively president and secretary of the organization, will answer inquiries of amateur gardeners of the city in the columns of the Sunday Star-Telegram.

THE GREATEST CANNA NOVELTY OF THE DECADE

QUEEN HELEN

3½-inch pot plants, $3.00 each; per dozen, $30.00

½ dozen at same rate as per dozen. Plants ready now; can be shipped immediately

QUEEN HELEN is a green-leaved sport of King Humbert, retaining all the good qualities that have made Humbert the best Canna heretofore introduced—and Queen Helen has several points of superiority over Humbert. Same orchid-like flowers, golden yellow color, evenly spotted with red; stronger grower, producing more than twice as many shoots per plant; flower clusters larger; green-leaved, foliage large and glossy. Queen Helen is a variety that in years to come will be grown more generally than any other one canna. One large canna grower says it is the best novelty ever produced.

This Canna originated at our place in the year 1910 and the first time it was mentioned in The Florists' Review was June 15, 1911, under the St. Louis items, where I had shown a plant at one of our club meetings.

Needless to say that we kept the stock of the plant which produced Queen Helen, the green-leaved sport with yellow flowers. We have, at present, a King Humbert, in a four-inch pot, about twelve to fourteen inches high, with another green-leaved sport about four inches high. This plant I will send to the club or florists' organization, which the Secretary of the S. A. F. will mention, for inspection, express paid, during the month of May or June. The plant remains my property.

JOY!

This is a Carnation that did not get a reputation over night. We have been handling it for a little over two years and ought to know something about it.

IT'S A REAL RED

It is the kind of Carnation that proves the florist's friend. Shipped over a distance, it will look as good on arrival as when sent. This feature appeals to us because we know what it means to the man who is depending on us.

JOY has been described by Mr. E. H. Blameuser, of Niles Center, Ill.—the man who raised it—as “a strong grower, early, very free and continuous bloomer, with strong calyx and good stem.” That should be good enough for anybody.

DETROIT.

The Market.

Business has been good for this season. There have been a number of store openings, which have created a heavy demand for stock. Demand for funeral work also is heavy. Several large wedding jobs have also created a big demand for stock. Roses, carnations, snaps, peas and, in fact, all available stock is of good quality.

Already there are indications that the call for flowers for Mothers' day will be big. Many of the stores have sent out special advertisement cards, while others will resort to the papers, and no doubt the harvest will more than pay for the expense.

Various Notes.

Norman Sullivan is taking advantage of the publicity being given by the papers to the occupation of Mexico by the United States. He has a complete map of the United States and Mexico in his window, Mexico shown with sheet moss and miniature shrubbery, while the United States is made of red, white and blue paper. Miniature soldiers, cannon, tents, etc., complete the decoration.

R. W. Unger, formerly superintendent at the Belle Isle greenhouses, who lost his position through a change of administration, was awarded $687.50 back salary by the court. In all, six men have been awarded a total of $2,188.73 in back salaries. Former City Forester Philbrick has refused to settle, as he demands settlement at $2,000 per year, while the present salary for the city forester is but $1,500.

Albert Stahelin is erecting a Lord & Burnham house of most modern construction, 72½x400. It will run north and south instead of east and west, as his houses now stand. This house will most likely be devoted to the growing of roses. The same builders also are to erect a similar but larger house for Thomas Browne, of Greenfield, Mich.

The Bomb Floral Co. had the decorations for the elaborate wedding of Miss Ford at Grosse Pointe. Thousands of Beauties and lilies were used.

Many of the retail stores are displaying boxwood and bay trees and report they are selling fast.

KANSAS CITY.

The Market.

Business for the week was all that could be expected for this time of year in the cut flower line. There was an oversupply of carnations in the first part of the week, but it is predicted that there will not be any more cheap carnations. Roses are becoming scarce; last week it was difficult to fill orders for them, unless the orders were placed in advance. The roses are of good quality. New sweet peas have started to come to this market and they are exceptionally good. Gladioli and snapdragons are in demand. Gladioli are bringing fair prices, while snapdragons are cheaper than they were several weeks ago.

Club Meeting.

Hugo Neff, salesman for the Rock Flower Co., was the winner of the large vase given by the A. L. Randall Co., of Chicago, and he had thirty members to compete against. The vase is certainly a dandy.

The club will meet again on Monday evening, May 18, at 8 o'clock, at Mrs. Moseley's, 710 Minnesota avenue, Kansas City, Kan. Everybody is welcome.

Richard Parker, representing the A. L. Randall Co., was present and enjoyed the meeting. A discussion on "Department Store Flower Sales" occupied the greater part of the evening and was exceedingly interesting.

Various Notes.

Biedermann & Son lost a good horse last week. The animal slipped on the pavement and broke a leg.

A. D. Mohr has been cutting a nice lot of snapdragons, sweet peas and carnations. His carnations are exceptionally good for this time of year. He also has about 15,000 fine geraniums at his place.

Mrs. W. L. Fowler, of T. J. Noll & Co., has been home on account of illness for over a week, but her speedy recovery is hoped for.

R. S. Brown & Son report that business this season has been the best in their experience. They had plenty of funeral work and decorations all winter. This spring they had both ranges of houses filled with bedding stock, nearly all of which has been sold. They ship a great deal of bedding stock to the south.

MILWAUKEE, WIS.

The Market.

This city has one more week to add to its list of good ones for this season. Market conditions remain about the same as they have been since Easter. Carnations are becoming scarcer every day, and the indications are that the supply of this stock will be far short of the demand for the Mothers' day trade. The stock is of fine quality, however, and although the price is high, purchasers of carnations will get their money's worth. Roses are in fairly good supply, and the quality is fine. Sales on this stock are about normal and they are easily taking care of the entire cut. Violets are about out of the market after an exceptionally good season. Wholesalers are still getting a few small shipments, but these must be disposed of locally, as they will not stand shipping.

Sweet peas are still in fine shape and are bringing good prices. Bulbous stock is still with us and the stock in general is good. There is some fine Empress on the market at this time, which is selling exceedingly well. Tulips are getting poorer every day and this stock will be out of the market soon. The sale of potted plants for spring delivery is exceptionally good and we look for a banner year.

Various Notes.

Saturday, May 2, was flower day in Milwaukee, and a great number of our first ladies sold blooms and boutonnieres in the downtown district throughout the day. The proceeds go to the Milwaukee association for the care of the sick. The cause is a worthy one and the flower venders were well patronized. The wholesalers disposed of large quantities of roses, carnations and spring stock, and so are heartily in accord with any enterprise of this nature. Holton & Hunkel Co. furnished, among other flowers, 7,000 bunches of yellow daisies for this occasion.

The Arab Patrol of Tripoli Temple gave a May festival at the Auditorium Saturday evening, May 2. The guests were in gala attire and the scene was beautiful. The decorations were furnished by the A. F. Kellner Co. F.

H. Holton, of the Holton & Hunkel Co., was chairman of the decoration committee and should indeed be proud of the splendid results this committee obtained. As there were about 4,000 present at this event, corsages were in great demand, and this caused a shortage of sweet peas for the day.

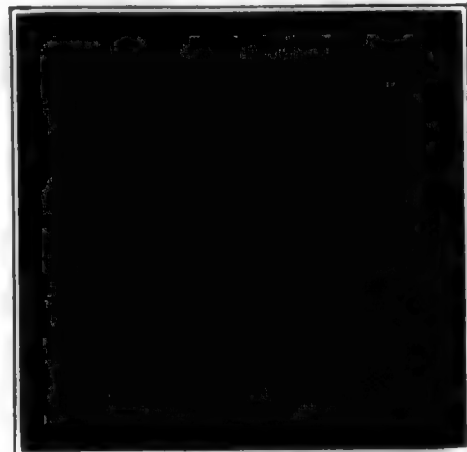

Mr. Perkins, of Jackson & Perkins, Newark, N. Y., visited Milwaukee the end of last week.

P. L. McKee, of the J. C. Moninger Co., Chicago, was with us May 2 for a short while.

F. W. Rochelle & Sons,
Chester, N. J.

Gentlemen: In reply to your query would state that I planted seedling stock plants and snapdragon cuttings in the first lot of bands that I received from you early in January.

We took some of these out and planted them where they are to remain about the 15th of February. They made a GOOD GROWTH while in the bands, and transplanted AS THOUGH they had never been moved at all.

I have now about 14,000 carnation plants started in 2-in. bands which are making a RAPID GROWTH, scarcely losing a plant in transplanting from the sand.

I also have about 20,000 aster plants transplanted in 2-in. bands which can stay there till time to plant out of doors WITHOUT FEAR OF BECOMING ROOT BOUND, as would be the case if I used 2-in. pots.

Plants SELDOM BECOME ROOT BOUND enough to injure them in THE DIRT BANDS, and DO NOT REQUIRE NEAR THE AMOUNT OF ATTENTION that a pot plant does, in watering, shifting, transplanting, etc.

I make my bands and set them in flats, as I make them up, each flat holding 117.

When we get crowded indoors it takes but a short time to move the flats to a cold frame, where we harden them off before setting them in the field.

One man can set MORE THAN ANOTHER TIME AS MANY (twice as many) plants in the field from these bands and flats than he can from pots, and after he is through DOES NOT HAVE THE BOTHER OF GATHERING UP, CLEANING, and STORING AWAY A LOT OF POTS. I believe anyone using these bands ONCE WILL BECOME A REGULAR CUSTOMER.

Yours truly,

H. B. Weaver.

Mr. Weaver ordered 5000 Dirt Bands in December, 40,000 in January, and 20,000 in March.

Samples, postage paid. Prompt shipment.

Bailey's Standard Cyclopaedia of Horticulture.

First volume just off the press. Remaining volumes will be issued as soon as possible. The following are a few of the features to be found in this new work:

KEY TO IDENTIFICATION OF PLANTS.

This is a device to enable one to find the name of a plant. The name thus found is quickly referred to under its alphabetical location, where full information will be found in regard to it.

SYNOPSIS OF PLANT KINGDOM.

This is one of the most important features of the new edition. It constitutes a general running account of the classes, orders and groups of plants, with a brief sketch or characterization of 215 of the leading families comprising those that yield practically all the cultivated plants. These family descriptions give the botanical characters and the number of genera and species and the ranges.

THE GLOSSARY.

This is an analysis of all technical terms that are used in the work and in similar works.

TRANSLATION AND PRONUNCIATION OF LATIN NAMES.

In Volume I is inserted a list of between 2,000 and 3,000 Latin words used as species—names of plants, giving the English equivalent or translation and the pronunciation.

CLASS ARTICLES.

Special effort has been made to secure the best cultural advices for the plants requiring peculiar or particular handling.

ILLUSTRATIONS.

There are 24 colored plates, 96 full-page sepia halftones, and more than 4,000 engravings which serve as guides in the text.

GENERAL INDEX.

The final volume will contain a complete index to the entire work, enabling the reader to locate volume and page of any subject he has in mind. With the Index, Key, Synopsis and alphabetical arrangement of the Cyclopaedia, any reasonable question asked by the consultant will receive a ready answer.

This work consists of six large quarto volumes, more than 3,600 pages, 500 collaborators, approximately 4,000 genera, 15,000 species and 40,000 plant names. Price, $6.00 per volume; $36.00 per set. Can be paid for one volume at a time.

Greenhouse Heating.

THE larger users of fuel in the greenhouse trade ordinarily contract in the spring for a part of their year's needs, trusting to picking up the rest of their supply in the open market at times when spot coal is offered below the contract price.

SUBSCRIBERS are invited to write the Editor of this Department with regard to any details of greenhouse heating that are not understood. But please do not ask The Review to make a choice of apparatus for you. The greenhouse heating equipment advertised in this paper is, we believe, the best for the trade to buy, and each article the best in the special field of its adaptation.

WHY THEY LIKE US.

The coal trade every now and then indicates an especial fondness for florists, usually at a time when the demand for fuel is none too brisk in other fields. One of the reasons why the coal man likes the florist is because the ups and downs of business have no effect on the quantity of coal consumed in greenhouses. Mild weather affects the demand here, the same as elsewhere that heat is used, but business may be ever so dull and the greenhouse trade burns just as much coal as when business is booming. The following paragraph from an eastern coal trade journal will account, in part, for the assiduity with which greenhouse business is being sought at the moment:

"The bituminous trade has made no visible progress toward overcoming the depression brought about by heavy stocks in consumers' hands and reduced consumption on account of part-time operations at many industrial plants. Mining is on a greatly restricted basis in central Pennsylvania, and has been for about a month, yet coal is literally a drug on the market at tide-water and prices are becoming weaker in spots."

The greenhouse trade, or at least the big buyers in it, contracts a large part of its year's supply in the early summer, but this spring rather more coal than usual remains in greenhouse bunkers, so that the buying is not so strong as the fuel salesmen would like.

TUNING UP THE HEATER.

There are two factors that are operating to make the greenhouse owner regardless of the character of his heating apparatus. Originally, with small establishments, the heating was not considered of prime financial importance; so long as the apparatus gave the necessary heat the florist was satisfied, but now, with larger ranges, the fuel bill assumes proportions of real importance and the florist wants not only to get the necessary heat but to get it as economically as possible. In a large majority of cases the heating system is a patchwork, added to from time to time as the range has grown, without any definite plan. Under such conditions operation scarcely could be otherwise than wasteful.

Growers are studying greenhouse heating. In many cases it has been found to promise first-class returns on the investment to pull out the old system of heating and install a complete new system. In many cases where heating engineers have been called in for advice it has been found possible to make a uniform plan for the whole range which would include the appar-

COAL AT CHICAGO.

The smokeless coals are not by any means the only ones burned in greenhouses in the middle west, but the large growers in and around Chicago use so much of this class of fuel that there is much interest in its market. The following is from the Black Diamond of May 2:

"Pocahontas coal has been extremely dull. A few more contracts have been closed up this last week for the year at prices which were fixed some time ago. A great percentage of this business in the general trades is already closed up. Shipments on contracts are being taken, but not with any zest. There is practically no spot buying of any moment and whenever any consignment coal gets on the market it is sac-

Gentlemen:

I assure you that I am perfectly satisfied with the Morehead System. I never was so surprised in all my life, to think that for seven years I used gravity returns in my greenhouses, allowing the condensation to return back to the boilers practically cold, and now find that I have a steam trap that works O. K.; does just as you represent it in every way. I am certain that if I had had the Morehead System seven years ago I would have been $1000 richer today.

Wishing you the best of success,

I am heating between 17,000 and 18,000 sq. ft. of glass with the No. 12 Kroeschell, maintaining 50 to 54 degrees in the greenhouses.

I have night fireman and we fire about every hour in extreme cold weather, but in ordinary weather every two or three hours, leaving the boiler run five to six hours at the last firing.

above three feet of double boarding. The houses are to be heated by a hot water boiler in the cellar of an adjoining building. The location is northern Illinois. A. E. P.

The number of pipes required to heat a greenhouse depends to some extent upon the temperature desired in the house, as well as the average minimum outside temperature. If a temperature of 60 degrees is desired when the mercury is 10 degrees below zero outside, three 2½-inch flow pipes and twelve 2-inch returns should be used for the entire space, 20x30. Place one flow on each wall at the plate and four of the returns on each of the walls, just below the level of the glass on the outer walls and as near the plate as possible on the middle wall. If 50 degrees will answer, use three flows, as already directed, and nine returns, placing three on each wall.

most varieties. It should be a good seller.

Joseph Brown's wagons are much in evidence again this spring. He is doing a good business at present, and has a wide range of stock.

The Joy Floral Co. has added several feet of space to the store room by putting in a new front, that takes in the old vestibule and brings the front nearer the street. The new plate glass window adds greatly to the appearance of the store and gives much better opportunity for display. They planted out a large block of dahlias last week.

Geny Bros. continue to cut the best roses of the season. They have been rather shy on pot plants since Easter, having cleaned up closely at that time. Their wagons are handling a better grade of bedding plants this season than last.

Haury & Sons are having their inning now, as they grow perhaps the largest supply of bedding plants in the city.

Hillcrest School Farm reports that it is more than doubling last spring's business in every department. They have not had the time to plant either their dahlias or their cannas as yet. F. B.

Sheffield, Ill.—The new greenhouses put up last year by W. G. Thomas & Son to replace the old ones destroyed by the cyclone, were struck by a heavy hailstorm on the evening of May 3 and were damaged considerably. Luckily, no plants were destroyed and the loss is fully covered by insurance.

GREENHOUSE HEATING

Heating plans and estimates made, boilers and heating supplies furnished.

A poorly installed plant that "don't work right," or uses too much coal, every winter takes a good roll of money out of your pocketbook. Such conditions should be intelligently and wisely corrected; the cost would then be reasonable and the results satisfactory. If, however, changes are made by "guess" or experiment, the outcome is usually both disappointing and expensive. We can put economy and efficiency into your heating system. Take the matter up with us.

IF YOU ONLY KNEW what a good eave the METROPOLITAN PATENTED is, you would use no other. It is made of cast iron and will not rust. That part of your greenhouse which in other constructions is the weakest becomes the strongest. Not this alone, it is ice-clearing and carries all the water of condensation from the inside, and it is so constructed that almost the entire end of the bar is exposed to the air, thereby preventing decay. Only one screw, about two inches from the end, is all that is necessary to secure the bars. For side stationary glass, wood headers are absolutely unnecessary, thereby causing no shade. Zinc glass stops are not necessary—the eave is made with a lug to prevent the glass from slipping. Let your next house be built with a Metropolitan Patented Iron Wall Construction. You will never regret it. Our price and service are right.

The Market.

Trade has continued good for the last week. Stock is in fair supply and is cleaned up daily. Numerous funerals have cleaned up the glut of lilies since Easter. Carnations are a little short and none go begging. Snapdragons are abundant and find a good sale. Iris is fine and finds a ready market. Roses and Beauties are plentiful and have a fair call. Some first-class gladioli are to be had. Fancy ferns are becoming scarce; other green goods are plentiful.

Various Notes.

J. J. Karins, with H. A. Dreer, Inc., called on the trade last week.

Several of the local florists attended the State Florists' Association meeting with Harry White, in North Manchester, last week.

Albert Pittet reports satisfactory sales of seeds of his new sweet pea, which he is now putting on the market.

S. T. Hitz & Son have been sending in quantities of snapdragon.

The Smith & Young Co. has been cutting some first-class roses at the Cumberland plant.

The Pahud Floral Co. has been getting excellent service out of the new Ford delivery car.

George Wiegand is planning a trip through the east in his new Cadillac roadster in the near future.

The Indianapolis Flower & Plant Co. has a fine line of bedding stock for the spring trade. H. L. W.

Wichita, Kan.—A permit has been issued to Joseph Blake to build a greenhouse, 84x128 feet, and a boiler house, 14x30 feet, at 122 to 128 Rosenthal avenue, at a cost of $2,000.

E. A. LIPPMAN

MANUFACTURER OF
GREENHOUSE SHADING

No. 6 High Street, MORRISTOWN, N. J.

AFTER twenty-five years' experience in Greenhouse work, with Lord & Burnham Company, in the glazing and painting department, I am convinced that what is most needed in this line is a good shading, and I am pleased to advise you that I have the real thing, which I am sure you will find to be just what you are looking for.

This shading is beneficial to the painted wood, as it does not contain any gasoline or naphtha which would destroy the paint. In addition, it is beneficial to the glass also, for you will find that when the shading is removed the glass retains its former brilliancy.

As to its application, this is a very easy matter. It can be either sprayed on or put on with a soft brush. For real good work, however, I would recommend the use of a soft brush.

Another advantage of this shading is that when it is no longer needed, it can be removed without any difficulty, leaving the glass, as before stated, with its original brilliancy.

I am making this up in gallon cans, in three shades—light green, light blue and pure white. When ordering, kindly mention the color desired.

I trust that you will kindly favor me with a trial order to prove its worth, after which I have no doubt whatever but that you will continue its use.

CLEVELAND.

The Market.

The market has taken a decided brace the last few days; cool nights have made quite a reduction in crops, which, up to now, were extra heavy. Carnations are bringing 3 cents and will not drop below that until after Mothers' day. The rose cuts are decreasing in size daily. Preparations are being made for a record-breaking business on Mothers' day. Cut flowers of all kinds and colors, fancy baskets and potted plants are being pushed this season. Cleveland florists have forgotten all about the white carnation and are trying to make the public forget as well. Eighty-two out of eighty-four florists doing business in Cleveland and vicinity have donated to the Mothers' day advertising fund, which now amounts to over $300.

Florists' Banquet.

A large and enthusiastic crowd of local florists attended the banquet at the Hollenden hotel May 1. An informal meeting was held in the prospective quarters of the Florists' Club immediately after the banquet. Nearly all were in favor of the new rooms. There is no denying the fact that the Cleveland Florists' Club, from a business standpoint, has outgrown the old quarters at 2610 Detroit street, where it has met for many years. The pleasures to be derived from the old quarters are for a few. The benefits to be derived from the new ones are for the majority. The question of moving will be brought up for a vote at the regular meeting May 11, at the old rooms. Those present at the banquet were:

The Recognized Standard Insecticide

W. N. Craig writes in Florists' Review (March 5, 1914): "Scale on greenhouse plants is not easy to get rid of, as doses which are sufficiently strong to kill the scale will usually disfigure the plants at the same time. I have found APHINE a first-class remedy for scale, and if you will apply it according to directions you will kill and loosen the scales, although they will not fall off, as will some other pests."

It will only require the hose to wash off dead scale.

A remedy that is efficient in destroying scale will destroy green, black, white fly, red spider, thrips and mealy bug.

PLANTLIFE

PLANTLIFE has several advantages over liquid insecticides on the market. Containing refined tobacco dust it can be used to mix with the soil, acting as an excellent fertilizer, at the same time destroying worms and insects in the ground before they have a chance to reach the plant.

PLANTLIFE has been found very effective in ridding greenhouses of insects by dusting on plants. When dry, use for dusting about once a week.

NEW ORLEANS.

The Market.

The business among the retailers can be considered fair. Some of them have been quite busy with spring weddings, but little funeral work is being done, which usually helps considerably to dispose of stock. The market and landscape gardeners are doing well and their stock is moving constantly at this time of the year. The demand for window-boxes is much less here than in other cities farther north; once planted they last for several years and, furthermore, it seems to me this line of the business could be made more extensive if more energetically drummed up. Outdoor grown Louisiana lilies, sweet peas and different varieties of gladioli are coming in plentifully, but the sale is only a limited one and an overstock of these flowers will soon be on hand. Gladiolus America is fine and it finds a ready sale at the northern markets, having been in bloom here since the latter part of April. Spiraea, rhododendron, hydrangea, pot roses, etc., are still in the market, but since Easter there has been hardly any sale for them. A considerable demand for Washingtonia filifera and W. Sonora has been noted lately and no doubt the demand for this fast-growing outdoor palm will be heavy in a few years. The stock of old plants on hand is not large. R. E.

Scotch Soot

Where there is a house that is just full of buds almost ready to show color, nothing will turn better color into the flowers than a little soot, that can be scattered over the benches before watering. The amount applied should not be excessive, as the soot is very strong and may damage some of the foliage somewhat. Apply just enough to blacken the surface of the soil in the benches and let it go at that. Better a little oftener than too much all at once.

We offer the genuine in original cwt. sacks, at $2.75 per 112 lbs.; $12.50 per 560 lbs.

The President Trots Out Our Family Skeleton For Your Benefit

THE iron frame is to a greenhouse what the skeleton is to our bodies. If more greenhouses were built with the strength where needed as with our bones, fewer houses would have gone down in last winter's big snow and blow.

There's no sense in building a house as light as a cobweb or as heavy as a bridge. Between the two, however, there's lots of chance for difference of opinion. But one thing is certain, you can't get back of the laws of cause and effect. Long before greenhouses were ever built the laws of stress and strain were worked out and established. It's nothing new with engineers. But it is new with some greenhouse builders. When houses were 25 or 30 feet wide, one could safely approximate the strength the members should have with simple figuring. But when you get beyond, say 40 feet, you are rapidly multiplying the strains on your frame and pressure on your roof way out of proportion to the increase in width. It's not a thing any man can figure offhand. It often takes our best engineers days to do it. It involves not only much figuring, but the making of many diagrams and stress and strain lines.

Never yet has one of our Iron Frame houses gone down by snow or blow.

One thing is certain, the brain power of a factory is a lot more important than its horse power.

You can depend on depending on Hitchings and "we go anywhere for business."

There are but two columns. The trussing is the compression type. Never in all our history has one of our Iron Frame Houses ever blown down. We have been building greenhouses 58 years.

Concerning the Iron Frame Houses Erected for Mr. Dunlop, at Richmond Hill, Ont.

IT IS generally conceded that Mr. Dunlop is one of the most progressive growers in the Dominion. On deciding to sell his property in Toronto, he purchased a tract of land at Richmond Hill, and then began a most searching investigation of the various firms manufacturing greenhouses. He came to the States and visited many of the leading ranges. He compared constructions, repairs and both quantity and quality of crops produced by each. He left no stone unturned in his investigations. He put us through a cross examination of a most searching nature. It was a pleasure to have him do it, because we know that if any construction would stand being pulled to pieces—ours would. And it did. And Mr. Dunlop gave us the order for these two Sectional Iron Frame Houses, each 61 ft. x 400 ft., placed 25 ft. apart.

If you know Mr. Dunlop, you are well aware of the fact that what he buys he really sells to himself.

No amount of clever salesmanship will accomplish anything, if the goods themselves can't talk convincingly for themselves.

More and more, careful, conservative growers are buying their houses by Mr. Dunlop's method. More and more, growers are appreciating that our houses are permanent, dividend-yielding investments that make them worth every cent they cost.

If you are thinking of building, we would greatly appreciate the opportunity of showing you some of our houses.

Being our guest, it would be no expense to you and it might be instrumental in saving you many, many dollars. We shall be glad to hear from you.

TANKS AND TOWERS

For big water tanks, the sort that are put up on towers, there is nothing to it but Cypress. No other material lasts so long and does the business so well. Steel tanks do not in any way compare with Cypress. They have to be painted every little while, or they rust out. Not so with Cypress; the wood takes paint well, but it lasts practically forever without it.

WOODEN TOWERS LAST

It is a foolish notion that tank towers have to be made of steel. Cypress towers carry their loads as well as steel; they last as long as steel and don't cost half as much. Don't let anybody fool you regarding the Cypress tower—it is a first-class article.

LAY IN SOME BOOKS

You can't improve on the CYPRESS Pocket Library. The 37 volumes are interesting and authoritative. Vol. 4 is the Barn Book; Vol. 20 is the Farm Needs Book; Vols. 6, 8, 18 and 32 are Bungalow Books, with full plans and specifications for building; Vol. 28 is Trellis and Arbor Book, handsomely illustrated; Vol. 35 is about Sun Parlors and Sleeping Porches, and Vol. 3 is the Greenhouse Book; Vol. 36 tells all about Carpentry, and Vol. 37 is the big Silo Book. Don't wait for us to "pass things;" just help yourself. They're FREE.

BEST BY TEST

"A" shows left half of front sections. All sections in two parts. "B" This is the door opening into the upper flues. A large amount of indirect surface in this boiler. "C" This is one of the large steam separators used on the mains to make sure that nothing but dry steam went out. "D" is one of the barrels in which water was weighed and then fed into the boiler. "E" These scales were used for weighing coal and wood and the water taken from separators. "F" This pail was filled from separators and then weighed to find out the amount of water held by separators. "G" Funnel into which water was fed from the barrel. "H" The smoke pipe. Temperature in the smoke pipe averaged about 500 degrees; a very low smokehood temperature, showing the heat was being absorbed by the water. It meant efficiency. "I" Flue door for overhanging flues in the fire box. "J" Fire door. You will notice two large fire doors go with this boiler. "K" Clinker doors level with grates. "L" Ash pit door fitted with draft door and sliding draft frame. "M" Connection to rocking grates; removable handle. "N" Front plate of base. Front section is set up first and bolted to this plate; keeps things in place perfectly. "O" Showing piping for mains. "P" A nipple was screwed into the boiler and fitted with a flange union having a plate glass gasket; this made it possible to look inside the boiler. Watch later papers for results of the test. Boiler developed 30 per cent over what we say it will do. The most for your money when you get a Moninger boiler.
